NO LETUP IN COLD IN SIGHT; ALL MIDWEST AND EAST SHIVERING

Two Freeze to Death, Third Apparently Victim of the Cold—River Choked With Ice, Vessels Halt.

Near-record cold continued to grip the St. Louis area today. The temperature fell to 4 degrees below zero this morning at Lambert-St. Louis Field and 3 below zero in the downtown area.

Two persons froze to death yesterday, and the body of a third was found today in circumstances which indicated death was caused by the cold.

Those who were found yesterday were Charles Simpson, 6601 St. Louis avenue, Hillsdale, and Fontelroy Ashley, 701 Evelyn avenue, Kinloch.

The body of John H. Grant, 57 years old, was found at 6:30 a.m. today in the 4300 block of Belle place. He had abrasions on the face and legs, and police found some broken glass nearby, apparently from an automobile taillight. Grant, who lived at 80 Vandeventer place, was the brother of David M. Grant, legislative research consultant to the Board of Aldermen.

Simpson, 61 years old, was found on the front lawn of his home yesterday morning by his sister, Mrs. Oliver J. Weber, with whom he lived. He had been to a dance at an American Legion post in Wellston Saturday night. St. Louis county authorities said Simpson, who had heart trouble, apparently suffered a heart seizure, fell to the ground unconscious and froze.

Found By Neighbor.

Ashley, 39, was found by a neighbor yesterday morning under his house, which sits about one-and-a-half feet off the ground on concrete blocks. He apparently had lost his key and was trying to loosen the floor boards when he froze.

The cold wave extended over the Midwest and the entire eastern half of the United States, and on the eastern seaboard it was accompanied by a severe snowtsorm. There were 142 deaths attributed to the cold in the East.

For the St. Louis area, the Weather Bureau predicted the cold spell will last all week. Low temperature tomorrow is expected to be around zero, with a high between 14 and 18.

Low temperature yesterday was 5 below zero at the airport and in downtown St. Louis. High was 10 above zero and the average for the day was 3 above.

Almost a Record.

George N. Brancato, chief meteorologist here, said the 11-day cold spell which started Feb. 7 was within .3 of a degree of being the coldest 11-day period in February since weather records were started in 1837. Average temperature for the 11 days ending today has been 14.3, compared with the February record, set in 1936, of 14.5.

If the temperatures goes near zero tomorrow, as predicted, the 12-day period will be the coldest in February in 121 years, Brancato said.

Laclede Gas Co. today asked about 100 industrial consumers to cut back their use of gas to absolute minimums so the supply will be adequate for the 350,000 residential and institutional customers. In the next seven days, the company expects to supply more than three billion cubic feet of gas.

BLAIR SUBMITS 3 CITY PROBLEMS TO LEGISLATURE

Two County Proposals, 13 Affecting Other Areas Covered in Special Message.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17 —Gov. James T. Blair, in a second supplemental message to the special session of the Missouri Legislature, today submitted 18 local legislative problems for action.

Included were three proposals for St. Louis, among them a recommendation that the Legislature repeal the present limitation on the city's earnings tax rate to permit an increase in the levy.

The Governor also recommended that the Metropolitan By-State Development Agency law be amended to expand the type of project which the agency can sponsor, and to make its revenue bonds more marketable.

Another proposal urged that salaries of employes of the St. Louis Election Board be increased to bring their compensation to a comparable level with other public employes in the city.

Blair submitted two proposals affecting St. Louis county. One would create four additional circuit judges, bringing the total for the county to 10. He also urged enactment of legislation to permit the county to issue revenue bonds for an annex to the new St. Louis County Courthouse. It would replace the old section, which has been termed a "fire trap."

The Governor submitted 13 other legislative matters affecting Kansas City, Jackson county and other local subdivisions of the state.

The Governor recommended the repeal of a section of the present state statute under which the St. Louis earnings tax, is limited to a maximum of one-half of one per cent on gross earnings of individuals and the net profits of corporations. This proposal has been requested by the city administration and the Board of Aldermen to clear the way for submission of a new charter amendment fixing a higher tax rate.

Gov. Blair rejected a suggestion that the earnings tax law be amended to include income tax features in the present city levy. This was requested by aldermen in a meeting yesterday with St. Louis members of the Legislature.

The Governor also had been requested by the city to submit five other proposals designed to increase the state's payment to St. Louis for the maintenance of prisoners, and the indigent tubercular and mental patients. None of these requests was included in the message.

The message was not delivered in person to the Legislature, but copies were merely filed in both houses for printing in the Senate and House journals for the information of the members.

FIVE-DAY FORECAST: BITTER COLD, LIGHT SNOW BY WEEKEND

BITTER cold weather is expected to continue for the next five days, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecast.

The forecast: Continued cold weather is expected in the St. Louis area for the rest of the week, with temperatures averaging 15 to 20 degrees below normal; normal highs are in middle 40s; normal lows in upper 20s; precipitation is expected to be light, occurring as snow toward the end of week.

POLICE ARREST 54 FOR LACKING CITY STICKERS

Fifty-four motorists who failed to have 1958 city automobile licenses were arrested up to 2:30 p.m. today. Because of the cold weather, police did not insist that the new license be affixed to windshields.

Maj. William G. Cibulka, head of the police traffic division, pointed out that instructions accompanying the license caution against affixing the sticker to a cold windshield.

"We are willing to wait for warmer weatner before requiring that stickers be pasted to windshields," Maj. Cibulka said. He added that weather had nothing to do with buying a license and police will continue to arrest motorists who do not have them.

DOWNTOWN WELL FILLED IN; USED BY STAGE COACH LINE

An old well near Third and Chestnut streets that once served stage coach drivers and their horses has been filled in by a wrecking firm in the process of razing the old Merchants Exchange Building on the site.

Carl H. Schott, project manager for Cleveland Wrecking Co., estimated the well was more than 35 feet deep.

Dr. William G. Swekosky, dentist whose hobby is St. Louis history, said the well was dug for the livery stable of Jesse and Anderson Arnot, brothers who came to St. Louis from Virginia in 1849. The Arnots operated stage lines connecting with other stage lines serving Pittsburgh; St. Joseph, Mo., and Council Bluffs, Ia. Dr. Swekosky said the Arnots also had contracts to haul mail to Waterloo, Ill., and Warrenton, Mo.

The well was preserved when the Merchants Exchange building was erected in the 1870s, the dentist said. He said that about 10 years ago he examined the well's mouth, then boarded over and jutting into a storage room of the building.

Weather Expert in Fog?

YORK, Me., Feb. 17 (AP)—The editor of the Old Farmers Almanac, which forecasts weather, was scheduled to speak here last night. Sponsors of the meeting had let editor Robb Sagendorph pick the date, on the assumption that he would choose a nice night. The speech was canceled because of bad weather.

'SPACE VOYAGER' SAYS IT COULD BE DONE BY ANYONE

Scientists Agree Seven-Day Test Proves Man Can Survive Such Flights.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 17 (AP)—Airman Donald G. Farrell completed seven days in a make-believe space ship yesterday and came out saying, "I believe anyone could have done the same thing."

Scientists at the School of Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base agreed that the 23-year-old native of the Bronx, N.Y., had proved that man is ready for space flight.

"There was one strange sensation," Farrell said after a solid week in a hermatically sealed tank that represented the cabin of a space ship. "I couldn't whistle."

Other than that the calm volunteer reported few physical or mental discomforts on being locked in the tank-like experimental space cabin. He could not see or hear what was going on outside.

Reactions Recorded.

He did not think the clustered researchers could hear him. However, it was disclosed during the tests that he could be heard by special microphone that was recording his report on paper.

Only by checking his watch and marking a calendar was he able to tell if it was day or night.

"I didn't feel in the true sense that I was on a space ship," he said. "I realized that I was on the ground at all times. There was no fear such as there might be in a real spaceship. Other than that it simulated a real space ship flight."

Space test experts said Farrell's non-whistling ability stemmed from the fact that a simulated 18,000-foot altitude was maintained in the space chamber.

Other Comments on Test.

Farrell's other comments on the test included:

"I lost four pounds—but I could afford to lose four pounds. I only weigh 181 now. . . .

"At no time did I get bored. . . .

"I was kept busy enough that there was no thought of personal discomfort. . . .

"I kept a diary and put in everything that transpired. . . .

"I got a little bit tired. . . .

"Really and truly, I would like to make a trip to the moon. . . .

"It would be easier if there were someone with you but that is just my personal opinion."

He said there was no period that he considered his big crisis. He was asked about last Friday, when scientists said the instruments showed he was experiencing "real fatigue."

Farrell seemed surprised. "I

SURPLUS FOOD FOR JOBLESS IN BIDDEFORD, ME.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Feb. 17 (AP)—About 60 persons, mostly women, appeared at city hall today as welfare workers distributed surplus Government food to jobless.

The city has 1400 persons on municipal relief and roughly a third of the 13,500-man labor force in the textile Biddeford-Saco area is out of work.

Mrs. Annette Gagne, city overseer of the poor, said more applicants for food are expected throughout the day.

Each applicant in the crowded city welfare office was given a chit for staple foods, borrowed from Government school lunch program reserve stocks. The amount varied with the number in the applicant's family.

Mrs. Gagne said that not all of the food applicants are on relief. Anyone out of work is eligible, she said.

College Boys, Dates Snowed In, Weekend Party Goes On and On

BLAIRSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 17 (AP)—Members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Georgia Tech figure if you've got to be snowbound you can't beat their setup.

They're with their dates on a weekend house party at Lake Winfield Scott, 110 miles north of Atlanta.

The party of 121 persons drove to the lake Friday. An 8-inch snow fell that night, blocking highways.

Bonnel Akins, concessionaire at the resort lake, got to the lake Sunday with the help of the state highway department and replenished the party's food supply.

A road to the lake is expected to be opened sometime today.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 17 (AP)—A Michigan City couple, newlyweds, spent their wedding night snowbound with 200 guests.

The guests who attended the wedding reception of Stanley Wodziak and the former Leona Schroeder spent Saturday night with the bride and bridegroom in the reception hall. They used floors and tables for beds. Sunday morning breakfast for the group included gelatin and potato salad left over from the reception. Neighbors sent over some coffee.

Snow in the Lake Michigan city ranged up to three feet in depth.

PRESIDENT ASKS RUSSIA TO STOP 'POLEMICS,' TRY QUIET APPROACH

Urges Ambassadors or Ministers Privately Explore Parley Possibilities—'Amazed' at Bitter Charges.

(Text on Page 1C.)

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — President Eisenhower called on Premier Bulganin today to put an end to the bitter speeches and notes of recent weeks. Instead, he asked Bulganin to try through normal diplomatic methods to determine whether there can be a summit conference that might lead to some agreement between the United States and Soviet Russia.

He suggested private talks between ambassadors or foreign ministers.

In his reply to the latest Bulganin note, the President referred at length to the "rather bitter speech" which he said Nikita Khrushchev made at Minsk on Jan. 22. Mr. Eisenhower said he was "amazed" that Khruschev should in that speech have accused the United States of war-mongering and desiring a preventive war.

"When I contrast the actual facts of American life with such portrayals as those of Mr. Khrushchev at Minsk, and indeed your latest communication to me, I am impressed more than ever before with the enormous difficulties besetting us in attempting to move toward better relations and with the greater necessity than ever before of doing so," Mr. Eisenhower said.

Outer Space Issue.

He urged once again that the Soviet Union seriously consider an agreement dedicating outer space to peaceful purposes in order to stop what he said was "the terrible menace" of new weapons used from the vantage of outer space for war. The time to deal with that menace is now, he said, pointing to the failure 10 years ago—for which he held Russia responsible—to outlaw atomic weapons.

The letter was given out at the White House by assistant press secretary Ann Wheaton. The President is vacationing at Thomasville, Ga.

At the State Department it was said that the note was in effect a demand that Moscow put up or shut up. If there is a real desire to reach an agreement through a meeting of heads of Government, then the time has come to get down to cases and stop what the President referred to as "polemics," picking the word from the Khrushchev speech, which has undergone intensive study in the State Department.

"Perhaps the impasse to which we seem to have come can be broken," Mr. Eisenhower said, "by less formal and less publicized contacts through which we would continue to seek to find out whether there can be a top level meeting which, in the words of my letter to you of Jan. 12, 1958, 'would hold good hope of advancing the cause of peace and justice in the world.' Exchanges of views effected through our ambassadors or foreign ministers may serve better than what Mr. Khrushchev referred to at Minsk as 'polemics' between heads of Government.

Dulles's Role Emphasized.

"The United States is accordingly consulting with some other interested nations as to the desirability of exploring, through more normal channels, the prospects of a top level meeting which would be adequate as to subjects, and as to which preliminary exchanges would indicate good prospect of an accord. You will understand, of course, that whatever be the preparatory procedures these would, as far as the United States was concerned, require the participation of our Secretary of State."

This was an indirect reply to the hint in the last Bulganin

ICE ON PONDS IN FOREST PARK SAFE FOR SKATING

Ice on Forest Park lakes measures from five to six inches and continues safe for skaters except in two spots which have been barricaded, Ian M. Crowder, superintendent of city parks, said today.

Several hundred persons braved near-zero temperatures yesterday to skate on Grand Basin, Post-Dispatch and Jefferson Lakes, Crowder said. Present weather forecasts indicate safe skating conditions for several days, he added.

Many skaters were seen throughout the St. Louis area yesterday on lakes, ponds and streams.

Crowder said skaters prefer the park lakes to Steinberg Memorial Skating rink because they don't have to skate in one direction. "In other words, they enjoy free skating, the privilage of skating in any direction they desire," he explained.

HAS 'CIRCUMSTANTIAL' EVIDENCE OF WHITE HOUSE PRESSURE, WITNESS SAYS

Mack Vote in Miami TV Case Reversed His Earlier Position

Letter He Wrote Before Appointment to FCC Supported Applicant Who Failed to Get Channel.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Richard A. Mack, who voted to award a lucrative Miami television channel to National Airlines in an alleged pay-off deal, supported a rival applicant before he became a Federal Communications Commissioner, the New York Herald Tribune learned yesterday.

The House subcommittee investigating federal agencies has a copy of a hitherto undisclosed letter in its files, addressed to the FCC and bearing the signature "Richard A. Mack." The letter, dated July 19, 1951, is lavish in its praise of the qualifications of Col. A. Frank Katzentine, owner of radio station WKAT, Miami, who had applied for the channel but lost out eventually when the grant went to a National Airlines subsidiary.

The letter supports Katzentine as "an outstanding business and civic leader" and a "pioneer resident of Miami," and concludes:

"This letter is written with the thought that it might be of some assistance to you at such time as Mr. Katzentine's application is considered."

At the time Katzentine's application actually was considered, however, Mack had become a member of the FCC—and voted for National Airlines. Dr. Bernard Schwartz, ousted subcommittee counsel, testified Thursday that Mack was "pledged" to National and received $2650 after joining the FCC from Thurman A. Whiteside, Miami attorney described by Schwartz as a "fixer" representing the airline.

Mack denounced the sworn charges as "unsubstantiated" and said he has no intention of resigning. Whiteside called Schwartz a "liar." Both will be given a chance later this week to give their version of the story, along with other principals in the case, at public hearings that were resumed today.

The 1951 letter from "Richard A. Mack" is written on official stationery of the Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, of which Mack

SCHWARTZ ALSO ASSERTS TV FIRM HAD 3 MEMBERS OF FCC 'IN BAG'

Fired Inquiry Counsel Says Mrs. Eisenhower's Brother-in-Law Figured in Channel Case, Too.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — Dr. Bernard Schwartz testified today that there was "circumstantial" but not "direct" evidence that the White House sought to interfere in a decision by the Federal Communications Commission.

He told the House subcommittee investigating federal regulatory agencies that the case involved the award of a television channel in Miami, Fla., to a wholly-owned subsidiary of National Airlines, Inc.

Three members of the FCC reportedly were "in the bag" for National Airlines, the successful applicant, Schwartz said. He added that Col. George Gordon Moore, brother-in-law of Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, also figured in the Miami case.

Resuming his testimony before the subcommittee, Schwartz said Col. Moore was engaged in a shipyard business in the Dominican Republic with two officers of National Airlines and Public Service Television, Inc., of Miami.

Was Awarded Channel.

Public Service was set up by National as its wholly-owned subsidiary to apply for Channel 10 in Miami. The FCC, by a 4 to 2 vote, awarded the channel to the airline subsidiary.

Schwartz, who was fired as chief counsel a week ago, gave the subcommittee some details of an interview his investigators had with John S. Knight, publisher of the Miami Herald.

The witness said Knight told the investigators he had been informed by Alexander Hardy that three FCC commissioners were "in the bag" for National before the commission issued its decision in the Channel 10 case in February 1957.

Hardy was identified as a vice president of National Airlines. The names of the three FCC members reportedly mentioned in his conversation with Knight were not brought out.

When he appeared before the subcommittee last Thursday, Schwartz said he planned to testify later on "another important aspect" of the Channel 10 case—"namely, why the three Republicans (on the FCC) voted as they did."

Republican Members.

The Republican FCC commissioners who voted to give Channel 10 to Public Service Television were George C. McConnaughey, then chairman; John C. Doerfer, then a member and now chairman, and Robert E. Lee McConnaughey is no longer on the commission.

Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (Dem.), Arkansas, recessed this morning's hearing for lunch before Schwartz could go into additional details on his charges of alleged misconduct by some FCC members and reported White House interference in decisions by independent regulatory agencies.

Before the recess, Harris read parts of a sworn affidavit by Col. A. Frank Katzentine of Miami, an unsuccessful applicant for Channel 10. At one point, the affidavit said Col. and Mrs. Moore were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Baker in Miami. Baker is president of National Airlines.

At another point, the Katzentine affidavit mentioned Moore's alleged partnership in a Dominican Republic enterprise with one of the directors of National Airlines.

Partners Not Identified.

A little later, Schwartz said Moore was engaged in a business venture in the Dominican Republic, "a shipyard, I believe," in partnership with two officers of a National Airlines and Public Service Television. They were not identified.

Just before the recess, Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (Rep.), Minnesota, a member of the subcommittee, asked Schwartz whether he had any evidence that presidential assistant Sherman Adams "or anyone else in the White House," attempted to interfere in the Channel 10 case.

"There is no direct evidence in this case, but there is some circumstantial evidence," the witness replied.

In asking the question, O'Hara said he was not includ-

QUIZ CONTESTANT BAFFLED, SWEARS COAST TO COAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—Artist Larry Rivers's answer to a question on CBS-TV's "$64,000 Challenge" last night shocked some television quiz fans across the country.

Rivers had been asked to identify a woman in Renoir's "Luncheon of the Boating Party." Unable to think of the woman's name, Rivers blurted that all women looked alike in "every God-damned picture Renoir ever painted." The woman who upset Rivers: Aline Charigot who married Renoir.

Rivers's failure to answer the question forced him to split $8000 with his opponent, Leo Lerman, a contributing editor to Mademoiselle magazine. Both were knocked out of the competition. Lerman missed the same question.

At the end of the program, master of ceremonies Ralph Story apologized to the television audience for Rivers's words, pointing out that contestants compete on the program sometimes under great tension.

DULLES WANTS NO SUCCESSOR TO HAROLD STASSEN

© New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Now that Harold E. Stassen has resigned as presidential disarmament specialist, the next question is how Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will handle the need for a new specialist.

One likely solution is that Stassen's operation, which was constantly in Dulles's hair, will be consolidated under special assistant Philip J. Farley, who has been running a parallel operation for the Senate Department.

What seems certain is that Dulles will try to block any move to create another specialist at the White House level and set up new policy conflicts with the State Department. Dulles has been fighting moves to put top foreign-policy consultants in the White House since 1955. His distaste for this type of operation stems from bitter memories of the way his uncle, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, was reduced in stature under Woodrow Wilson because of Col. Edward H. House's influence in the White House.

S. KOREAN PLANE IS LANDED NORTH OF TRUCE LINE

Airline Says Passengers Were Kidnaped—One or More Reds Believed Aboard.

SEOUL, Feb. 17 (AP)—The Pyongyang radio admitted today a South Korean passenger airliner with two Americans and 30 others aboard flew to Communist North Korean yesterday.

A broadcast from the North Korean capital asserted the plane "fled to North Korea (in protest) against the Syngman Rhee government's war policy."

It was believed one or more Communists boarded the plane and forced the American pilots to fly north. Korean National Airlines charged the plane's passengers were kidnaped.

The United Nations command will meet the Communists tomorrow and demand the return of the plane.

The Pyongyang broadcast gave no details of the plane, its passengers or where it landed. It said only that the plane landed at a North Korean airport at 2 p.m.

Previously, the Communists had remained silent on the fate of the plane.

Tracked Beyond Truce Line.

The U.N. Command said the plane was tracked by radar north of the truce line before it vanished. South Korean military sources reported that radar had followed the DC-3 at least 60 miles farther north to Sunan, site of a Red air base near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

After leaving the southern port city of Pusan shortly before noon yesterday, the U.N. said, the plane checked in on schedule at Taegu and Osan. There was no reported indication of trouble on board.

When the airliner reached Seoul, its destination, it continued north.

The pilot was Willis P. Hobbs of Vallejo, Calif., an American civilian who has worked for K.N.A. for about two months. His wife and two young daughters live in Hong Kong.

(Hobbs's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Hobbs of Arthur City, Tex., said their daughter-

Ace to Be Rare Bird in Future, Top World War II Pilots Agree

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—The top living American fighter pilots of World War II sat down to lunch together yesterday in a Manhattan hotel. They agreed that the wartime ace—a flyer who destroyed five or more enemy aircraft—is destined for extinction.

Another war, with its emphasis on missiles, high-flying bombers and supersonic jets, would probably be too advanced for the old-fashioned dogfight.

The flyers were brought together in connection with Harper Bros.' scheduled publication tomorrow of "American Aces," a book of "the most exciting missions flown by the top 12 surviving United States A. A. F. pilots." The author, Edward H. Sims, editor of the Orangeburg, (S. C.), Times and Democrat, is himself a former fighter pilot. Of the 12 surviving aces, only seven arrived in time for the luncheon. Four others were delayed by a nemesis familiar to airmen—a snowstorm. Another was seriously ill.

DEMOCRATS PICK ROADS, HOUSING TO GIVE SAGGING ECONOMY BOOST

Senators Will Push Highway Building Program and Seek Further Easing of Home Financing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP) —Senate Democrats picked highways and housing today as likely to offer the quickest opportunities to pump federal expenditures into the faltering economy.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee announced that the Senate Public Works subcommittee he heads will begin hearings tomorrow on proposals to accelerate the interstate highway program.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, said he was drafting legislation to make it easier for persons with moderate incomes to buy houses in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket.

Sparkman's plans call for still further easing of down payment requirements in that bracket, and for other actions to make more housing credit available.

The weekend brought disclosures also that both the Administration and Democratic House leaders are studying the possibility of tax cuts at some later date, and that the Administration is working toward proposal of another billion-dollar building program.

Federal Buildings.

The billion dollars, most of it from private sources, would go for construction of 150 to 170 federal buildings under a proposed revival of the lease-purchase plan.

The Government already is pushing a $636,000,000 program involving 92 lease-purchase projects already approved. Congressional action would be required for the proposed new buildings, because the general lease-purchase authority contained in a 1954 law has expired.

The plan would differ from the two billion dollar postal modernization program President Eisenhower suggested last week. Under the postal plan, private industry would be asked to put 1½ billion dollars into new buildings for long-term lease to the Government. The Post Office Department would spend another $500,000,000 over a three to five year period for remodeling post offices it owns and for purchase of postal machinery.

Under the lease-purchase plan, the Government eventually takes title to the buildings after paying for their construction in rental payments over a period of years.

Priority Attention.

Senate Republican minority leader William F. Knowland of California said yesterday that distressed areas should receive priority attention in any postal modernization program.

Knowland told reporters he would support the 5-cent rate asked for by the Administration on out-of-town letters on two conditions:

1. That the $175,000,000 realized annually in extra revenue be earmarked for modernization, and that a policy sttaement be attached aiming the program at distressed areas.

2. That a three-year time limit be placed on the five-cent stamp.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield told the Senate Post Office Committee last week the Administration did not want any time limit imposed.

Gore said the first witness at tomorrow's road hearing will be Democratic Gov. Foster Furculo of Massachusetts, who has been critical of what he has said is the Eisenhower Administration's failure to make any substantial move toward coping with growing unemployment.

Harriman to Testify.

Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, another Administration critic, will testify Friday. Democratic Gov. Stephen R. L. McNichols of Colorado will appear later and Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida also may testify.

Gore said he had invited Republican Govs. William G. Stratton of Illinois, Lane Dwinell of New Hampshire, Victor E. Anderson of Nebraska and George Dewey Clyde of Utah to appear, but has heard only from Stratton, who said he would not be available until late in March.

Gore said he now is thinking in terms of speeding up the interstate highway program by efforts to earmark more of the highway users taxes for road building.

Sparkman said that in the housing field he is studying the possibility of broadening the present special assistance program so that a down payment of only 3 per cent would be required on mortgages up to $12,000 instead of the present $10,000 ceiling.

In addition, Sparkman said he may propose that the Federal National Mortgage Association be authorized to buy the mortgages at par, thus eliminating discounts most home buyers now have to pay to get loans.

Sparkman said he also will propose that the Federal Housing Administration put into effect on a national basis an experimental program aimed at eliminating the two or three months' delay in getting FHA-insured home loans approved.

Under this system, in effect in some areas now, a certified bank, insurance company or mortgage bank could grant loans under FHA standards without FHA advance investigation.

AFL-CIO Program.

By the United Press.

The AFL-CIO accused the Administration yesterday of trying "to tranquilize the American people" about the current business slump. It proposed a seven-point Government program for stimulating the economy.

The proposals were:

1. A program of public works including the construction of public housing, hospitals, libraries, schools and flood control projects.

2. An increase in personal income tax exemptions from $600 to $700.

3. Increasing the rate and duration of unemployment compensation payments.

4. Extension of the $1 minimum wage to workers in retail stores, laundries, hotels and restaurants and an increase in the wage to $1.25.

5. An increase in social security old age benefits and hospital care for persons on old age pensions.

6. Increased assistance to economically depressed areas.

7. Increased wages without increased prices.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, demanded that the President get behind the Tennessee Valley Authority self-financing bill "and help pass it in the House." The measure passed the Senate last year.

Kefauver said the bill would spur economic activity in the TVA area because "then we could start building steam plants—at no cost whatever to the Federal Government."

Board Preparing to Cut Bank Reserve Requirements.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 — The Federal Reserve Board is preparing to continue a shift toward easier money by reducing the reserves that it requires banks to hold against deposits. The cut will add billions of dollars to the cash available to the banking system for loans.

The action is expected within the next four weeks unless there is a sharp upturn in business activity. It is anticipated that the board will act before March 15 because heavy corporate tax borrowings will create a demand for credit.

The cut will be the first since mid-1954. The board trimmed requirements in June 1953 and again in June 1954. The board will give a better break to big city banks than to banks in smaller communities when it acts. It thinks existing requirements discriminate against big city banks.

Central reserve city banks are now required to place 20 per cent of their demand deposits in reserve. The reserve city requirement is 18 per cent and the country bank requirement is 12 per cent. Reserve city banks are in the larger cities while country banks are in smaller communities.

The board has statutory authority to set central reserve city requirements at any point from a minimum of 13 per cent to a high of 26 per cent. It can peg reserve city requirements between 10 and 20 per cent and country bank requirements between 7 and 14 per cent.

Cut in Income Taxes Is Urged by N.A.M. Official.

DETROIT, Feb. 17 (AP)— Charles R. Sligh Jr., executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers, asked Congress today to "remove the roadblocks to capital formation and restore personal incentive" by cutting taxes on individual and corporate incomes. He urged this as a spur to the nation's economy.

500,000 RIGHTISTS, ENEMY AGENTS FOUND IN RED CHINA

HONG KONG, Feb. 17 (AP) —Red China's security chief says nearly 500,000 counter-revolutionaries, rightists and enemy agents have been uncovered, many inside the Communist party itself.

The figures covering a 29-month period were given by Security Minister Lo Jui-ching in the Jan. 3 issue of the political magazine Hsueh Hsi just received in Hong Kong.

Lo listed 5000 in the Communist party, 3000 in the Communist Youth League, 220 in government departments or bureaus and 260 among party leaders in rural areas. He did not say what had happened to them, but indicated that many had been forgiven.

I.R.A. BANDS MAKE TWO RAIDS, ONE IN HEART OF ENGLAND

MIDDLETOWN, Northern Ireland, Feb. 17 (AP)—Raiders from the Irish Republic fought a 20-minute battle with Northern Ireland police early today. Rifles, revolvers and machine guns were used.

The raiders, believed to be members of the illegal Irish Republican Army, attacked the Middletown constabulary station. They were driven off and escaped across the border into the Irish republic.

There were no police casualties. It was not known whether any of the raiders were hit.

A few hours earlier, six men, presumably of the I.R.A., attacked the Blandford camp of the British Army in Dorset, in the heart of England. The raiders, believed to have been seeking arms, fled empty-handed after shooting a sentry in the stomach, and tying up seven guards.

The I.R.A. seeks the reunion of northern Ireland's six counties with the Irish republic.

8 Killed in Prison Fight.

MANILA, Feb. 17 (AP) — Eight convicts were killed and 20 wounded in a fight among 500 prison inmates yesterday at Muntinglupa, near Manila. The prisoners fought six hours with sharpened spoons, table knives and clubs. Assistant Prison Director Eriberto Misa said overcrowding was a factor.

ISRAEL ACCUSED OF ATTACKS BY 3 ARAB NEIGHBORS

Tel Aviv Charges Syria, Jordan and Egypt Are to Blame in Border Clashes.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Feb. 17 (AP)—Charges of border violence were traded yesterday by Israel and three of its Arab neighbors — Egypt, Jordan and Syria.

One involved the demilitarized Mount Scopus area, a trouble spot last fall when Jordan barred Israeli supply convoys. A United Nations mediator worked out a supply agreement.

Another involved the killing of a 10-year-old Arab boy along the Gaza truce line guarded by the U.N. Emergency Force. It was the first incident along the line in months.

Three Policemen Shot.

In the Mount Scopus area, Israel charged that three of its policemen were wounded when they advanced on Arab farmers plowing in the Israeli sector. An army spokesman said the fire came from Jordanian positions and the policemen returned it. Israel lodged a complaint with U.N. truce supervision officials.

An Israeli army spokesman also charged a Jordanian post sprayed Israeli frontier guards in the Tulkarem area with automatic and rifle fire. He said the fire was returned and none of the Israelis was hurt.

Egypt filed charges with the Israeli-Egyptian mixed armistice commission claiming that Israelis fired at two Arab boys guarding sheep near Gaza town. They killed one of the boys and took his body and 75 sheep, the Egyptians said. The other boy fled.

Israel also charged that Syrians fired on four Israeli workers near the Ashmoret settlement of the Lake Huleh reclamation project. The fire was not returned and no one was hurt, a spokesman said.

Villagers in Battle.

In Damascus, the Syrian army charged that an Israeli patrol moved across the line in the central sector of the Syrian - Israeli demilitarized zone and fired on an Arab village. A Syrian army spokesman said the citizens' groups drove them back after a short exchange of fire and no Arabs were hurt.

By the United Press.

A dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon, said two Syrian planes intercepted a Lebanese plane en route to an Iraqi pumping station on the pipeline leading through Syria from northern Iraq and forced it to land. There were no other details.

SUMATRA REBEL GROUP TRYING TO TIE UP ECONOMY

No Indication Orders for Blockade of Java Government Will Be Effective.

JAKARTA, Feb. 17 (AP)— Indonesia's new rebel government on Sumatra pressed an economic blockade of the central government on Java today with no indication so far of its effectiveness.

President Sukarno's army chief replied with an apparently unenforceable order for the arrest of the top rebels, most of them in the rebel stronghold of Central Sumatra.

The rebel government cabled 40 banks in the United States and 16 other countries that all gold balances belonging to the central government should be blocked. The cables called for a report of balances and other assets to be cabled to the Bank of Indonesia in Padang, Sumatra, the rebel center.

This followed an order from the rebels yesterday directing all foreign oil companies to halt shipments to the central government and payment of royalties to the Jakarta treasury.

There was no indication whether the oil companies or the banks would comply.

The oil companies—the American Caltex and Stanvac and the Royal Dutch Shell—operate mostly on Sumatra although their biggest installations are outside the central area controlled by the rebels. Their compliance would strike a body blow at Sukarno's regime, which receives millions annually in royalties and foreign exchange from them.

In the islands outside Java there still were important holdouts against the rebel regime.

The military commander in South Sumatra, Lt. Col. Barlian, issued an order of the day declaring he would not allow his territory to be used as a "base for violent actions" by either the rebel of Jakarta governments. He called for settlement of the conflict peacefully.

Sukarno returned home yesterday after a 40-day trip to drum up support in other Asian capitals for his campaign to force the Dutch to give up West New Guinea. He made only a six-minute speech at the airport and ignored the rebel government completely.

U.S. and Britain Agree on Pact For Control of Missile Bases

Joint Arrangement Seems Certain to Be Model for Arming NATO Nations With Nuclear Rockets.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP) —The United States and Britain have negotiated an agreement for jointly controlled nuclear missile bases. It seems certain to become the pilot pact for arming other NATO allies with medium range rocket weapons.

United States and British officials said the agreement would probably be concluded here today with an exchange of letters between the State Department and British Embassy. There was some possibility that the exchange might be delayed until tomorrow. In either case, a formal announcement is not expected before mid-week.

The key to the United States-British arrangement, which dates back a year to the Eisenhower-Macmillan conference at Bermuda, is joint control of the missile system which will be set up on British soil with American-made weapons.

The issue of who would pull the trigger in event of a war has been hotly debated in Europe. Those who opposed arming NATO with nuclear missiles argued that the United States might plunge an allied nation into war without that nation's consent, merely by pushing a button.

Somewhat the same argument has been made against United States strategic bombers armed with nuclear bombs and based on European territory. The reassurance offered by the United States and also by allied government leaders has been that the United States aircraft would not be permitted to strike enemy targets without the consent—which obviously could be given in advance—of the government controlling the base territory.

The 1500-mile missiles which Britain will receive from the United States, according to reports here and in London, will be distributed among four bases along the eastern shores of the British Isles facing towards Russia. Some diplomats said that the exact number and sites of bases probably would not be disclosed in the announcement of the agreement.

London dispatches said that Britain would pay the $90,000,000 cost of constructing the bases, the United States will supply the missiles by the end of this year and United States crews initially will handle the weapons at the British bases. British crews will take over as soon as they can be trained.

The hydrogen bomb warheads, with which the missiles would be equipped in wartime, will be stockpiled at the bases but they will be under United States control. Under United States law the President cannot transfer atomic weapons to any other country.

At the NATO summit conference in Paris in December the heads of the 15 allied governments decided that NATO defenses in Europe should be reinforced with United States nuclear missiles. They left it up to Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, to decide where the missile bases should be and to work out arrangements with the governments concerned.

Once Norstad's military plans are completed and accepted by the governments directly involved it will be up to those governments and the United States to negotiate formal agreements. United States officials are sure that the arrangements worked out with the British constitute a pilot model for the others in future months.

They will not necessarily be the same in detail. For example, where a country is hard-pressed financially, the United States may pick up the bill for much of the base construction, or NATO itself may shoulder the cost.

The broad principle of joint responsibility and partnership control — so that neither the United States nor the cooperating allies could get the other into an unwanted war—is considered certain to carry through all the agreements.

Talks With France on Bases Have Started, Norstad Says.

PARIS, Feb. 17 (AP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, said today that preliminary discussions have been started toward location of launching sites for United States intermediate range missile in France.

He declined to say whether similar discussions are under way with Italy and Germany. He indicated that the preliminary talks with France did not necessarily mean that it would be the second country, after Britain, to receive intermediate range missiles.

Norstad said that within the foreseeable future the Western alliance would continue to have the means to carry out its function of retaliation regardless of new anti-aircraft weapons possibly available to the Soviet Union.

FOG CURBS HUNT FOR MISSING U.S. AIR TRANSPORT

16 Aboard Plane on Way to Turkey—Check With Albania Believed Under Way.

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 17 (AP) —Fog and heavy clouds over the south Italian mountains and the Ionian sea hampered the search today for a twin-engine United States Air Force transport missing with 16 military personnel aboard.

Despite the fog, more than 15 American search planes took off from bases in the Naples area. Italian seaplanes from Syracuse and Taranto, British planes from Malta, and ships of the United States Sixth Fleet joined in.

Officials said the possibility that the plane had been forced down in Communist Albania could not be excluded. There were unconfirmed reports that the United States was trying to check with the Albanians, presumably through the French or Italian Foreign Offices, which maintain missions in the Soviet satellite just across the Adriatic from southern Italy.

The C-47, on a flight from Ramstein-Landstuhl airport in Germany to Turkey, carried a crew of seven and nine passengers.

It landed Saturday night at Naples to take on fuel and passengers. Thirty minutes after taking off for Athens it radioed that it had reached 6500 feet and was switching to the Rome radio control. It never contacted Rome. Air Force officials said it should have been over the Adriatic when it last reported.

Western planes flying from Rome to Athens normally avoid Albania, and there was no definite indication that the missing C-47 came near the Communist country. In the past two months, however, a British cargo airliner and a United States Air Force jet trainer strayed too close to Albania and were forced to land. Those aboard were subsequently released.

400 Flee Chicago Hotel Fires.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (AP)— Fire drove 400 tenants from two south side hotels yesterday as more than 150 firemen fought the blaze in below-zero weather. No one was injured in the fire, but at least 100 persons who were made homeless were taken to the Jackson Park field house.

CITY DELEGATION SEEMS TO FAVOR LIFTING CEILING ON EARNINGS TAX

United Support of Legislators Expected —Proposal Formally Submitted to State Assembly.

An aldermanic proposal to remove the ceiling on the city earnings tax, submitted to the Missouri Legislature today, is expected to have the united support of St. Louis's State Senators and Representatives.

This appeared to be the sentiment of members of the St. Louis delegation following a breakfast at Hotel Chase yesterday attended by the aldermen and legislators at the invitation of the city Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The breakfast was followed by a closed meeting at which Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, Comptroller John H. Poelker and Aldermanic President Donald Gunn, members of the estimate board, outlined the city's financial needs for the coming fiscal year.

Limited Action.

Legislators appeared generally to go along with the view of Representative Joseph W. Martino, expressed Saturday, that legislative action at this time should be limited to removal of the one half of 1 per cent earnings tax ceiling and not attempt more involved legislation to authorize a graduated income tax.

The Board of Aldermen had adopted a resolution Friday asking Gov. James T. Blair to include with his earnings tax recommendation a proposal authorizing the city to institute a combination earnings and graduated income tax, with a scale of exemptions and deductions.

Martino, chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, in a statement Saturday criticized the aldermanic resolution as confusing and untimely, pointing out that if followed through it might result in alienating the vote of out-state legislators.

Amendment Emphasized.

The city officials emphasized to the legislators that in any event the earnings tax cannot be increased without a city charter amendment approved by 60 per cent of the voters. There was discussion also of the possibility that removal of the present earnings tax ceiling might permit enactment of some form of graduated tax.

Board President Gunn, commenting on the breakfast meeting, said he was optimistic about prospects for getting the needed legislation, but emphasized there had been no effort to get commitments from the legislators.

The city's prospective budget for the fiscal year starting in April is $62,440,000 and anticipated revenue from present sources is only $56,417,000. An earnings tax increase was recommended last fall by a citizens' committee created by the aldermen.

'PACIFIC EAGLE' COMMUTER TRAIN RUNS 2 HOURS LATE

The Missouri Pacific's commuter train, dubbed the "Pacific Eagle" by its patrons, was about two hours late fluttering into Union Station this morning from its overnight roost at Pacific. A defective brush in the diesel locomotive's generator caused a delay in starting the 34-mile run to the city.

Scheduled to leave Pacific at 6:20 a.m., the train departed at 8:30 o'clock. It arrived about 9:40 instead of the scheduled 7:57 o'clock.

Many of the commuter train's average 145 inbound passengers and its numerous "foul weather friends" who ride during unusual weather conditions apparently dashed home to get the family car when the train failed to appear on time, a Missouri Pacific spokesman said. The passenger load was lighter than usual.

The defective brush was replaced in 15 minutes, he said. "The rub was, an electrician had to drive from the railroad's shops here to Pacific to make the repairs," he added.

MAN'S CLOTHING IGNITED BY GAS HEATER FLAMES

Tony Deluca was burned severely yesterday when his clothing was ignited by flames of a gas heater in his home, 1847A Madison street.

Police were told that Deluca, 75 years old, was standing with his back to the heater when his clothing caught fire. His wife, Josephine, assisted in tearing off the burning clothing. Deluca is in serious condition in City Hospital.

Missouri-Illinois Forecasts

Illinois: Continued very cold tonight and tomorrow; mostly clear skies; low tonight 5 to 15 below in north to 10 below to 2 above in south; high tomorrow 2 to 12 above in north to 8 to 18 in south.

Ol' Man River Just About Frozen twice the amount used last year during the similar period.

About 1200 employes at the Chevrolet assembly plant and 3000 at Fisher Body assembly plant were placed on furlough today "until further notice" in line with Laclede's request to curtail use of gas.

Production at Fisher Body was halted completely and passenger car production at Chevrolet was stopped. About 1500 workers employed in the production of Chevrolet trucks and sports cars continued to work. About 200 construction company employes working on an expansion project at Chevrolet were told not to report to work.

At Midwest Piping Co., Inc., 1450 South Second street, about 500 employes were told not to report to work. The firm closed down in accordance with the gas company's request to limit gas consumption.

Request to Supplier.

During the first 16 days of February, Laclede supplied 5,500,000,000 cubic feet of gas. For the same period last year, the supply was three billion cubic feet. Mississippi River Fuel Co., Laclede's supplier, has been asked to divert its service from industrial users so Laclede can receive an additional 10,000,000 cubic feet a day more than the 334,000,000 cubic feet which is normally supplied.

In the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m. today, Laclede supplied consumers with 440,000,000 cubic feet, the largest output in the company's history. The supply of propane gas is dwindling to the point where continuation of propane gas service is jeopardized, the company warned.

On the East Side, a spokesman for Illinois Power Co., which supplies gas to industries and about 12,000 residential customers, said there has been a "normal" number of complaints of low gas pressure. The company has been putting a quantity of manufactured propane gas into the mains to supplement supplies of natural gas. As in St. Louis, industrial holders of "interruptible" contracts have been cut over to the use of oil instead of gas, it was stated.

About 40 home owners called the St. Louis water division yesterday and today to report frozen pipes. They were warned not to use blow torches to thaw them because the heat would probably melt the pipes. Some plumbing firms have devices which will thaw out water in pipes, the water division said. No city mains were affected by the weather.

The East St. Louis & Interurban Water Co. reported receiving an average of 75 calls daily over the weekend on freezing of pipes and meters and that extra crews were on the job.

The Corps of Engineers reported that river traffic has been severely hampered by ice forming in the Mississippi. At St. Louis, virtually all of the river is choked with floating ice.

Ice near the Chain of Rocks locks slowed traffic, but the Corps of Engineers reported vessels were moving through.

Most boats pushing barges upstream have been unable to get through heavy ice just north of Cairo, Ill. Yesterday seven towboats and 25 barges became caught in the ice-choked channel near Cairo. They were freed one at a time after hours of ice-breaking operations.

There are 100 barges at Cairo today, most of them there because the river is virtually impassable. Ice is beginning to gorge at Redrock, half-way between Cairo and St. Louis, the Corps of Engineers reported.

The Coast Guard reported it was sending two vessels with ice-breaking bows into this area to assist a Corps of Engineers ice breaker. One was heading toward Beardstown, Ill., 90 miles north of St. Louis on the Illinois river, where 10 boats are caught in the ice. The other Coast Guard craft was moving toward Cairo to join the Corps of Engineers boat in clearing the channel and replacing buoys which were displaced by ice floes.

At Monsanto, south of East St. Louis, 150 children of the Chartrand School, grades one through six, attended classes today in the village hall auditorium because of failure of the oil heating system in the school.

A total of 2211 calls from motorists was received by the Automobile Club of Missouri from midnight Saturday through this morning. Service stations were as much as two and a half hours behind in answering calls. A rush for more anti-freeze was reported by many dealers.

The storm was general over much of the eastern part of the nation, extending from Mississippi to New England.

Lebanon, N.H., recorded 27 inches of snow and Caribou, Me., reported 32 inches.

In Boston, a 37-year-old record was broken last night when 17 inches were measured. The city weather bureau spoke of "the wildest coastal storm of the winter." The old mark for a 24-hour snowfall in the city was 16½ inches, set in 1921.

23 Below in Carolina.

Eleven Connecticut communities declared states of emergency and similar steps were ordered in other New England states, New York and Pennsylvania. The big problem was drifts—some as high as a two-story building blocked highways and isolated entire towns.

The Upper Plains had readings such as 30 below zero at Bismarck, N.D., and 34 below at Danbury, Wis., the nation's low.

The temperature dropped to 23 degrees below zero early today on 6684-foot Mount Mitchell in North Carolina, the highest peak east of the Mississippi river. There were 28 inches of snow on the ground and winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour.

A freak blizzard over an area only about 20 miles square around Michigan City, Ind., dropped up to 48 inches of snow.

The city's 30,000 residents were almost completely isolated.

Washington, D.C., was paralyzed by a 14-inch snowfall. Thousands of government workers remained home today with White House approval. All schools were closed.

Travel between Washington and Alexandria, Va., was blocked for a time on U. S. Highway 1 because a snowplow was stuck in a drift.

An Army helicopter evacuated 18 Girl Scouts from a snowbound camp along the Potomac river in Virginia yesterday.

A National Guard tank was summoned to clear the way through drifts of snow several feet high so Mrs. Oscar Dancy, an expectant mother, could be moved from her home on Montana mountain, about four miles northwest of Washington, to a hospital.

Schools were closed in hundreds of communities. Industries and business offices were closed, and many Sunday church services were canceled.

In New York, Gov. Averell Harriman canceled all state police leaves. In Pennsylvania, Gov. George M. Leader mobilized key civilian defense units to aid the highway department.

Northeast Pennsylvania was crippled by its worst snow storm in 50 years. An estimated 40 to 45 inches fell in Wayne county.

The fall of 8½ inches in New York City was the heaviest in almost two years.

Throughout eastern New York and in other parts of the northeast, plane and bus service was canceled and trains were delayed. Power failures harassed many towns.

MRS. BARTH BACK IN JAIL, UNABLE TO RAISE $600

Mrs. Hazel E. Barth, unable to pay $600 on a total of $750 fines imposed for operating a nursing home without a license, was returned to jail today.

Mrs. Barth, who operated a home at 4517 Forest Park avenue, was released for one week last Monday on a stay-of-evecution bond to enable her to raise the $600. Her professional bondsman, Joseph Webbe, surrenreded Mrs. Barth in court today when she failed to obtain the money.

Mrs. Barth resisted efforts begun in 1956 to force improvements of the nudsing home or have it shut down. Ordered to jail Feb. 7 for failure to pay the remainder of the fines, she was held over the weekend before the one-wesk release was granted by Judge Louis Comerford of the Court of Criminal Correction.

MAN FOUND HANGED IN HOME

James M. Bone, operator of the South Side Recreation Rooms, a bowling alley at 3548 South Grand boulevard, was found hanged last night in his home, 2010A South Thirty-ninth street.

His wife, Mildred, found the body suspended by a belt from a shower curtain rod in the bathroom when she returned home from the bowling alley. She told police her husband had been despondent for several months over business conditions.

WORTMAN FIRM ACTS TO CHANGE AGENT IN STATE

Would Remove Brother of East Side Gang Boss — Step Follows Suit.

Miss Ann L. Barrett, bookkeeper and vice president of the Plaza Amusement Co., was designated registered agent for the pinball and jukebox firm operated by Frank (Buster) Wortman at 1912 Washington avenue in a document sent today to the Secretary of State at Jefferson City.

If approved, Miss Barrett will replace Edward (Ted) Wortman, brother of "Buster," as registered agent for the firm. The proposed change in agent is in answer to a suit filed here last week by Attorney General John M. Dalton seeking to dissolve the Plaza Co. on grounds the company failed to maintain a qualified registered agent in the state.

Edward Wortman's address was shown in an anti-trust affidavit filed with the state to be Route 1, Caseyville, Ill. The Attorney General contended that a properly qualified agent must live in Missouri.

Miss Barrett's address is given as 2212 Normandy drive, St. Louis county. Joseph Mosby, supervisor of the corporation division, said the state has 10 days in which the accept or reject, the change in the registered agent. If no action is taken within that period, the change takes effect automatically under the statutes.

Mosby said he will confer with Dalton before a decision is made in the matter. Missouri statutes provide that a corporation may be dissolved if it fails for 60 days to maintain a registered agent in the state.

An investigation of the Plaza Amusement Co. was ordered last week by Gov. James T. Blair after the Post-Dispatch reported that Wortman, East Side gang boss, was extending his operations in the vending machine business on both sides of the Mississippi river. The purpose of the investiagtion is to tighten regulation of vending machine firms.

The state's suit asked that Plaza's "rights, privileges and franchises" be declared forfeited and that its "stock, property, things in action and effects be distributed among the creditors and stockholders."

It also asked for appointment of a temporary receiver to take control of the firm's assets and operate the concern until a court hearing has been held.

The suit was assigned to the court of Circuit Judge David J. Murphy.

Mud Slides Derail Train.

FALLING PLASTER HITS MAN VISITING COUNTY BUILDING

Falling plaster yesterday convinced a visitor at county police headquarters, 9 North Meramec avenue, Clayton, that a recent grand jury was correct in urging that the building be repaired.

Karl Lee Hausmann, 8908 Oneida lane, Overland, was sitting in a chair when a piece of plaster, measuring about 30 inches by 4 inches, fell from the ceiling and struck him on the head and shoulder. He was treated at St. Louis County Hospital. Hausmann, 23 years old, had visited the station to inquire about an accident report.

A county grand jury report recently deplored the dilapidated condition of the structure, which once was a Masonic Hall.

GRAND JURY INDORSES TROOPERS' SEARCH POWER

A proposal by Gov. James T. Blair to give the Missouri Highway Patrol the power of search and seizure was indorsed by members of the December term circuit court grand jury today.

Bruno Sendlein, who served on the jury, said he and the other members were writing to the state Senators from St. Louis urging their support of the measure. It would give troopers authority to search for concealed weapons.

The grand jury said in its final report at the end of January: "If we propose to minimize the number of homicides, we should first minimize the instances of concealed weapons in the hands of unauthorized parties."

SIGNAL HILL FIRM GETS TV CHANNEL 2

Now Operating KTVI On Temporary Permit—Order Final in 50 Days.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Television Channel 2 at St. Louis has been allocated to Signal Hill Telecasting Corp., the Federal Communications Commission reported today. Signal Hill now operates on Channel 2, over Station KTVI, under a temporary permit.

The allocation was made in an initial decision by Hearing Examiner Herbert Sharfman and becomes final in 50 days unless objections are filed.

The FCC action followed an agreement, announced Feb. 6, between Signal Hill and the Louisiana Purchase Co., under which shareholders in Louisiana Purchase would buy new common stock to be issued by Signal Hill.

Louisiana Purchase would withdraw its application, thus ending a long controversy between the rival firms.

Louisiana shareholders who would individualy buy Signal Hill shares are Donald L. Barnes, D. L. Barnes Jr., Charles W. DeWitt, Wiliam O. DeWitt, L. M. Greenblatt Jr., Lon Hocker, Edwin B. Meissner Jr., G. J. Nooney, Bruce Barrington and Mr. and Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley.

JUNIOR COLLEGES PROPOSED IN STATE BY ELMER ELLIS

The establishment of junior colleges in the St. Louis area and elsewhere in the state, as a means of expanding Missouri's capacity of handling the increasing number of young people who want higher education, was advocated here yesterday by Elmer Ellis, president of the University of Missouri.

Ellis suggested that school districts be consolidated to provide a base for junior colleges. Under the plan he proposed, school districts would pay 40 per cent of the cost, the state another 40 per cent, and students the remainder.

Interviewed on the "Labor Views the News" program of Station KTVI, Ellis said Missouri's facilities for higher education should be doubled between now and 1970. By that date, he said, the student population is expected to double, or even triple, if present trends continue.

FAMILY AT CHURCH, FIRE DESTROYS HOME

All Belongings Lost—Cold Weather Hampers Firemen.

Fire destroyed the home of Bailey E. Birkhead on St. Charles road a mile and a half west of Lindbergh boulevard yesterday as Birkhead and his family were attending church.

Near zero temperatures hampered firemen fighting the blaze in the two-story frame dwelling. No one was injured.

Birkhead, 42 years old, and his wife, Virginia, both teachers at Brittany Junior High School, University City, had departed for church with their two teen-age children at 9:15 a.m. The fire was discovered at 11:15.

By 11:26, when County Patrolman George Booth and the Pattonville-Bridgeton Terrace Volunteer fire department arrived, flames were shooting out the second-floor windows.

Cause of the fire has not been determined. Booth said the house valued at $20,000 and the contents at $5000. All the Birkhead's belongings were destroyed.

Traffic was rerouted on St. Charles road. Hoses were strung about a half mile.

Several hundred persons gathered at the scene despite the cold weather. Equipment from the Robertson fire departmen and men from the West Overland and Maryland Heights fire departments helped fight the blaze.

House Inquiry

ing Col. Moore, "because he is not in the White House."

Investigation Not Complete.

Schwartz, who has become the center of a hot fight over his charges of White House interference in the work of regulatory agencies, testified last Thursday on the role of FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack in the Channel 10 case.

The ousted counsel said today his investigators had completed the Mack phase of the case before he was fired, but that other aspects of the matter were still under investigation and "not completed in certain aspects."

To refresh his recollection, Schwartz asked for permission to use material in the files of the subcommittee. His request was granted and at the afternoon session two letters from White House assistant Sherman Adams to Murray M. Chotiner were read.

Adams told Chotiner, who was campaign manager for Vice President Nixon in 1952, that he had conferred with the acting chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board in 1953 about an airline case pending before the C.A.B.

(The Post-Dispatch published Sunday the contents of the two letters, involving North American Airlines, Inc., a non-scheduled line now out of business.)

Later Fired By Nixon.

Chotiner, a California political figure, was fired by Nixon as his chief political adviser after a 1956 Senate investigation of alleged influence peddling by Chotiner.

The affidavit by Katzentine figured prominently in this morning's hearing. After Harris read parts of it, Schwartz said subcommittee investigators had verified that Col. Moore had stayed at the home of president Baker of National Airlines.

In the affidavit, as read by Harris, Katzentine said he had been told by two of his "best friends" that Col. Moore was involved in the Channel 10 case. Harris asked Schwartz if he knew who these two "best friends" were.

"I don't recall," Schwartz said.

An FCC hearing examiner, Herbert Sharfman, recommended in an initial decision that Channel 10 be awarded to Katzentine, who was the first of four applicants. Katzentine owns a radio station in Miami Beach.

Sharfman Overruled.

Sharfman was overruled by the majority of the FCC. Commissioner Mack joined McConnaughey, Doerfer and Lee in the vote to give the channel to the National Airlines subsidiary. Mack is a Democrat; the other three are Republicans.

In his affidavit, Katzentine said he called "some powerful Republicans in Washington" and they said he had no chance for the channel, Harris said. Katzentine's affidavit pointed out that he is a Democrat and added that he was told Channel 10 was "going to National Airlines."

After a good deal of sparring between Schwartz and some subcommittee members, Harris finally asked the witness whether he was ready to go into his charge that before he was fired as chief counsel he was preparing to hold hearing on "the machinations of the White Houte clique" in decisions by federal regulatory agencies.

Schwartz replied that all the material he had uncovered was in the possession of the subcommittee but that he had spent the weekend going over his recollection of the evidence and was ready to proceed.

He added, however, that his recollection would "not give a full picture." In some cases, he said, the subcommittee staff had "hard evidence," in other instances only "hearsay leads," and in some cases, "only suspicions."

'Unfair Suspicions.'

To bring out only his recollections, rather than holding public hearings with the persons involved being present, "may cast unfair suspicions," Schwartz went on.

What is needed, he said "is full public hearings at which persons with first-hand knowledge can testify and produce documentary evidence."

"You're the one that's been talking about it in the press and charging that this subcommittee was trying to cover it up," said Harris.

Schwartz then said "premature revelation" of the tips and leads received by the subcommittee staff "might well make it difficult or impossible to develop material at hearings."

He pointed out that when FCC Chairman Doerfer was questioned at an earlier hearing, he acknowledged that he and his wife were guests of George B. Storer, owner of a chain of television stations, at a time when Storer had a case pending before the FCC.

When he asked Doerfer about this, Schwartz said, he had only two telephone call slips showing that Doerfer had made calls from Storer's home. He said the FCC chairman apparently assumed that the subcommittee staff "knew all about" his visit at Storer's Miami home.

If he had known that the staff had only the two telephone call slips, he "might not have been so responsive" about the visit, Schwartz said. He told the subcommittee this was an example of how premature disclosure of material might hamper future hearings.

Question By Flynt.

At this point, Representative John J. Flynt Jr. (Dem.), Georgia, asked Schwartz: "Do you know anyone who has made more revelations than Bernard Schwartz?"

The former counsel replied that it was all right to discuss in advance the "general areas" in which hearings had been planned.

Representative John E. Moss (Dem.), California, another subcommittee member, said he was against "premature" disclosure of evidence. He pointed out that the subcommittee could always recall Schwartz when he was needed.

"There may be an element of unfairness to the persons involved," and the subcommittee may not get "the full story," unless public hearings are held, Schwartz said in the exchange that followed.

It was understood that Schwartz, who is professor of law at New York University, was disturbed over the fact that the subcommittee had him present his evidence on FCC Commissioner Mack at last Thursday's hearing, without Mack being present to testify.

"All this is well and good," Harris said, "but you should have thought of that before it all came out in the newspapers. We're trying to get the facts and refute the unfounded charge that the subcommittee tried ot stop the investigation."

Harris indicated that Schwartz would be asked to go on with his presentation of material on alleged White House interference.

Note to Russia

note that Moscow would prefer not to have a preliminary foreign ministers' meeting because of the alleged opposition of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to any negotiation. At his press conference shortly before he went on a brief vacation at Atlantic City, Dulles said that a meeting of foreign ministers was not essential prior to a summit conference. This was widely interpreted as an abrupt reversal of the previous Administration view.

Mr. Eisenhower's note was delivered to the Kremlin in Moscow yesterday by Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson. Thompson recently returned to the Soviet Union after consultations here and it is believed, despite official denials, that he was empowered to carry on private negotiations looking to possible agreement on subjects to be taken up at a summit meeting. The conviction has grown in recent weeks that such a meeting will be held perhaps as early as mid-summer.

Criticizes Soviet Reasoning.

"I wrote that, if there were to be a top level meeting," Mr. Eisenhower said of the impasse for which he blamed Moscow, "I would be willing to discuss your proposals in good faith if you would so discuss mine. Your answer is that I must be prepared to discuss your proposals but as regards mine there must, you said, 'be unanimous agreement of all participants as to the necessity for considering such proposals.' In other words you demand the right to veto discussions of the matters I believe to be vital to peace."

The President had mentioned in his earlier note as one of the topics for discussion the right of the peoples of eastern Europe, presently under Soviet domination, to have governments of their own choosing. This drew fire from Khrushchev. The Communists have always taken any reference to the satellites as "meddling" in the internal affairs of these nations.

As he had done previously, the President brought up his proposal to eliminate the veto power in the Security Council of the United Nations. Bulganin had rejected this as making the council in effect a "world government."

The President also reiterated the American stand in favor of an end of nuclear tests if this is linked with the termination of production of fissionable material. The Soviets have consistently rejected the latter condition.

"I noted," the President wrote, "that Mr. Khrushchev devoted a considerable part of his Minsk speech to a discussion of conditions in Hungary, Poland and East Germany. Does the Soviet Union claim such a proprietary interest in these lands and people that to discuss them is solely a matter of Soviet domestic concern? If not, and if these lands and people can be discussed by Soviet leaders as an international problem, why cannot we both discuss them?"

Cultural Exchanges.

At the end of his six-page letter, the President suggested that the recent agreement on cultural exchanges with the Soviet Union be expanded so that influential Soviet citizens could visit America and clear up what he said were their "totally false conceptions" of conditions here. He also said he believed the exchange of students agreed to—only 20 to 30 a year—was far too narrow and should be expanded.

In closing, he referred to the statements made on the fortieth anniversary of the Russian revolution last November and the Soviet indorsement of the recent African-Asian conference in Cairo. These statements, the President said, belie their protestations of a desire for peaceful agreement with the United States.

Both in November and recently in indorsing the anti-colonial conference in Cairo the Soviets indicated that Communism would triumph throughout the world.

"In the meantime," Mr. Eisenhower concluded, "I reaffirm what has been so often said by Secretary Dulles and by myself. The American nation wants nothing more than to co-operate wholeheartedly with any Soviet government which is genuinely dedicated to advancing, by peaceful means, the welfare of the Soviet Union. It should, however, be appreciated how difficult it is to generate here the goodwill which the Soviet leaders claim they want, so long as there remains between our two countries the vast gulf of misunderstanding and misrepresentation that is again revealed by both speeches and written communications of Soviet leaders."

"When the United States alone possessed atomic weapons and the Soviet Union possessed none, the United States proposed to forego its monopoly in the interest of world peace and security," Mr. Eisenhower said in response to Khrushchev's statement at Minsk that the United States in proposing to control outer space wanted "to prohibit that which they do not possess."

"We are prepared to take the same attitude now in relation to outer space," the President's note continued. "If this peaceful purpose is not realized, and the worse than useless race of weapons goes on, the world will have only the Soviet Union to blame, just as it has only the Soviet Union to blame for the fact that atomic and nuclear power are now being used increasingly for weapons purposes instead of being dedicated wholly to peaceful uses as the United States proposed a decade ago."

Mr. Eisenhower pointed to the United States's initiation of the Kellogg pact in the 1920s outlawing war and the renunciation of force in the United Nations Charter as evidence of the American desire to insure peace in the world. The Soviets have repeatedly put forward a non-aggression pact as one of the chief goals of a summit meeting.

FIVE MEN ARE STABBED IN ARGUMENT AT TAVERN

Five men were stabbed, two of them seriously, in a fight and argument at the Alarm Tavern, 3025 Union boulevard, shortly before midnight Saturday. All were booked for police court for peace disturbance.

Police were told that Maurice Donohue, 22-year-old laborer, who had argued with another man at the bar, cried out he had been stabbed. The other man started to flee, but was overtaken by Donohue and several companions, and a scuffle for the knife took place.

Injured, in addition to Donodue, were John Cody, 46, laborer, 4957 Margaretta avenue, lacerations of the legs; Donald Miller, 30, laborer, 4260 Red Bud avenue, cuts of the leg and arm; Thomas Cody, 21, laborer, 8612 Henry avenue, Jennings, cut right leg, and Lennie Bullard, 34, laborer, living at the Union Hotel, lacerations of the chin and eyelid. The others told police that Bullard wielded the knife. Bullard denied cutting anyone.

564 U.S. NEWSPAPERS SELL FOR MORE THAN 5 CENTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—The American Newspaper Publishers Association reported today that an increasing number of daily newspapers in the United States have had to increase their street sale prices because of steadily rising wages and production costs.

The A.N.P.A., reporting on a survey, said that out of 1720 daily newspapers, constituting 98 per cent of the country's daily English-language papers, 564 now sell on newstands for 6, 7 or 10 cents. This was 185 more than in April 1957.

Only 1135 papers now sell for 5 cents, a decrease of 193 from 1957, and 459 from 1951, when the largest number of papers sold for 5 cents, Williams said

Prices for Sunday papers also have increased, he said. Seven sell for 25 cents; 80 for 20 cents, and 198 for 10 cents. A total of 237 sold for 10 cents in 1957.

SPRING AVENUE VIADUCT PERMIT PLEA UNDER STUDY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17—An application by the city of St. Louis for permission to build the proposed $1,700,000 Spring avenue viaduct over Mill Creek Valley, from Clark avenue to Gratiot street, was taken under advisement by the Missouri Public Service Commission after a brief hearing today.

Assistant Traffic Commissioner Ellis C. Henry of St. Louis testified that the viaduct, a 1955 bond issue project, would eliminate a grade crossing of the Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Wabash Railroads traversed by an average of 244 train and engine movements daily.

Under an agreement for division of costs, the city will pay $860,000 for the 1494-foot concrete and steel structure, the state $391,000 and the railroads $449,000. The viaduct will relieve traffic on Grand boulevard, a block east.

5 CHRYSLER CORP. PLANTS SHUT DOWN, 13,100 IDLE

DETROIT, Feb. 17 (UP)—Five Chrysler Corp. plants were closed today with 13,100 workers idle, but several plants were due to resume work tomorrow.

Ford Rouge assembly plant is also closed for the week, laying off 4000.

DeSoto division, closed down last week to adjust inventories, offset the new Chrysler layoffs somewhat as it reopened, calling about 2000 workers back.

Underwater TV in Russia.

MOSCOW, Feb. 17 (AP)—The Soviet Union is developing television to study marine life and to aid navigation, the newspaper Soviet Fleet said yesterday. It said an underwater TV camera has been tested successfully in the Black sea.

'Trip' to Moon

might have been a little restless, but I wouldn't say that Friday was any different from the other days."

Throughout the seven days, Farrell breathed the same repurified air over and over in his 3-by-5-foot steel cubicle.

Scientists had feared his greatest trials would be psychological—boredom and loneliness. Farrell said he was affected by neither.

Ready for Another Test.

He said he would not hesitate to volunteer for another seven-day test. When asked if he would volunteer for a possible 30-day test, he replied: "My services are available to the school."

Farrell said that an unmarked button inside the cabin that would have stopped the experiment at any time held no particular fascination for him.

"I never considered punching the panic button," he said. "I didn't even look at it much."

Back home in the Bronx, his parents were pleased that he came out grinning. "Wonderful news," said Mr. and Mrs. James A. Farrell.

"Hurray for Don!" shouted a 12-year-old foster brother, Ernest.

In Niagara Falls, N. Y., his girl friend, Miss Jo Ann Burden, smiled and said, "I'm glad it's over." When she heard that Farrell had said he "really didn't have time to think about her," she said: "Oh that's all right. I don't care."

Stretches Himself.

When Farrell crawled out of the cabin he stretched to his full 6-foot height for the first time in a week. Only by shifting scientific equipment that almost filled the cabin was Farrell able to partly lie down for his 4½-hour sleeping periods.

With more shifting, he gained a scant square foot in which to stand stooped and take a few exercises.

"I believe I was afforded ample space for the duties performed," he said.

Farrell said he had plenty to eat and ate everything put inside the cabin "from Vienna sausage to quail's eggs."

"The eggs were boiled and canned," he said. "I think maybe someone intended them for a surprise but they were quite good."

May Go to College.

The youth remained poised and calm throughout a 30-minute press conference with about 50 reporters and photographers. He studiously answered all questions concerning the study of space travel. He quit high school before graduating but has obtained a high school certificate by studying since being in the Air Force. He plans to enter some college this September after completing his Air Force service and major in aeronautical engineering.

He took a textbook on accounting and another on English grammar into the test cabin with him. "But I didn't get any studying done," he said. "I might as well not have taken them in there."

After the press conference Farrell was placed in the Randolph Base Hospital for about 72 hours of observation and post-experiment tests. Thursday or Friday he will fly to New York for a round of radio and TV appearances.

'Man Can Survive.'

Dr. Hubertus Strughold, adviser to the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine, said the experiment proved that a man can exist alone confined in a small area and that this country has equipment for keeping him alive in actual space flight.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon D. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, said the test showed "the greatest opportunity for peace that has come in our time." Johnson flew here from his Texas ranch to greet Farrell.

"This proves man can live in space seven days," Johnson said. "It may be just a matter of time before man can prove that man can live in space period."

The newly formed Senate Space Committee will talk to Farrell, Dr. Strughold and other scientists of the school Feb. 26 in Washington, Johnson said.

FRANCE, TUNISIA ACCEPT OFFER OF U.S. AND BRITISH

TUNIS, Feb. 17 (UP) — France and Tunisia today accepted a joint United States-British offer to help solve the Tunisian dispute. Tunisia immediately eased its blockade of 22,000 French troops.

First indications were the joint acceptance would mean a postponement of the United Nations Security Council meeting on Tunisia and the Algerian rebellion, scheduled for tomorrow.

The American offer was presented to France in Washington, the United States embassy in Paris said. The British offer was presented to the French foreign office this morning by Ambassador Sir Gladwyn Jebb.

The joint offer was presented in Tunis yesterday by United States Ambassador Lewis Jones and British Ambassador Edward Malcolm to Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba.

Withdrawal Demand.

Tunisia's demand for complete withdrawal of all French troops must be accepted "in principle" before Tunisia will open direct talks with Paris, a Tunisian Foreign Ministry spokesman said tonight.

The spokesman said Tunisia woudl demand a timetable for the withdrawal of the French soldiers, sailors and airmen, which it would like to see carried out by Tunisian independence day, March 20.

The Tunisian government announced earlier today that it had accepted British-American offers of their "good offices" to solve its dispute with France.

The spokesman said Tunisia might be willing to suspend its complaint to the United Nations if France accepted the principle of withdrawal.

He warned, however, that evacuation must be carried out "within a reasonable period of time." He said that although Tunisia would like the troops out by March 20 the Tunisian government would not insist on this date.

Sources in both Tunisia and France stressed that the offer of "good offices" did not mean arbitration or mediation—that London and Washington would relay proposals of the two governments. But the acceptance by both countries meant a notable easing of the tension that could have exploded into further violence because of Tunisian resentment at the French bombing of Sakiet Sidi Youssef.

Could Weaken Position.

The United States has been particularly anxious to prevent the North African question being used as a sounding board in the United Nations for Communist propaganda that could weaken the western position in North Africa.

France was dead set against U.N. discussion of Algeria which it considers a domestic problem.

Tunisian President Bourguiba threatened yesterday to open the entire question of the Algerian rebellion in the U.N. General Assembly.

Official sources said negotiations already had started on how to use the American-British offer. The negotiations presumably would be handled by the various ambassadors in Tunis and Paris.

Within minutes, the Tunisian government announced it had agreed in principle to let food and other supplies through to 22,000 French troops confined to their bases, the French embassy announced in Tunis.

Troops Moved Up.

Tunisia has alternately eased and tightened the blockade of French bases in Tunisia. Yesterday, Bourguiba moved up troop reinforcements to France's big naval base at Bizerte. Tunisian newspapers said Tunisia was expected to publish a decree today ending France's treaty-given rights to use the base.

A Soviet ship unloaded 28 tons of relief supplies for Algerian refugees in Tunisia today. If the shipment was intended as a propaganda attempt it was a flop. Tunisian officials gave no advance publicity to the arrival.

Ambassador Jones visited Bourguiba yesterday at his home near Carthage and it was believed the talks concerned the "good offices" offer—an offer to handle diplomatic negotiations without actually arbitrating the dispute.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles cut short a vacation at Atlantic City, N.J., today and returned to Washington to take personal charge of the United States efforts to avoid a U.N. clash between Franch and Tunisia.

U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold was reported to have intervened, in the Tunisian crisis to prevent further flareups. Informed sources said he was responsible for the fragile working agreement under which Tunisian shopkeepers are supplying isolated French bases.

FEDERATION OK'D IN IRAQ

BAGHDAD, Feb. 17 (UP)—Both houses of the Iraqi Parliament today ratified the Iraq-Jordan federation in a joint session.

One hundred sixty Deputies and Senators voted unanimous approval in a session held in the lower house.

Bavarian Prince Killed.

SAN CARLOS DE BARILOCHE, Argentina, Feb. 17 (UP)—Prince Heinrich of Bavaria was killed and two members of his family were injured Thursday when the jeep in which they were touring western Argentina overturned and plunged into a ravine near here. The prince's sister, Irmingard, and her husband, Prince von Byern, suffered slight injuries.

AUTOS COLLIDE; MAN KILLED, YOUTH HURT

A man was killed and a youth seriously injured today when the automobiles they were driving collided on Tesson Ferry road (Route 21) one-half mile south of Lindbergh boulevard, St. Louis county. Their names were not learned immediately.

St. Louis county police said the youth was driving north on Tesson Ferry. His brakes apparently locked when he attempted to slow down because of a machine in front, police reported.

The youth's machine skidded sideways across the road and collided with a southbound machine, driven by the man. County police had to pry the wreckage apart to extricate the man's body. He was dead on arrival at St. Louis County Hospital. The youth was taken to County Hospital also.

$25 TRAFFIC FINE LEVIED AGAINST ROBBERY SUSPECT

A $25 fine for speeding was assessed today by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd against Forrest A. Parker, former convict held in the Granite City jail, after an attorney representing Parker entered a plea of guilty.

Parker was charged with driving 50 miles an hour in a 40-mile zone on the Third Street Interregional Highway last Jan. 18. Police found two pistols and three Halloween masks in his machine. A charge of carrying concealed weapons is pending against Parker.

Parker, 25 years old, is one of three men charged with a $6642 holdup last Jan. 31 at Jacobsmeyer's tavern, 2401 Edwards street, Granite City. The money was recovered in an apartment where police arrested Parker, Marvin Dale Berry, a former convict, and Robert Burns. Parker was acquitted by a jury last December of the charge of robbery in the theft of $10,900 from Bettendorf's super market, 8964 Riverview drive, last March 4.

POLAND SAYS ATOM PLAN MAY BRING ARMS CUT

WARSAW, Feb. 17 (UP)—Poland told the West in a note published today that acceptance of the Polish plan for creating a nuclear weapons free zone in central Europe could pave the way for an accord to cut conventional arms and withdraw troops from the area.

In a memorandum to representatives of NATO and neutral nations, the Polish government proposed the establishment of land and air inspection of the "de-nuclearized zone" by an international commission.

The plan, as previously put forward by Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, proposed a bar on the use and manufacture of nuclear weapons in a zone to include Poland, Czechoslovakia and East and West Germany.

The note released today by the Foreign Ministry further proposed the barring of the use of atomic weapons against the territory of the de-nuclearized zone or any targets situated in the area.

The new Polish memorandum, delivered last weekend, spelled out previously revealed details on the Rapacki plan but added:

"The government of the Polish people's republic has reasons to state that acceptance of the proposal concerning the establishment of a de-nuclearized zone in central Europe facilitates the reaching of an agreement relating to an adequate reduction of conventional armaments and of foreign armed forces stationed on the territory of the states included in the zone."

It was the first official mention that the plan might be broadened to include conventional arms and troops, thus leading to complete disarmament and neutralization of central Europe.

The note also showed the Poles were ready to accept ground and air inspection of the entire zone to insure compliance with provisions of the plan.

(In London and Washington, official spokesmen said they were "studying" the Polish note.

(In Berlin, Western observers saw the proposal for barring use of atomic weapons against the de-nuclearized zone as placing the West at a serious disadvantage in case of a "brush fire" war in the area.)

AUTOPSY IN ACTOR'S DEATH

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 17 (AP)—An autopsy has been ordered to determine the cause of the death of actor Phillip Van Zandt, whose body was found yesterday in his apartment. A bottle of sleeping pills was beside him. He was 54 years old.

Van Zandt has played more than 400 character roles in Hollywood. He was born in Amsterdam, Holland, began his theatrical career in 1927, and was in many stage plays in New York and on the road. His most recent movie role was in "Around the World in 80 Days."

YOUTH, 17, ADMITS ASSAULTING GIRL

A 17-year-old former reformatory inmate, arrested Saturday, has confessed and been identified as the man who criminally assaulted a 14-year-old girl at knife-point in the 2300 block of Madison street last Feb. 6, police reported today.

The youth identified himself as Joe Edward Johnson, living in the 1800 block of Cass avenue.

He was arrested near his home by Detectives John Holman and Herbert Austermann of the Lucas Avenue District, who had been looking for him for several days.

The officers reported Johnson, a Negro, admitted also the attempted attack Jan. 4 of an expectant mother in her home in the 1600 block of Mullanphy street and the slugging of Mrs Charles Baney, mother of two small children, in her home at 1211 Howard street Jan. 28.

Johnson was identified by Mrs. Baney as her assailant. The victim of the attempted attack was to view the prisoner at Lucas Avenue police station.

In the attack on the 14-year-old girl, Johnson admitted forcing her onto the porch of a vacant house, slapping her before the assault, then dragging her to a garage in the rear, tearing off her clothing and assaulting her again. She ran home hysterical and then underwent surgery at City Hospital for severe lacerations.

In the beating of Mrs. Baney, Johnson kicked in a door, threatened her children and ordered her into a bedroom, then struck her after she ran to the rear door. Her husband had left for church a short time earlier.

As a juvenile Johnson had served terms in Missouri Hills Training School and the Training School for Boys at Boonville.

Mack

was chairman at the time. Listed under Mack on the letterhead is the name "Jerry W. Carter, commissioner," another figure in the complicated case.

The letter follows:

"Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, Tallahassee

19 July 1951

"Federal Communications Commissions

"Washington, D.C.

"Gentlemen:

"This commission has been informed that Mr. A. F. Katzentine, owner and operator of radio station WKAT of Miami, Florida, has applied to your commission for a certificate to operate a television station.

"Mr. Katzentine is a pioneer resident of Miami and has been an outstanding business and civic leader for years.

"The manner in which he operates station WKAT is a credit to his community and the state of Florida. Mr. Katzentine also operates the Muzak Corp. in Miami. His contracts with the Southern Bell Telephone Company for private wires have to be approved by this commission in accordance with Florida's so-called "anti-bookie law." No contract submitted by Mr. Katzentine has been denied.

"This letter is written with the thought that it might be of some assistance to you at such time as Mr. Katzentine's application is considered.

"Yours Sincerely.
RICHARD A. MACK
Chairman."

Dates of Applications.

Katzentine, former mayor of Miami Beach and president of the Miami Crime Commission, applied for the disputed Channel 10 in that southern resort city on May 1, 1945. National Airlines applied to the FCC for the channel in October, 1953, some two years after Mack wrote his letter praising Katzentine. Two other applicants, a group of local business men and a Cincinnati radio station, also got into the four-way fight.

The FCC held hearings on the case from June 23, 1954, to August 9, 1954. Then FCC examiner Herbert Sharfman held hearings, and in March 1955 he strongly recommended Katzentine and found the airline subsidiary "least qualified," Schwartz testified.

President Eisenhower nominated Mack, Coral Gables (Fla.) Democrat, May 27, 1955, and he took office July 7 of that year. On Feb. 8, 1957, the FCC reversed Sharfman and awarded the channel to National in a 4-to-2 vote, with Mack siding with the majority. WPST-TV, the National station, went on the air last August.

Purchase Challenged.

The airline purchased the facilities of a now-defunct UHF station from George B. Storer, television chain owner, in a $600,000 deal now being challenged by Katzentine in the United States Court of Appeals in Washington. Arnold, Fortas & Porter, attorneys for Katzentine, contend the FCC might have acted differently if it had known of the "secret terms" of the transaction. Storer figured in the current hearings two weeks ago when FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer testified he was guest of Storer on a flying junket to Miami and the Bahamas in August 1955.

It was learned that Carter, one of five Miamians "invited" by the subcommittee to testify Tuesday, has informed Representative Oren Harris (Dem.), Arkansas, subcommittee chairman, that he has other business. Whiteside has agreed to come to Washington, and the House unit was awaiting replies from the other.

in-law had cabled them that authorities said Hobbs was safe. She said two small daughters live at Seoul.

(Hobbs, who formerly flew in Japan for the Chennault Airlines and for the Ethiopian Airlines, had worked for KNA for about two months. Mrs. Hobbs is the former Miss Norma Flesner, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Eibert, live at Quincy, Ill.)

A United States Air Force officer, Lt. Col. Howard W. McClellan of Buchanan, Mich., was acting as co-pilot. A United Nations spokesman said American officers often fly with the line to log extra flight time and pay.

Soldier Under False Name.

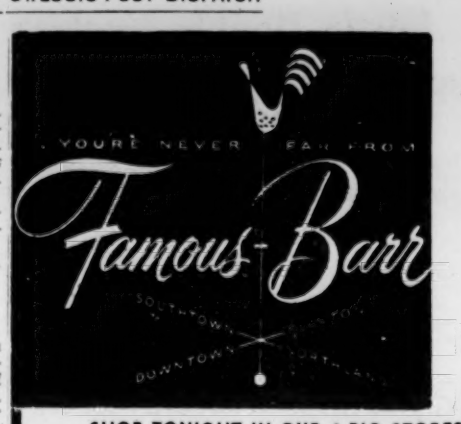

South Korean police checked the families of the 28 Koreans aboard and said that at least one soldier was listed on the flight manifest under a false name.

K.N.A. said the airliner carried 28 passengers and a crew of four. Among those on board were a Korean air force information officer, Col. Kim Ki Wan; a member of the National Assembly who belongs to President Rhee's Liberal party, Yoo Bong Soon, and a West German businessman and his wife.

The airline resumed regular flights from Pusan to Seoul today, but each passenger was searched for weapons. Personal searches were halted some time ago after passengers complained, and none had been made before yesterday's flight.

Planning Meatless Meals Can Be a Challenge to Homemaker, Rather Than a Burden

Canned Tuna Fish a Real Boon to the Homemaker During Lenten Season

TUNA FISH AND RICE BALLS make a tempting Lenten dish. This is just one of the many ways in which versatile tuna can be used in meatless menus, since the fish combines well with so many other foods.

Ever stop to wonder what the homemaker would do without good old tuna on the closet shelf? There it is, ready to be used at a moment's notice for all sorts of tempting main dishes or salads. A standby throughout the year, it is especially valuable during the Lenten season.

There are dozens of ways to use this richly flavored aristocrat of the canned fish world. Tuna combines well with creamed foods, salads, casseroles, sandwiches, left - overs, eggs, biscuit mix, cheese, avocados, soups—but why go on?

For the main dish of a Lenten meal, try those crisp little tuna fish and rice balls pictured above. They are made like this:

Tuna Fish and Rice Balls.

Two cups cooked rice.
Seven-ounce can tuna fish (drained).
Two eggs, beaten lightly.
Three-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon ground black pepper.
Three-fourth teaspoon curry powder.
Two teaspoons instant minced onion.
Two tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs.

Combine all ingredients. Mix well and shape into 12 balls. Fry in hot deep fat. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve at once.

Yield: Six servings.

Or you may want to clip this story, and save it for use in the weeks to come. In this way you can serve tuna once a week without repeating the same recipe.

Tuna Turnovers.

One can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna.
One-third cup chopped salted peanuts.
One - half cup condensed cream of celery soup.
One tablespoon grated onion.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
Two cups pastry mix.

Drain tuna. Flake. Combine all ingredients except pastry mix. Prepare pastry as directed. Roll very thin and cut into 12 circles, 5 inches each.

Place two tablespoons of filling in center of each circle. Moisten edges with cold water; fold over and press edges together with a fork. Prick tops.

Place on cooky sheet, 15½ by 12 inches. Bake in a very hot oven, 450 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes or until brown. Yield: Six servings.

Tuna Casserole With Toasted Almond Sauce.

Two cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) tuna.
Two packages (10 ounces each) frozen asparagus.
One-half cup chopped blanched almonds.
One-fourth cup butter or other fat, melted.
One-fourth cup flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash pepper.
Dash nutmeg.
Two cups milk.
One tablespoon sherry (optional).
Paprika.

Drain tuna. Flake. Cook asparagus as directed on package. Arrange in the bottom of a well-greased baking pan, 11x 7x1½ inches.

Place tuna over asparagus.

Fry almonds in butter until lightly brown. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add sherry. Pour over tuna and asparagus. Sprinkle with paprika.

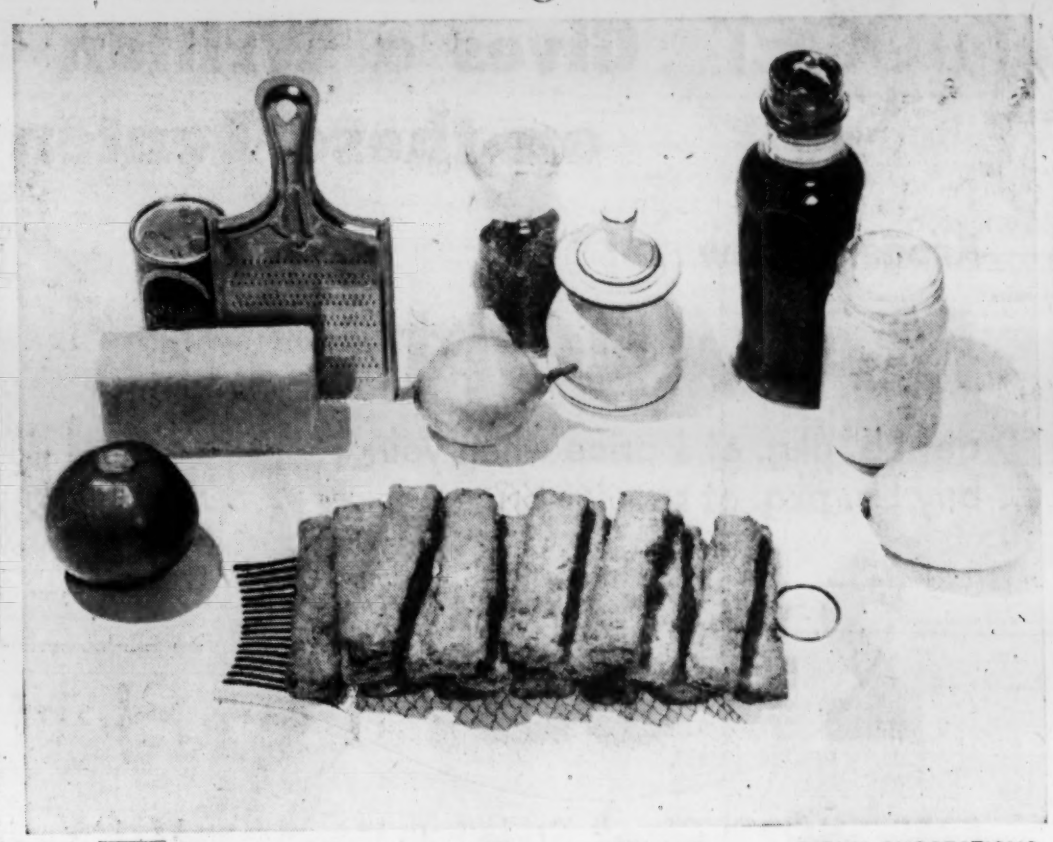

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for 25 to 30 minutes. Serves six.

Toasted Tuna French Loaf.

One can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna.
One-fourth cup butter or margarine.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
One small loaf French broad.
One tablespoon grated onion.

WHOLE FAMILY NOW 'FISH STICK HAPPY'

When youngsters not only eat fish but like it, and like it so well that they come back for "seconds," mother has gone a long way toward solving her Lenten menu problems. And that is just what children are doing since fish sticks have taken the country by storm.

Ever since fish sticks were introduced, small fry have taken to them like the proverbial ducks to water. They like the long, slim shape, the crisp texture, and the variety of ways in which they are served.

Just as "fish stick happy" is mother, who knows the value of energy building high protein seafoods in the diet. Her enthusiasm stems from two sources—convenience and economy. Her whole fish problem is neatly wrapped up in one convenient fish stick.

Just for the sake of variety, here are a few serving suggestions.

Arrange fish sticks on baking sheet. Cover each stick with one of the following, then heat as directed on the package.

1. Chili sauce.
2. Prepared mustard and celery salt.
3. Sauteed chopped onions.
4. Grated American or Parmesan cheese.
5. Strip of American or Swiss cheese.

Heat fish sticks as directed on the package. Serve with any one of the following

Cottage Cheese Patties

Cottage cheese, blended with several vegetables and seasonings, forms the basis of Surprise Cottage Cheese Patties, which are flavorful, easy to prepare, and economical.

Cottage cheese is such an indispensable item in the salad and sandwich kingdom that its real versatility sometimes is overlooked. Far from being limited to salads and sandwiches, it can be used in appetizers, breads, main dishes and desserts. It contains most of the vitamins and minerals of milk, and combines well with fruits and vegetables.

Since it is rich in calcium and protein, it can be used as the protein food in the main course of meatless meals. Here creamed cottage cheese, blended with several vegetables and seasonings, forms the basis of Surprise Patties which are flavorful, easy to prepare, and economical.

Surprise Patties.

One small onion.
One-fourth cup finely grated green pepper.
One medium carrot.
Sprigs of parsley.
Two cups soft bread crumbs.
Two cups creamed cottage cheese (one pound).
One-half teaspoon paprika.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon salt.
One egg.
Two tablespoons water.
Cracker or cereal crumbs.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.

Grate onion, pepper and carrot very fine; chop parsley fine and crumble bread. Mix vegetables into cottage cheese, then seasonings. Blend in bread

MENU SUGGESTIONS FOR WEEKS AHEAD

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

Just mention "Lenten menus" to most women, and a shadow of dismay immediately crosses their faces. They have come to look upon the task of planning meatless meals as an ordeal, but actually this is largely a state of mind. If one stops to analyze the situation it soon becomes apparent that the Lenten season, although a time of fasting, has through the ages been responsible for producing some of the world's finest dishes.

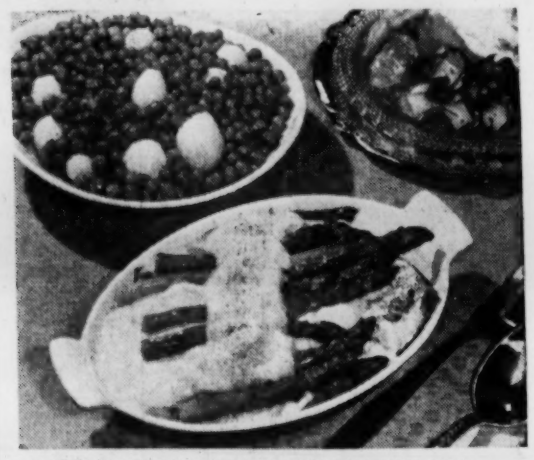

Take cheese fondue, for example, which has been known in Europe as a traditional Lenten dish since the thirteenth century. Or consider Welsh rabbit, once an English savory served after sweets, which became a main dish for Lent in medieval England. Actually, Lenten menus can be a challenge rather than a burden—an opportunity for a welcome change of pace in meal patterns.

All kinds of cheese, milk, eggs, seafood, vegetables, rice and macaroni products provide a wide selection for variety in daily meal planning. Whether served alone or in combination with other foods, there are many ways to use these fine protein foods in every meal.

To help you with your Lenten meal planning, here are

Try Combination Dishes of Frozen Vegetables and Seafoods for Lent

FROZEN ASPARAGUS AND HALIBUT DIVAN is prepared upside-down so that the frozen halibut steaks bake while the frozen asparagus cooks top-stove style. Serve this delicious quick casserole with frozen peas that have been cooked with small white onions, and frozen strawberries for dessert.

There is extra color and unusual flavor in the casseroles you can make for Lent that combine frozen vegetables with seafoods. The two main dish recipes given below prove it.

When planning for the Upside Down Asparagus Halibut Divan, count on the asparagus to provide some of the vitamins A and C and some of the B vitamins your family needs in the daily diet. Look to the frozen cut corn and the frozen green peas in the Frozen Vegetable - Shrimp Casserole for some of the Vitamin C and some of the B vitamins also important in the family's meals.

The Divan is suggested for dinner when you can allow only about half an hour for getting the meal. The Frozen Vegetable - Shrimp Casserole takes an hour of baking, so it is the dish to serve when you want something you can put together and just leave to oven-cook.

Upside-Down Asparagus Halibut Divan.

Three or four frozen halibut steaks (one lb. package), partially defrosted.
Salt.
One teaspoon lemon juice.
Four tablespoons melted butter or margarine.
One package frozen asparagus spears.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One cup milk.
Two egg yolks, beaten.
Four tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese.

Defrost halibut steaks by allowing to stand at room temperature for one hour. Start oven heating at 350 degrees (moderate). Turn steaks into greased shallow casserole; sprinkle with a bit of salt, one teaspoon lemon juice, and two tablespoons butter or margarine. Place in oven to start heating while cooking asparagus spears.

Cook asparagus spears according to directions on the package, but until not quite tender (they will be further cooked in sauce in the oven). Melt remaining two tablespoons butter or margarine in saucepan. Add to it the flour, salt, and pepper. Stir until smooth; then stir in milk and heat while stirring constantly until thickened. Pour this white sauce over beaten egg yolks while stirring.

Place cooked and drained asparagus spears over halibut steaks in baking dish and top with the egg sauce. Sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese over all. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 minutes or until delicately browned. Yield: three or four servings.

Frozen Vegetable-Shrimp Casserole.

Two seven or eight-ounce packages frozen peeled deveined shrimp.
One package frozen cut corn.
One package frozen peas.
One can frozen cream of shrimp soup.
One-half cup chopped onion.
One-fourth cup chopped green pepper.
Two teaspoons salt.
Pepper.

Remove frozen shrimp, corn, peas, and cream of shrimp soup from freezer. Let stand at room temperature to partially defrost while preparing other ingredients. Place can of frozen soup under running water to completely defrost.

Grease one and one-half-quart casserole. Chop onion and green pepper. To prepare corn for casserole, strike package against kitchen work surface to separate kernels. Turn corn into casserole. Top with half of chopped green pepper and onion and one package of the frozen shrimp. Sprinkle with one teaspoon salt and pepper to taste.

Prepare peas for casserole by striking package against hard surface. Turn peas into cas-

Two tablespoons butter or margarine.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two and a half cups milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One-fourth cup finely diced celery.
Six eggs, slightly beaten.

Melt butter, add flour and blend. Gradually add milk and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and celery, and slowly pour mixture into slightly beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly.

Pour into six medium custard cups, set in pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 minutes, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve with cheese sauce.

Yield: Six servings.

Cheese Sauce

Three tablespoons butter or margarine.
Four tablespoons flour.
Two cups milk, scalded.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One cup grated American cheese.

Melt butter in saucepan over low heat and blend in flour. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly and cook until sauce is smooth and thickened; add seasonings. Fold in grated cheese, stirring until melted. Six servings.

One teaspoon salt.

Wash beans, remove ends, leaving beans whole. Cook in boiling, salted water until tender. Scrape potatoes and cook in boiling, salted water until tender. Melt butter in saucepan over low heat and blend in flour. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly and cook until sauce is smooth and thickened. Add cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Add mustard and salt. Pour cheese sauce onto a warm platter and arrange potatoes and beans in it. Yield: Six servings.

VERSATILE SALMON A MENU BOOSTER

A pantry shelf which contains several cans of pretty pink salmon is just like money in the bank for the homemaker during the Lenten season, since this protein-packed food can be used in so many ways.

Try serving this salmon a la King in a rice ring and see just how attractive it is.

Salmon Peas a la King - Olive Rice Ring.

Four cups hot cooked rice.
One-half cup butter, or margarine.
Three-fourths cup slivered ripe olives.
One can (three to four ounces) mushrooms.
One-fourth cup flour.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One can (16 ounces) salmom.
Top milk, or light cream.
One tablespoon worcestershire sauce.
One can (16 to 17 ounces) peas.

Mix rice, one-fourth cup butter, and olives. Pack into a buttered ring mold. Set in a pan of hot water and cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 minutes.

Brown drained mushrooms (reserving liquid) in remaining one-fourth cup of butter. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Combine mushrooms and salmon liquids with enough top milk to make two cups liquid. Stir into flour mixture and cook until thickened, stirring. Add worcestershire sauce, salmon broken into chunks, and drained peas; heat.

Loosen edges of rice ring and invert on a platter. Fill center with a la King.

Yield: Six servings.

Prepare a cold dish for Sunday night supper? Then this salmon salad is for you.

Salmon Mold.

One-pound can salmon.
One tablespoon (one envelope) unflavored gelatin.
One-fourth cup cold water.
One-half cup boiling water.
One and one-half cups cottage cheese.
One tablespoon grated onion.
One-half cup mayonnaise.
One-fourth cup pickle relish.
Salad greens.
Two medium size tomatoes.
French dressing.

Soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling water. Add liquid and oil drained from the salmon. Cool.

Combine cheese, onion, mayonnaise, and pickle relish. Add gelatin mixture and flaked salmon. Pour into loaf pan or ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on chop plate.

Garnish with salad greens, and sections of tomato. Serve with French dressing.

Cottage Cheese

crumbs. Mix well and shape into patties.

Beat egg with water. Dip patties into eggs, then into finely rolled cracker or cereal crumbs, into egg and once more into crumbs. Melt butter in skillet and fry patties over medium heat quickly on both sides. Serve with broiled tomatoes, if desired.

Yield: Four servings.

Perhaps the reference in the first paragraph to the use of cottage cheese in breads may have been a bit surprising. But any one who has tasted cottage cheese pancakes will be in accord with the statement.

Cottage Cheese Pancakes. With Applesauce.

Two eggs.
One-half cup sieved cottage cheese.
Three-fourths cup thin sour cream.
Three-fourths cup all-purpose flour.
One-half teaspoon baking soda.
One teaspoon salt.

Beat eggs and blend with cottage cheese; stir in sour cream. Sift flour, measure and sift with baking soda and salt. Add to egg mixture and beat thoroughly. Let batter stand a few minutes before baking.

Cook on hot lightly-greased griddle until browned, turning once. Serve hot with butter and applesauce.

Yield: 10 to 12 pancakes three and one-half to four inches in diameter.

ALMOND SAUCE DELIGHTFUL WITH FILET OF SOLE

Delicately flavored, crisp almonds combine with butter, Sherry or Sauterne wine and lemon juice to produce an elegant but easy sauce for fish. Try this fine sauce with other fish, too, such as trout, salmon, perch or swordfish.

Filet of Sole with Almonds.

One-half cup butter or margarine.
One-third cup chopped or ready-diced almonds.
One-third cup Sherry or Sauterne wine.
One teaspoon fresh lemon juice.
Four to six cooked filets of sole.

Melt butter, add almonds and cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until almonds and butter or lightly browned. Remove from heat and cool a minute.

Blend in wine and lemon juice.

Reheat over very low heat and serve at once over broiled or fried fish.

Yield: Four to six servings.

'Thick' Apple Sauce.

When your recipe calls for "thick" apple sauce, just simmer your favorite canned apple sauce for five to seven minutes and then allow to cool.

THIS MENU BASED UPON GOOD BUYS

By CATHERINE BRENT
Home Economist, St. Louis Food Marketing Service

The following menu is an example of the way in which "best buys" may be used in our daily meals, thus taking advantage of the opportunity to save money by means of careful marketing.

Menu of the Week.

Planked Red Snapper.
Toasted Whipped Potatoes.
Peas with Rosemary Butter.
Parkerhouse Rolls.
Cubed Lime Gelatin Apple Salad on Lettuce.
Latticed Cherry Pie and Ice Cream.

Planked Red Snapper.

Three-pound Red Snapper.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
Four tablespoons butter or other fat.
Seasoned mashed potatoes.
Seasoned peas.

If hardwood plank is used, oil well and place in a cold oven and heat thoroughly as oven preheats. Clean, wash and dry fish. Sprinkle inside and out with salt and pepper. Brush with melted fat. Place fish on the hot oiled plank or on a greased oven glass or metal platter. Bake in a moderate oven 400 degrees for 35 to 45 minutes until fish flakes easily when tested with fork.

Remove from oven and quickly arrange a border of hot mashed potatoes around fish, leaving room for peas next to fish. Place in a preheated broiler until potatoes are slightly browned, about five minutes. Remove and arrange hot seasoned peas around fish. Garnish with parsley and lemon wedges. Serve immediately on the plank.

Yield: six servings.

SCRAMBLED EGGS AND CHEESE IN THIS CASSEROLE

Scrambled eggs and cheese casserole. Layers of enriched bread cubes are its mainstay.

Make a generous amount of cheese sauce and add cooked peas. Over a layer of soft bread cubes arranged in a casserole, pour one-half the sauce. Cover evenly with well-beaten eggs (one egg to a serving, at least).

Repeat with second layer of bread cubes and top with cheese sauce. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 40 minutes, or until eggs are firm.

Cottage Cheese Pancakes

These delicious pancakes are high in protein content, since they are made with two eggs and one-half cup sieved cottage cheese, plus three-fourths cup thin sour cream. (Recipe is included in the story on the Cottage Cheese Patties on the first page of this section). Enjoy these pancakes tomorrow, Shrove Tuesday, which is National Pancake day.

Frozen Dishes

serole on top of shrimp. Add remaining green pepper and onion and the second package of shrimp. Sprinkle with the second teaspoon salt and pepper to taste.

Spoon defrosted soup into casserole (do not dilute) and stir lightly. Cover and place in moderate oven (350 degrees) and bake 40 minutes. Remove from oven to stir lightly again. Do not cover. If desired, top with buttered crumbs.

Turn oven to high (450 degrees) and bake the casserole an additional 20 minues. (Do not cover during this baking period.)

Yield: six generous servings.

Fish Sticks

sauces from the grocer's shelf:

1. Bottled tartar sauce.
2. Chili sauce or ketchup.
3. Cheese sauce, heated in a double boiler.
4. Pickle relish.
5. Horseradish mixed equally with ketchup.

Heat fish sticks as directed on the package and serve on a base of either sauteed tomato slices or sauteed onion slices.

One cup grated cheese.
Two tablespoons sweet pickle relish or chopped sweet pickle.

Drain tuna. Flake. Cream butter and mustard. Cut bread in half lengthwise and remove a small amount of the center. Spread the bread with mustard-butter.

Combine remaining ingredients. Fill bread with tuna mixture. Cut loaf into 12 slices and wrap in aluminum foil. Bake in a very hot oven, 450 degrees, for 30 minutes or until heated through and cheese melts. Serves six.

Tuna Potato Scallop.

Two cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna.
Three tablespoons butter or other fat.
Three tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash pepper.
Two cups milk.
One quart cooked sliced potatoes.
One-half cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.
One-half cup grated cheese.
One teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
Dash paprika.

Drain tuna. Flake. Melt butter; blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Add tuna.

Arrange potatoes and tuna mixture in alternate layers in a well-greased baking pan, 11x 7x1½ inches.

Combine remaining ingredients and spread over the top.

Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes. Serves six.

Tuna Pot Pie.

Two cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna.
One cup cooked carrots.
One cup cooked peas.
One can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup.
One-half cup water.
One cup biscuit mix.

Drain tuna. Flake. Place tuna alternately with carrots and peas in a well-greased 1½ quart casserole. Combine soup and water, stirring until smooth; heat. Pour over tuna mixture.

Prepare biscuit mix as directed. Drop by teaspoonsful on top of the tuna mixture. Bake in a very hot oven, 450 degrees, for 30 minutes or until biscuit browns. Yield: six servings.

Deviled Tuna Casserole.

Two cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna.
One tablespoon grated onion.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Two tablespoons chopped parsley.
One-half teaspoon garlic salt.
One-half cup butter or other fat.
One-fourth cup flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash cayenne pepper.
Two cups milk.
One cup soft bread cubes.
One-half cup crushed potato chips.

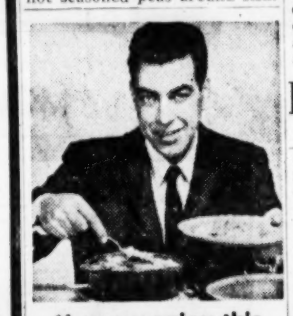

Drain tuna. Flake. Add onion, lemon juice, parsley and garlic salt. Melt butter; blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly.

Fold in bread cubes and tuna mixture. Place in a well-greased one-quart casserole. Sprinkle potato chips over casserole.

Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, for 10 to 15 minutes or until lightly brown. Yield: six servings.

Marriage and the teen-ager

Are today's teen-agers mature enough to meet the responsibilities that marriage and parenthood demand?

Marriages for girls 14-17 have increased by one-third since 1940. And now, 30 per cent of mothers of first babies are 19 or younger!

These startling facts illustrate a changing attitude in the United States toward teen-age marriages. What has caused this change? What are the serious problems that teen-age couples face?

For the answers to these important questions, read the thought-provoking series, "Too Young to Marry?" . . . beginning

WEEKS WARNS OF DANGERS IN RED TRADE DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (UP) —Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks opened the Administration's campaign for a five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade law today with a warning to Congress that "it's either more trade or more trouble."

In a statement prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee, Weeks stressed the dangers to the free world posed by the Communists' trade offensive.

"I warn you that the Soviet Union's new global economic drive puts to hazard our favorable trade posture, menaces free world unity and jeopardizes the foundation of peace," he said.

Weeks said that "in its trade drive, Russia is pinpointing areas of political ferment and economic distress in the free world, with particular emphasis on the underdeveloped countries."

He said the United States Reciprocal Trade law is "one of our strongest weapons with which to counteract their offensive."

President Eisenhower has asked for a five-year extension of the 24-year-old act, with power to cut tariffs on imports an additional 25 per cent.

The law, fathered by the Roosevelt Administration and continuously backed by succeeding Democratic and Republican Administrations, has been extended for either one or three-year periods in the past.

The requested new extension faced stiff opposition in Congress. About 175 witnesses have asked to testify at the House hearings on the program.

Weeks said United States exports of goods and services represent about 6 per cent of the nation's total output and provide jobs for 4,500,000 American workers, or about 7 per cent of the labor force. Exports of manufactured products, raw materials and food last year, he said, "reached the staggering total of $19,500,000,000, the highest in our nation's history," and imports totaled 13 billion dollars.

"There is nothing to be gained in this picture by having free traders and protectionists screaming imprecations at each others," Weeks said.

FAMOUS OPENS REMODELED BASEMENT IN MAIN STORE

The remodeled basement economy store at Famous-Barr Co.'s Downtown Store opened today with new fixtures, lighting and other features.

Beginning with the installation of new escalators last year, the work of remodeling the basement and balcony was carried out in every department of the economy store. New fixtures and lighting, designed to make self-selection of articles easy, have been added. Tile floors, some sections of which have brass inlays, were laid.

Although there are no barriers between departments, an individual effect has been achieved through use of varied pastel colors. Attractive signs, visible from a distance, guide the customer to the department sought.

RESIDENTS PRAY FOR STRIKE'S END AT LAMAR, MO.

LAMAR, Mo., Feb. 17 (AP) —Lamar residents resorted to prayer in seeking an end to a six-week strike at the Lawn Boy Co. plant, largest employer in this town of 3300.

The town's 10 churches were filled yesterday as the worshippers heeded a plea from the Ministerial Association to pray for reconciliation of the plant management and the 350 members of the striking United Auto Workers Union.

The company, which makes lawn mowers, was shut down Jan. 3 by the wage dispute. Negotiations are at a stalemate.

"This strike is of great concern to all of us," said the Rev. Roy Stribling, Methodist minister. "It now appears both sides are in a position from which they will not move, and therefore we should call upon God's grace in helping them find a solution."

SHOE STORE HELD UP, LOOT EXCEEDS $498

Harold Rosenthal, operator of the Rosenthal Shoe Store, 1721 South Broadway, two visiting merchants and a clerk were held up Saturday night by two armed men, who took a total of $498 from the victims and an undetermined sum from the cash register, police reported.

Rosenthal and Walter Liszewski, clerk, were talking with Harold and Albert Polunsky, brothers, who operate a shoe store at 1618 South Broadway. Two men entered the store about 9 p.m., looked at shoes, then drew revolvers and announced, "This is it."

The victims were forced to lie on the floor behind a counter, then were ordered into a rear room. One robber stood guard while the second man removed cash from the wallets of the victims. The man also emptied the cash register of a "substantial sum," Rosenthal reported. Stuffing the loot into their pockets, the robbers fled on foot.

Mrs. Goldie Hill, 2024 Menard street, was robbed yesterday of $125 by two Negroes in a parking lot in the 3500 block of Lucas avenue. Mrs. Eunice Wentworth, 4562 Park View place, nurse at Barnes Hospital, was robbed yesterday near a parking lot at St. John's Hospital. The robbers, Negroes, took her purse containing $1 and her glasses.

FHA CITES RISING ACTIVITY IN HOME MORTGAGE FIELD

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 17—The Administration moved again yesterday to shore up the sagging economy by making public a letter to President Eisenhower from Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole reporting a considerable increase in basic housing activity.

Cole made three points:

January applications for Federal Housing Administration insurance on mortgages secured by newly constructed homes were 14 per cent higher than the December rate and 64 per cent higher than a year ago.

Applications for insurance on mortgages secured by existing homes in January were 26 per cent higher than the previous month and 75 per cent above a year ago.

Application received last month for insurance on mortgages for large-scale rental or co-operative housing projects covered 5300 units, as compared with 3100 units in December and 4200 a year ago.

"This increase in activity is doubtless due in part to an improvement in the availability of private capital for investment in FHA-insured loans," Cole said.

New Starts Increased.

In releasing the Cole letter White House press secretary James C. Hagerty recalled that on Friday the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported new starts on housing increased in January from an annual rate of 970,000 in December to 1,030,000.

Asked whether Mr. Eisenhower, vacationing at the Milestone plantation estate of former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, had read the Cole letter, Hagerty said, "Oh, yes." He added that the President thought it was "an encouraging sign" for the economy. He also said he expected additional reports from other Government agencies later.

Asked whether the purpose of the release was to "try to restore confidence in the economy," Hagerty said the purpose was to report what the facts are.

Other Recent Moves.

Release of the Cole letter followed other recent Administration moves. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield last week announced a two billion dollar postal modernization plan which, he said, would give the economy "a timely stimulus." Last Wednesday, the day before he left for Georgia, Mr. Eisenhower issued a statement saying he expected "a pick-up in job opportunities" beginning in March.

In his Wednesday statement the President said an increase in housing starts "would have a widely beneficial effect on the economy." He added that "direct employment would increase in thousands of communities, and many industries such as lumber, furniture, home equipment and appliances would be directly benefitted."

The President's statement followed by a day a Government report that unemployment rose by twice the normal seasonal amount in January, reaching 4,494,000, the highest since 1950.

Despite the optimistic Administration statements last week the stock market declined for the first time in five weeks. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed Friday at 161.0, down from the 162.6 of a week earlier.

May Go Hunting.

The President may take an excursion out of doors today for the first time since his arrival Thursday.

Hagerty said the President might hunt or might accompany other hunters if the weather warmed up sufficiently. The temperature rose from a low of 19 to 23 degress at mid-morning, with a high of 39 expected. The sun was bright.

Mr. Eisenhower has spent his time relaxing and playing bridge before a log fire at Milestone.

Hagerty said the President's sore throat is improving every day and that Mr. Eisenhower feels fine. Reporters have not seen him since he reached Thomasville.

LODGE, NEHRU END TALKS

NEW DELHI, Feb. 17 (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge had a final conference with Prime Minister Nehru yesterday before ending his visit to India with a trip to Agra to see the famous Taj Mahal.

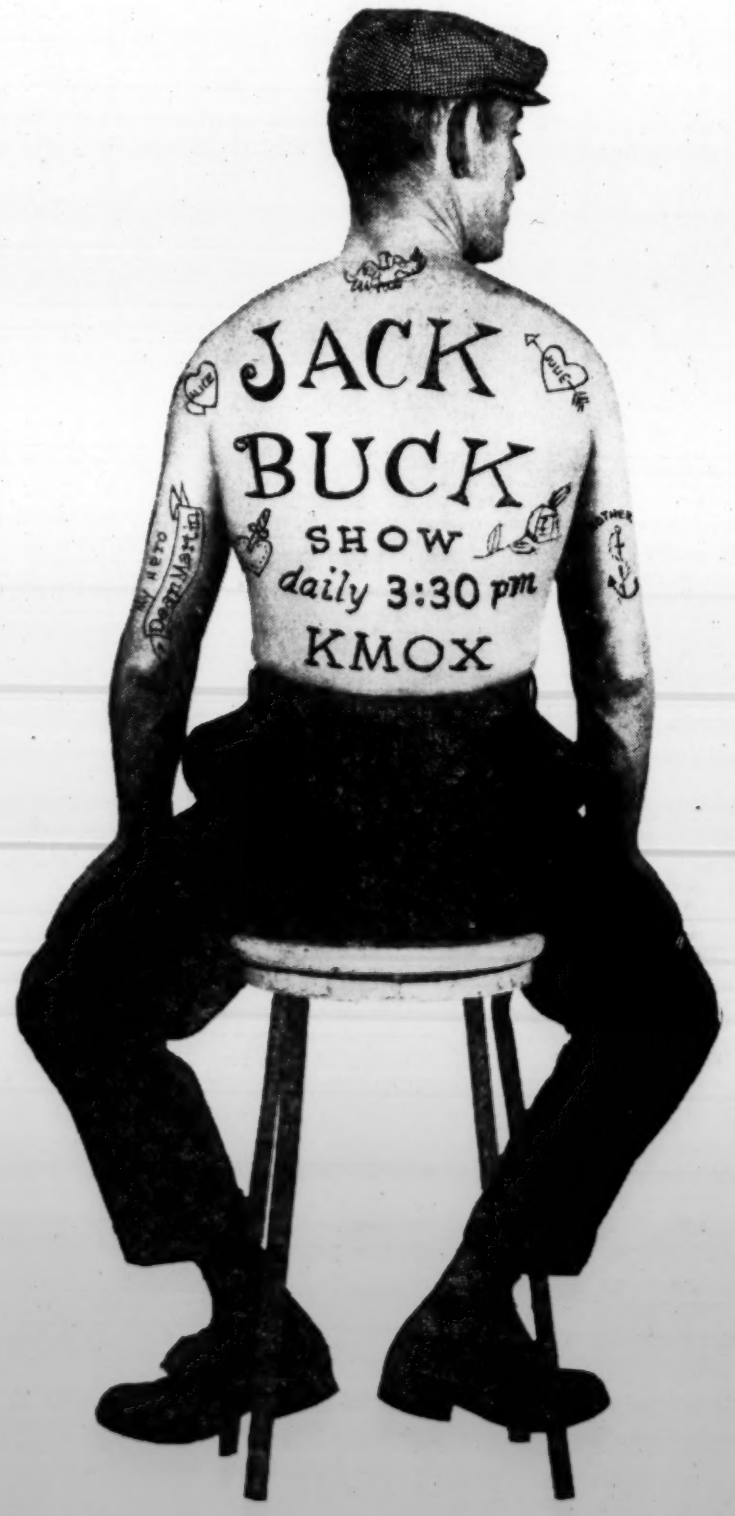

A source close to Nehru said Lodge, the United States ambassador to the United Nations, and Nehru discussed a wide range of topics "with special reference to chances of high level talks to ease international tension."

BIDS & PROPOSALS WTD. 286

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
Sealed proposals addressed to The Curators of the University of Missouri for construction of Student Union Building, School of Mines and Metallurgy, at Rolla, Missouri, for The Curators of the University of Missouri, hereinafter called "Owner" in accordance with plans, specifications and contract documents, which were prepared by Kenneth E. Wischmeyer, Architect, 911 Locust Street, St. Louis 1, Missouri, will be received at the office of the Business Manager of School of Mines & Metallurgy, Room G-1 Parker Hall, Rolla, Missouri, until 11:00 a.m. Central Standard Time March 18, 1958, and will be publicly opened and read aloud at 11:15 a.m. Central Standard Time at the Parker Hall Auditorium. Any bid received after closing time will be returned unopened.
Cashier's check, certified check, or acceptable bidder's bond payable to Owner in an amount not less than 5% of largest possible total for bid submitted, including consideration of additive alternates, must accompany each bid as a guarantee that, if awarded contract, bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute such bonds as may be required.
Attention is called to the fact that rates of pay for labor and mechanics engaged in construction of the project will not be less than prevailing local wage rates for similar work as determined by the Board of Curators, University of Missouri, and approved by Housing and Home Finance Administrator, and further in full compliance with any State wage law that may be applicable.
Separate contracts may be awarded for each of the following general subdivisions of work and as set forth in Proposal Form: (1) General Construction; (2) Plumbing; (3) Heating, Ventilating and Air Conditioning; (4) Electrical Work; provided however, that in event a bid combining subdivisions of work is accepted, a single contract will be awarded for work involved in subdivisions of work combined in bid.
By virtue of policy of The Board of Curators, and by virtue of statutory authority a preference will be given to materials, products, supplies, provisions, and all other articles, produced, manufactured, made or grown within the State of Missouri, only when same can be secured without additional cost over products and services from other states. By virtue of policy of The Board of Curators, preference will also be given to firms, corporations or individuals doing business as Missouri firms, corporations or individuals, all things being equal.
Owner reserves right to reject any or all bids and to waive any or all informalities.
Plans and specifications may be examined without charge at the office of Director of Construction, University of Missouri, 401 E. Stewart Road, Columbia, Missouri, and at the office of Kenneth E. Wischmeyer, Architect, 911 Locust St., Room 208, St. Louis 1, Missouri, and may be procured from either of above addresses upon a deposit of $25.00 as guarantee for safe return of plans and specifications.
All bids may be held 45 days unless sooner returned by Owner.
The Curators of the University of Missouri

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
Sealed proposals will be received by The Curators of the University of Missouri at the office of the Business Manager of the University of Missouri, 116 Jesse Hall, Columbia, Missouri, until 11:00 a.m. Central Standard Time, March 11, 1958, and will then and there be publicly opened and read aloud for: "Air Conditioning Jesse Hall, on the campus of the University of Missouri, in Columbia, Missouri, for the Curators of the University of Missouri."
Plans and specifications for the project may be inspected and information concerning the securing thereof and deposit therefor, the work to be done thereunder, the manner of payment therefor, the conditions of bidding, the required bid security and the Contract Documents, may all be obtained, together with the printed forms on which BIDS MUST BE MADE, at the office of the Director of Construction, 401 East Stewart Road, Columbia, Missouri, and at the office of William L. Cassell, 912 Baltimore Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.
By virtue of the policy of The Board of Curators, and by virtue of statutory authority, preference will be given to materials, products, supplies, provisions and all other articles, produced, mined, manufactured, made or grown within the State of Missouri. By virtue of the policy of The Board of Curators, preference will also be given to all firms, corporations or individuals doing business as Missouri firms, corporations or individuals.
The Curators of the University of Missouri reserve the right to waive informalities in bids and to reject any or all bids.

Bitter Cold for Rest of Week

—Associated Press Wirephoto
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

No relief from St. Louis's numbing cold weather is expected for the rest of the week, the Weather Bureau said today. Temperatures should drop below zero again tomorrow, and average 15 to 20 degrees below normal through Saturday, the bureau predicted.

The coldest weather of the season spread across eastern and southern areas from the Midwest as a storm center moved northward along the Atlantic coast. Arctic air gripped the Plains states and extended to the Atlantic coast, with near-zero temperatures recorded as far south as parts of Kentucky and Tennessee and readings in the 30s in northern Florida.

In St. Louis, the mercury dropped to a record 5 below zero yesterday. The temperature was 4 below in St. Louis county and 3 below in the downtown St. Louis area today. Temperatures were below zero throughout Illinois.

A paralyzing winter storm was centered today along the coast of Main with intense cold weather. Heavy snow measuring 42 inches at Syracuse, N. Y., and 58 inches at Lebanon, N. H., was reported by the Weather Bureau.

Cold weather will continue to dominate the eastern half of the nation tomorrow, with milder temperatures expected in the western half.

Food to Welcome Spring

Take your cue from nature and freshen up menus with ideas as new as the season. Choose from those below. All wonderful eating!

BISQUICK TUNA RING

2 cups Bisquick
⅔ cup evaporated milk
⅓ cup water
3 eggs
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
two 7-oz. cans Star-Kist Tuna, flaked, with oil ½ cup grated sharp cheese
1 tbsp. chopped onion
¼ cup chopped pimiento
½ cup chopped celery

Heat oven to 400° (mod. hot). Grease baking dish, 9" square, or 11 x 7", or 9" ring mold. Blend Bisquick, milk, water, eggs, salt, and pepper. Beat vigorously 30 seconds. Mix in 1½ cans tuna, ¼ cup cheese, onion, pimiento, and celery. Spread batter in prepared pan. Sprinkle the remaining ¼ cup cheese over top. Bake 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with Tuna Sauce in center. 8 servings.

Tuna Sauce: Gradually add 1 cup evaporated milk and ⅔ cup water to 2 tbsp. Bisquick, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, and remaining ½ can of tuna. Heat and serve.

TUNA ROYAL PANCAKES

These are frankly fancy but well worth the time they take to make. Next time you have a luncheon party, serve them with a fruit salad and coffee; you won't need dessert! They're pictured at the right.

Pancakes (see Bisquick pkg.)
7-oz. can Star-Kist Tuna, drained and broken
¼ cup each chopped onion and pimiento
½ cup chopped celery
about 2 tsp. lemon juice
10½-oz. can cream of celery soup diluted with ½ cup water
1 tbsp. Bisquick
¼ tsp. each salt and pepper
½ cup evaporated milk
¼ cup grated cheese

Heat oven to 400° (mod. hot). Make 10 thinner pancakes (5" size), using 1⅓ cups evaporated milk and ⅔ cup water. Mix tuna, onion, pimiento, celery, and lemon juice. Spoon 2 tbsp. of mixture on each pancake. Roll and place folded side down in 11½ x 7½ x 1½" oblong baking dish. Heat in oven about 10 minutes. Mix diluted soup, Bisquick, salt, pepper, and evaporated milk. Heat until thickened. Pour over pancakes. Sprinkle with cheese. Place under broiler until bubbly. 10 servings.

NOTE: For a moister pancake filling, add ½ cup of the sauce to the tuna mixture.

Party Special

"PARTY SQUARES"

New idea for "finger food"! Grand as canapés, or cut them bigger for a new supper dish.

7-oz. can Star-Kist Tuna, drained, flaked
¼ cup sweet pickle relish
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. prepared mustard
3 tbsp. mayonnaise

Heat oven to 450° (hot). Make Rolled Biscuit dough (see Bisquick box). Divide in half. Pat half into 9" sq. on greased baking sheet. Mix above ingredients and spread on dough. Pat out other half of dough into a 9" sq. and place over filling. Bake 10 to 12 min. Cut in small squares.

BISQUICK'S "SPRING CASSEROLE"

3 tbsp. chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
3 tbsp. fat
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup Bisquick
1½ cups evaporated milk
1½ cups water
7-oz. can Star-Kist Tuna, drained
1 cup cooked peas (8-oz. can)
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Heat oven to 425° (hot). Sauté onion, pepper, and celery in hot fat until onion is golden. Blend in salt and Bisquick. Gradually stir in water and milk. Bring to boil; boil 1 minute. Add flaked tuna, peas, and lemon juice. Pour into 11 x 7" baking dish and top with Cheese Swirls (below). Bake 15 to 20 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

CHEESE SWIRLS: Make Biscuit dough as directed on Bisquick package, using ⅓ cup evaporated milk and ⅓ cup water. Roll dough into rectangle, 15 x 9". Spread with ½ cup grated cheese. Roll up lightly beginning with wide side. Seal well. Cut into 12 slices. Place on HOT tuna mixture.

Text of Eisenhower's Answer To Bulganin: 'Terrible New Menace Can Be Seen in Making'

It Is Outer Space Warfare, President Says, and Declares 'Time to Deal With That Menace Is Now'—Nuclear Race Is Cited As Warning.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP).

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's letter of Feb. 15 to Soviet Premier Bulganin:

I AM IN RECEIPT of your communication of Feb. 1. I note that it is a slightly abbreviated and moderated edition of the lengthy and rather bitter speech which Mr. Khrushchev made at Minsk on Jan. 22.

I begin to wonder, Mr. Chairman (Premier), whether we shall get anywhere by continuing to write speeches to each other? As I read your successive lengthy missives of Dec. 10, Jan. 8 and Feb. 1, I cannot avoid the feeling that if our two countries are to move ahead to the establishment of better relations, we must find some ways other than mere prolongation of repetitive public debate. In this connection, I have some thoughs to offer.

But first I comment briefly on your latest note.

II.

I tried in my letter to you of Jan. 12 to put forward some new ideas. For example, I proposed strengthening the United Nations by rededication of our nations to its purposes and principles, with the accompaniment of some reduction in the use of the veto power in the Security Council.

That proposal you reject, alleging that it would give to the Security Council a power to "adopt decisions that would be binding on all states" and make it in effect a "world government." That argument is directed to a misrepresentation of my proposal. I suggested that our two nations should, as a matter of policy avoid vetoing Security Council recommendations as to how nations might proceed toward the peaceful solution of their disputes. Surely authority to recommend, and that only as to procedures, is not to impose binding decisions. Already, the General Assembly can, free of veto, recommend procedures for peaceful settlement. Would it really be catastrophic for the Security Council to exercise that same facility?

III.

Another new idea was that outer space should be perpetually dedicated to peaceful purposes. You belittle this proposal as one made to gain strategic advantages for the United States. Mr. Khrushchev in his Minsk speech said, "This means they want to prohibit that which they do not possess."

Since the record completely disproves that uncalled for statement, may we now hope between us to consider and devise co-operative international procedures to give reality, to the idea of use of outer space for peace only.

When the United States alone possessed atomic weapons and the Soviet Union possessed none, the United States proposed to forego its monopoly in the interest of world peace and security. We are prepared to take the same attitude now in relation to outer space. If this peaceful purpose is not realized, and the worse than useless race of weapons goes on, the world will have only the Soviet Union to blame, just as it has only the Soviet Union to blame for the fact that atomic and nuclear power are now used increasingly for weapons purposes instead of being dedicated wholly to peaceful uses as the United States proposed a decade ago.

The Soviet Union refused to co-operate in tackling the problem of international control of atomic energy when that problem was in its infancy. Consequently, it has now become too late to achieve totally effective control although there can be, as we propose, a controlled cessation of further weapons testing and of the manufacture of fissionable material for weapons purposes. But, as your government said on May 10, 1955, a total "ban" on atomic and hydrogen weapons could not now be enforced because "the possibility would be open to a potential aggressor to accumulate stocks of atomic and hydrogen weapons for a surprise atomic attack on peace-loving states."

Discusses Outer Space.

A terrible new menace can be seen to be in the making. That menace is to be found in the use of outer space for war purposes. The time to deal with that menace is now. It would be tragic if the Soviet leaders were blind or indifferent toward this menace as they were apparently blind or indifferent to the atomic and nuclear menace at its inception a decade ago.

If there is a genuine desire on the part of the Soviet leaders to do something more than merely to talk about the menace resulting from what you described as "the production of ever newer types of weapons," let us actually do what even now would importantly reduce the scope of nuclear warfare, both in terms of checking the use of fissionable material for weapons purposes and in wholly eliminating the newest types of weapons which use outer space for human destruction.

IV.

With respect to the meeting of heads of government, the cumulative effect of your last three missives is to leave considerable puzzlement as to what you think another such meeting could contribute to a genuine settlement of our problems.

You have proposed, and insisted on, about 10 topics which you want to have discussed at such a meeting. I, in turn, suggested some eight topics which I thought should be discussed — strengthening the United Nations, dedicating outer space to peaceful purposes, the reunification of Germany, the right of the peoples of eastern Europe to choose the form of government under which they would live, and a number of specific proposals in the disarmament field.

I wrote that, if there were to be a top-level meeting, I would be willing to discuss your proposals in good faith if you would so discuss mine. Your answer is that I must be prepared to discuss your proposals but that as regards mine there must, you said "be unanimous agreement of all participants as to the necessity for considering such proposals." In other words, you demand the right to veto discussion of the matters I believe to be vital to peace.

I noted that Mr. Khrushchev devoted a considerable part of his Minsk speech to a discussion of conditions in Hungary, Poland, and East Germany. Does the Soviet Union claim such a proprietary interest in these lands and people that to discuss them is solely a matter of Soviet domestic concern? If not, and if these lands and people can be discussed by Soviet leaders as an international problem, why cannot we both discuss them?

If indeed a top-level conference were to apply the formula that no one is to say anything except what all the rest agree they would like to hear, we would, as I said in my last press conference, end up in the ludicrous posture of our just glaring silently at each other across the table.

He Suggests a Way.

Perhaps the impasse to which we seem to have come can be broken by less formal and less publicized contacts through which we would continue to seek to find out whether there can be a top-level meeting which, in the words of my letter to you of Jan. 12, 1958, "would hold good hope for advancing the cause of peace and justice in the world." Exchanges of views effected through our ambassadors or foreign ministers may serve better than what Mr. Khrushchev referred to at Minsk as "polemics" between heads of government.

The United States is accordingly consulting with some other interested nations as to the desirability of exploring, through more normal channels, the prospects of a top-level meeting which would be adequate as to subjects, and as to which preliminary exchanges would indicate good prospect of an accord. You will understand, of course, that, whatever be the preparatory procedures, these would, as far as the United States was concerned, require the participation of our Secretary of State.

V.

"Polemics" will not, I fear, advance us along the path of better relations which is my nation's goal. Indeed, I deplore the constantly mounting accusations within the Soviet Union that the United States is a nation ruled by aggressive war-minded imperialists. Mr. Khrushchev's speech of Jan. 22 is an outstanding example of such charges and indeed they are to be found in your Feb. 1 note.

What is the explanation of such charges? They seem to fly in the face of established history.

Until the end of the First World War, war was generally accepted as a lawful means of conducting foreign policy. But after World War I showed the terrible consequences of such toleration of war, the United States took the initiative in bringing about the Pact of Paris whereby the nations of the world renounced war as an instrument of national policy. An even broader renunciation of force is now found in the United Nations Charter. The United States, which initiated the concept of the international renunciation of force, has sought to adhere scrupulously to that concept.

Knows No War Mongers.

I am really amazed now to be told by Soviet leaders, who have never even been near this country, that there are in the United States those who, in your words, "utter the dangerous call for preventive war"; and conduct "unrestrained propaganda for war." If any such persons exist in the United States, I do not know of them; nor do I know of any "imperialist ruling circles" that are supposedly eager to plunge the world into war in order to make financial gains.

These allegations do not provide the real facts of American life. The real facts are the intense longing of the American people for peace; the working of the American constitutional system which assures

'Soapy' Williams Sets Course For 1960 Presidential Race

Michigan Governor to Seek Sixth 2-Year Term This Fall—G.O.P. Attacks His Ties With Reuther.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1958 The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 17.

WHILE THE PRESIDENTIAL AMBITIONS of Gov. G. Mennen Williams have hardly been a secret in recent years the redoubtable "Soapy" has now charted his course irrevocably for 1960.

He has done this by sanctioning the candidacy of his old friend and political ally, Lt. Gov. Philip H. Hart, for the Senate seat now held by a Republican, Senator Charles E. Potter. Hart, a personable, friendly man of 46 out of the same top drawer background as Williams, will run in the congressional election this fall and more or less objective observers made him the odds-on favorite, what with the shadow of the recession and the drop in dairy prices in Michigan.

This means that Soapy will run for his sixth term as Governor, and his re-election in November is a fairly safe bet, but there will be no opening in 1960 except the presidency. He could run for Governor again, but after all a man can't go on being Governor forever. So the die is cast.

On Any Candidate List.

Williams's name would be on any list of four or five candidates for the Democratic nomination. Yet it is curious that so little serious attention is given to one who broke the mould in a traditionally Republican state and has not only returned to the governorship for an unprecedented five times but in 1956 carried Democrats into most state offices with him.

One reason is that nickname coming down from his school days and deriving from two soap fortunes. Another reason is his easy friendly manner which in the course of his intensive travels in every county in the state has made him innumerable friends.

These wintry weekends he has been out in Michigan's skiing country crowning snow queens and taking a turn on the ski runs himself. The long succession of Republican governors had been solemn gentlemen who wore hard collars and vests with white pique edging, so Soapy represents a break with tradition in more ways than one.

But in the big field in the Democratic sweepstakes, the handicaps the Republicans would hang on him is his alleged closeness to Walter Reuther, the dynamic head of the United Auto Workers union. The evidence increases that Reuther is to be the Republican whipping boy again in 1960 with even greater emphasis on the iniquities of the man who had so much to do with unionization of the auto industry.

If this identification can be made to stick, one of the Democrats' most attractive candidates will have been nullified, or so the G.O.P. hopes. The concentrated Republican attack on Williams is for raising taxes to further the "socialistic" schemes of the U.A.W. and in so doing driving industry out of Michigan. With the auto industry decentralizing, for a variety of reasons, this charge takes on considerable plausibility.

G.O.P. Has Own Troubles.

In their search for a candidate to run against Williams, the Republicans are having their own troubles with the old split between the Taft and Eisenhower forces opening up again. Those on the extreme right who have been in the habit of coming through generously with campaign funds think this is the year to burn Reuther at the political stake. But others feel that perhaps in view of the recession and

FCC Members Chummy With Network Men

Correspondence of Ex-Chairman and CBS Chief Is Example.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1958.)

WASHINGTON.

HOW chummy the Federal Communications Commissioners have been with heads of the big networks is revealed in private correspondence between Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and George McConnaughey, former chairman of the FCC, and his son.

The correspondence points up a fact well known in Washington that FCC commissioners have their doors open to all sorts of network executives, network lobbyists, and utility officials. Instead of operating in an aloof capacity as judges, they lunch, dine, junket with and ask favors of the executives whom they are supposed to regulate for the benefit of the public.

The public in turn has little chance to lunch or dine them or take them on free airplane trips.

In the case of ex-Chairman McConnaughey, he even had the temerity to ask the president of a leading network for a job for his son, despite the fact that he, McConnaughey, had to pass on important network applications.

Some Wise Advice.

CBS president Stanton, of whom he asked this favor, was careful not to put himself in an embarrassing position, and gave McConnaughey's son wise advice—namely, not to take a job with a TV station which had matters pending before the FCC. In contrast, Pan American Airways, which has matters pending constantly before the CAB and the White House, hired President Eisenhower's nephew, Milton Eisenhower Jr.

Here is the correspondence which indicates how close FCC commissioners have been to powerful network executives:

The first document is a telegram dated Nov. 11, 1955, from Stanton's secretary, Winifred Williams, in New York asking:

"Please wire first name of

'I Believe Change Is Part of Living, But I Like Pace of Change That Does Not Create More Trouble Than Good.'

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

CHAPTER XIX

THE most ardent hunter I ever knew was Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate. Whatever Robinson did, he did with intensity—and it was this that killed him.

For several years Joe had been taking digitalis to ward off anginal twinges. His doctors warned him to slow up, but Joe paid no heed. Early one morning, in the middle of the fight over Roosevelt's court-packing plan in 1937, Joe was found dead beside his bed, an open copy of the Congressional Record by his side.

Joe was a wonderful companion. Sometimes when I thought he was working too hard, I would call him from New York and say, "Joe, I am going down to Hobcaw tomorrow and the train passes through Washington at 7:45 in the evening. There will be a place for you aboard."

Joe brought the same single-mindedness to hunting that characterized his legislative work. Before sunup in the morning he was out after ducks. In the afternoon he was hunting quail. In the evening he would go out to the edge of the swamp, sit there, and wait by the hour for a turkey.

"Mr. Secretary Hughes."

Once Robinson, thinking himself alone, saw a huge bird light on the limb of a tree about one hundred yards away. Creeping up slowly, Joe raised his gun and muttered aloud, "Here is where I bring down Mr. Secretary Hughes."

He came in with the bird, which weighed 24¾ pounds. Pretty soon outside the house we heard a couple of Negroes talking. One remarked that it was funny about Mr. Joe—he called turkeys Secretary Hughes.

We decided to send the turkey to President Warren G. Harding. Robinson returned to Washington. Days passed and he received no acknowledgment from the President. Then Joe ran into Senator Jim Wason of Indiana, who remarked, "That certainly was a fine bird you sent the President."

To this Robinson, who always spoke his mind, replied, "Yes, and I think it's a hell of a note for the President not to ask any of us Democrats to help him eat it."

This was quickly followed by gracious and apologetic letters from the White House to all of us. Just the same, I heard Joe vow that the next time he shot a 24-pound turkey, he would not send it to a Republican.

Admiral Cary Grayson.

As enthusiastic a hunter as Joe Robinson, but somewhat less successful as a nimrod, was Admiral Cary Grayson, who had been President Wilson's physician. He could spend an entire day in the woods and might, as one of my guides put it, "bring home a feather."

One day I arranged to have Cary bring back something more than a feather. He was walking through the woods when his hunting guide pointed out a big turkey at the foot of a tree. Cary raised his gun, fired, and rushed forward to examine his prize. As he bent over, he noticed that the bird was tried to a tree. Around its neck was a string to which a card was attached which read, "With the compliments of Bernard M. Baruch."

Cary enjoyed the joke as much as any of us. In fact, it

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

On Lincoln's Birthday

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Lincoln's birthday I accompanied a group of Washington University students belonging to the Panel of Americans to Harris Teachers College to present an assembly program.

These students, unofficially representing different faiths and races, discussed the question: "Can Americans of Different Backgrounds Live and Work in Harmony?" Our discussion was graciously received as part of Harris's Brotherhood Week program.

Immediately following this assembly, the members of the panel and I were invited to lunch by a staff member of Harris Teachers College. This gentleman had phoned for a reservation at the coffee shop of a large hotel situated at Union and Pershing, inquiring at the time whether our panel's Negro student would be welcome.

Evidently arrangements were concluded satisfactorily, for we proceeded there for lunch. However, between the reservation call and our arrival, something went wrong —or someone had a change of heart.

We were "allowed" to eat lunch —but not without some "backroom" hushed conferring and not without obvious evidence of management discontent.

The difficulties were necessarily aired during lunch by the humiliated host of our table in the presence of the "culprit"—a Negro young lady with a superior academic and extra-curricular record at Washington University.

I am aware that the hotel is probably within its legal rights to deny service to whom it chooses; I merely offer this incident to those who may appreciate its inherent irony. Herbert E. Metz

'No' to the School Levy

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am very much against the increase in the school tax. Is it going to be raised every two years? Why can't the School Board get along on the $1.30 by economizing a little and eliminating the frills? Of course, there is always the scare—"go back to the 89-cent rate." If a two-thirds majority were needed, it would never pass!

A Poor Little Property Owner

Ox in the Southwest

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I note that you are still generating a good deal of steam over the ceiling on natural gas. I am one of the 3600 small royalty land owners in a single town along the Mexican border.

On account of this ceiling we are getting less than one-half of 1 cent per thousand feet for our gas. You are paying about $2.25 for it up here. Anyhow this is not enough to pay the taxes on the land in some cases. If we could, we would cut it off or stop the flow as such a price isn't worth the depletion.

But here is the pay-off to the whole deal. Mexico is selling gas to the same pipeline. Their field is the same one as ours, and just six miles away. There isn't any ceiling on their gas though. They can charge whatever they can get. They get twice as much for their gas as we get for ours and you pay the same price here for it.

The Southwest is the best customer you have. They buy a lot of your products, but we have not gone to Congress and asked for a ceiling on those. You charge us all that the traffic will stand, too. It is just a matter of whose ox gets gored as far as you are concerned.

All of my life I have read of the Post-Dispatch as being one of the nation's great papers. Now I find that the only reason that I buy it is on account of Pogo. Old Albert is the smartest thing that you print, and Pogo himself is a square shooter who would pay a fair price for our gas if he bought it.

Drivers Cause Jams

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It has become very amusing to read the letters regarding traffic problems in the recent snowstorm. I feel that most of these fail to realize the basic difficulty is that too many drivers in St. Louis can't handle their cars adequately in heavy traffic even when the sun is shining and the streets are clear.

For example, the rule of keeping to the right except when passing or making a left turn is almost totally ignored by one third of our drivers. How many times are you forced to pass on the right in the course of driving to and from work?

Let's face it, snow tires, skid chains and pushes by police patrol cars will never compensate for inadequate driving ability. We just plain don't know how to drive.

No Chance for Pride

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Upon looking at reproductions of the paintings by Charles Starkweather I realized Charles was much better with a canvas than I could ever hope to be.

When he went through his schooling, did any of his teachers or classmates recognize his ability? Did they approve of art to a degree he could feel pride in art and painting?

We so often give our admiration to athletes. This makes me wonder if Charles is not a product of our present shortcomings?

A Wild Court Bill

Senator Hennings has done all the country a service in halting the rapid advance of the Jenner bill to cripple the United States Supreme Court. It is the kind of good work that Missouri's senior Senator so often does—without benefit of large headlines or notice on the radio and television news reports.

The Jenner bill, S. 2646, is an angry, irresponsible proposal if ever there was one. It would strip the Supreme Court of its authority to review cases in five important fields. It would, for example, bar the Supreme Court from appellate jurisdiction in all actions taken by congressional investigating committees in internal security matters, including citations for contempt against witnesses. It would also shut off the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of any person dropped from the Government payroll because of alleged subversive connections.

The reason why the Jenner bill would remove from Supreme Court review these areas and three others relating to teachers, lawyers and certain convictions in state courts is as plain as a pikestaff. Senator Jenner seeks to hit back at the Supreme Court because of the Watkins decision and other decisions of the last term which tend to restore fair dealing and due process of law to proceedings that had fallen into the hands of officials who cared little about the guarantees of the Bill of Rights.

Yet the Jenner bill passed the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Internal Security after only one day of hearings and without so much as one opponent of the bill being heard. Thanks to Senator Hennings, the bill has now been returned by the Judiciary Committee to the subcommittee for hearings that befit a proposal of so sweeping a character.

Senator Jenner's swing at the Supreme Court is only one of the wildest that has followed in the wake of the historic decisions of the last term. There have been many more from individuals, from members of Congress, from organizations and from editors.

The Supreme Court today is more representative than it has been for many years. Here is its personnel, by presidential appointment, state of origin and previous party affiliation.

APPOINTED BY EISENHOWER (4)
Earl Warren, California, Republican.
John Marshall Harlan, New York, Republican.
William J. Brennan, New Jersey, Democrat.
Charles E. Whittaker, Missouri, Republican.

APPOINTED BY ROOSEVELT (3)
Hugo L. Black, Alabama, Democrat.
Felix Frankfurter, Massachusetts, Democrat.
William O. Douglas, Washington, Democrat.

APPOINTED BY TRUMAN (2)
Harold H. Burton, Ohio, Republican.
Tom C. Clark, Texas, Democrat.

This table shows that the present Supreme Court, which some of its critics are denouncing as "runaway," is the handiwork of three Presidents, Mr. Eisenhower having named more than either of his two Democratic predecessors. It contains five Justices whose previous party affiliation was Democratic and four whose previous affiliation was Republican. We emphasize "previous" affiliation because Supreme Court members cease being partisans once they become judges of our highest tribunal.

Geographically the court is probably more widely representative of the entire nation than at any time in its history. Three Justices are from the East, two from the Middle West, two from the South and two from the Far West, including one from the Northwest.

The notion that nine Justices, so selected by three Presidents of both parties from nine different states over a period of more than 20 years, should be deliberately and calculatedly opposed to the country's security is ridiculous on its face.

The Supreme Court is not sacrosanct. It is not above criticism. It needs public attention, interest and vigilance because its work is just as important in our federal system as the work of the presidency and of Congress. But the country ought to be grateful to Senator Hennings for holding up the vindictive Jenner bill to public inspection.

Advantages of Higher Education?

I hoped to make many new friends in college.

I thought college life would help me to develop socially.

Most of my friends were going to college.

The persons I respected most in my community had gone to college.

I felt I could lead an easier life if I had a college education.

These are not lines cut out of some campus burlesque. They are samples of the answers received by the United States Office of Education when it asked college students what they expect to get from their college degree.

Of course, more serious answers also were received. Many students did have occupational or academic reasons for study. But the number of purely personal or social reasons was astonishingly large. They shed more than a little light on why the nation is short of "eggheads."

The primary blame, however, may not rest on these students. Surely they were not "set on the right course" at home. Their high schools hardly inculcated suitable "motivations." And apparently some of these young people were not disabused by their college teachers.

Perhaps some of the time and money being expended on these students might accomplish its purpose if they were assembled for a lecture on what colleges are for.

Budget Reform, Chapter II

Having given the state a sound and comprehensive operating budget, Gov. Blair now proposes a second needed reform: a capital projects budget.

Before the operating budget system was adopted, appropriations were based more on demand than on need, there was little real planning for them, and the Governor had slight control over the budget though the Constitution makes him responsible for it. Now the same things can be said of the state's long-range building program.

Gov. Blair points out that the Legislature usually has gone at capital projects wrong-end-to. It provides funds, or calls for bond issues, and then specific needs are determined. The system, he says, is "hit or miss and without sound organization and planning." Moreover, governors have little control over it.

The first reform which Gov. Blair suggests is to place the Division of Public Buildings under the Comptroller and Budget Division, instead of under the Revenue Department. This would permit strict budgetary control of capital projects, an inventory of assets, a study of future needs and planning to meet them.

Then Gov. Blair proposes a pay-as-you-go plan for financing state building programs. Such financing would be more advantageous than what the Governor calls "crisis-fed" bond issues. Bond issues cost the taxpayers money; their interest payments build no buildings. Neighboring Kansas earmarks a fraction of its tax revenue for long-range construction of state college and university buildings. Thus Kansas institutions of higher learning are never as starved for buildings as those in Missouri. But while it is not essential to earmark funds for construction projects, it is essential to plan and finance such projects well in advance, so they do not have to compete each year with immediate operating needs. Gov. Blair suggests a long-range program covering at least two bienniums.

The Governor has relied heavily on recommendations of the state's Little Hoover Commission, which reported the need for better budgeting three years ago. Action by the current special session on a capital projects budget would complete the invaluable program of budgetary reform.

Good News From North Africa

One dangerously frozen international situation—that involving France and Tunisia—has begun to thaw out at least a little and the moderating temperature is a good sign for all the world. Both contending countries have accepted the good offices of Britain and the United States to settle the differences which have brought a new crisis to North Africa.

Tunisia accepted the tender of mediation first and since Tunisian lives were destroyed wholesale a week ago Saturday in the murderous French bombing raid on the town of Sakiet Sidi Youssef, France could hardly be other than as conciliatory as Tunisia. Indeed Paris itself seemed to be so shocked by the wanton destruction of innocent lives that Premier Gaillard probably was as eager as Tunisia's President Bourguiba to refer the tragic dispute to friends of both countries for settlement.

The course of peace is not only troubled but complex as this situation demonstrates so strikingly. For the Tunisian crisis is collateral to that which persists in Algeria. France claimed that arms shipments by Britain and the United States to Tunisia were in reality sales to the Moroccan rebels, since munitions readily found their way from Tunisia to Algeria and Morocco to be used against the French in their North African colonial struggles. Thus in recent weeks the side issue of Tunisia has tended to obscure the main troubles of the French across the Mediterranean.

One aspect of the Tunisian crisis ought to have special attention from the mediators. That is the irresponsibility with which a local French commander could precipitate a critical juncture by ordering the inhumane raid on Tunisian civilians. In a time when more and more nuclear weapons are being piled up by the leading powers, care must be greater than ever against the start of hostilities by some reckless, inflammatory act.

What happened in Tunisia is a warning that something much worse might be touched off in the same headlong way—unless the U.N. is more consistently vigilant in preventing disputes from reaching such proportions.

Lessons From Chairman Doerfer

One piece of remedial legislation is already indicated on the basis of the disclosures in connection with the House subcommittee's investigation of the independent regulatory agencies. This would be an act of Congress prohibiting commissioners from accepting fees, honorariums, expenses and favors from individuals and groups within the industries which the officials are responsible for regulating.

The case of Chairman John C. Doerfer of the Federal Communications Commission is in point and it should not be lost sight of no matter how many more cases come up on even higher levels.

Mr. Doerfer, a former Republican chairman of the Wisconsin Public Utilities Commission, advanced to the FCC in Washington by President Eisenhower in 1953, has testified that he accepted expense money and honorariums from a national association made up of radio and television companies.

The FCC chairman dismissed a payment of $575 from the radio and TV industry as inconsequential. He said: "Hell, if I'd gone out to Spokane and accepted $10,000 there would be something to investigate!" Mr. Doerfer does not seem to realize that adherence to principle is essential in the conduct of public affairs.

After the subcommittee's staff report was leaked to newspapers, Mr. Doerfer sent back to an Oklahoma television station $165 paid to him some three years ago. So, in that case at least, he came to believe he had taken money which his official position barred him from keeping.

In any case, Chairman Doerfer is in conflict with Comptroller General Joseph Campbell's interpretation of the statute which Mr. Doerfer cites as his protection. In the first place, Mr. Campbell, who is in effect Congress's watchdog over how its appropriations are spent, says that the law allowing honorariums to FCC members did not contemplate such gifts in connection with official duties—but only in "situations more of a private nature, not related to a commissioner's official duties."

Comptroller General Campbell also finds Chairman Doerfer out of bounds in taking expense money for the same trip from both the Federal Government and some private group or organization. If this is a violation of federal law it ought to be cited against Chairman Doerfer forthwith. He surely knows the law governing his own official operations.

Attorney General Rogers commendably has ordered the FBI to investigate the charges against FCC Commissioner Mack and the questionable Miami "loans." Now let the new head of the Department of Justice assure us all that the yardstick of the law is being put down alongside the conduct of John C. Doerfer.

Mechanical Brain Trouble

Mistakes and disappointments, alas, have long been the lot of man. Consider the case of the student who feels that he passed an examination triumphantly and then gets his blue book back marked not with a big A but a C.

He and mortals in general may find solace of a sort in the explanation of Dr. Nicholas C. Metropolis, director of the Institute for Computer Research at the University of Chicago, that the mechanical brains also have trouble—especially with figures. They seem to be especially weak in subtraction; and the more complicated a mathematical problem is, the worse their inaccuracy becomes. This is understandable enough to a mere human.

Dr. Metropolis told a congressional subcommittee that he is deeply concerned because the machine-brains do not recognize their mistakes, and do not call attention to them. This, too, is understandable. Few of use recognize our mistakes, and even fewer call attention to them.

They are going to build a new machine in Chicago, however, which will tell at every stage of a problem how accurate—or inaccurate—it is. And then? Will a mere man have to take pencil in hand? Or will the problem be tried on another machine, a smarter one?

"BUT LEAVE THE KID IN THE GARAGE"

How the Scholarship Plan Would Work

Questions and Answers on President's Proposal to Jack Up Education

From U.S. News & World Report

What is the President really after in the new education program he submitted to Congress?

Better teaching, more and better-trained graduates in the sciences, in mathematics, and in foreign languages.

How does he propose to go about achieving this?

By spending a billion dollars of federal money in the next four years for aid to students, teachers and schools.

Who would get this money?

Around $100,000,000 would go in the four years to scholarships for college students; about $74,000,000 would be spent on expansion of graduate education, including fellowships; many teachers of science and mathematics in lower schools would get raises, and schools would be helped to find and train boys and girls with special talents.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

How many students would get these college scholarships?

About 10,000 a year, or 40,000 during the four-year period, under the President's plan and under bills introduced in Congress to carry out the plan.

How much would a scholarship pay?

The maximum amount would be $1000 a year, but some would be less than that. Each state would receive an allotment from the Federal Government for scholarships and the state would decide how to handle this money. It's certain, however, that most students will need more than their scholarship money to pay their way through college. That means outside work or help from home.

Who would qualify?

First of all, a scholarship student under the program must show special aptitude and he must have a high-school diploma or the equivalent. Also, he must be "needy"—that is, his family must not be in a financial position to pay his way through college.

How would a student go about applying for a scholarship?

Each state would have its own system for administering the scholarship program, but an applicant would apply through his state's department of education.

Would a scholarship cover all four years of college?

That would be the usual rule, though there is no guarantee of four years. A student would have to keep up good work in college.

Could a student choose his own school?

Yes. He could select an accredited college in another state or even in a foreign country. Also, he could select his course of study.

What about the fellowships?

The fellowships are designed to encourage more students to prepare for teaching careers in college. To qualify, a student would have to hold a bachelor's or master's degree and would have to follow a course leading to a degree of doctor of philosophy or an equivalent degree.

How would the foreign-language program work?

The Federal Government would give the states financial help in setting up and operating centers for the teaching of foreign languages. Also, some students who plan to teach languages in colleges would be able to get Government aid.

Most of the President's program—except for scholarships and fellowships—would be on a 50-50 matching basis, with states paying half of the cost.

How much would a fellowship pay?

The proposed law sets no top amount for fellowships.

Individual colleges and universities would handle the fellowship awards.

What teachers would get pay raises?

That would be largely up to individual states participating in this part of the program. The general plan calls for the hiring of additional science and math teachers in high schools, the increasing of pay for some and helping others to get further training. Some schools would get better laboratories and equipment.

How would students with special qualifications be found?

The program calls for an elaborate system for testing boys and girls in both elementary and secondary schools. The idea is to give special counseling and guidance training to those with unusual talents.

This is a general plan that Congress will be considering in the weeks ahead. Some legislators says that it does not go far enough and that federal aid for school construction should be included; others want less federal participation in education. Another group objects that, at the same time, the Administration is proposing to cut Government aid to schools near military bases and establishments where there are many school children of families employed by the Government. Congress will consider all these things.

Look Homeward on Broadway From the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal

If Thomas Wolfe had been given his choice he might well have been an actor or a playwright. Tom trained for the stage, both at Chapel Hill and at Harvard. He had high hopes that one of his early plays, "The Mountaineers," would be a success.

"It's the best play that has been written here this year," he said of it, "simply because I have burned with eagerness and desire to have the truth out." But he found, to his sorrow, that eagerness and desire were not enough. A Broadway producer whom Wolfe approached in behalf of one of his plays gave him two $5 bills as a handout. Although Tom was destined to reach the pinnacle of success as a novelist, he never made the grade as a playwright.

But Broadway is seeing an impressive demonstration of the fact that Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel" contains the stuff of good drama. New York's usually restrained critics almost threw their hats in the air when they saw Ketti Frings' adaptation of Wolfe's first—and many think his greatest—novel.

Walter Kerr, writing in the New York Herald Tribune was struck by the "perfect, perfectly sustained tension" with which the play holds the violently opposed emotions of love and fury in balance. Brooks Akinson said in The New York Times that Miss Frings "has done her work with understanding as well as skill. . . . The performance is magnificient."

What a thrill Wolfe would experience if he could see his wordy, rambling work of autobiography reduced to manageable proportions for the stage. For he once acknowledged that a persistent fault of his was to try "to reproduce in its entirety the full flood and fabric of a scene in life itself."

Thomas Wolfe

If Wolfe could know the praise that Anthony Perkins' performance as Eugene Gant brought forth, Tom's massive frame would rock with laughter at those who rejected his claim that he "can write better plays than most of those on Broadway."

Between Book Ends: Three Diverse Works

Fought to a Draw

THE PROFESSIONAL, by W. C. Heinz. (Harper, 338 pgs., $3.95.)

Reporter Frank Hughes is assigned to the training camp of middleweight challenger Eddie Brown, "the Professional." Hughes must record Eddie's activities from his roadwork to his memories.

The training camp is overrun with assorted punchers, trainers and managers. They spar, pant and reminisce. Three hundred and twenty-four pages later, the bell clangs for round one of the title bout.

This novel is a second cousin to one Barnaby Conrad wrote in 1952 and called "Matador." Conrad's hero, Pacote, wielded a slender sword against a bull rather than eight-ounce gloves against a champion. Pacote stepped into the bull-ring instead of the prize-ring, but had to face the "moment of truth" much as did Eddie Brown. But Eddie Brown's moment of truth extends only a modest distance beyond accurate ring idiom and considerations of leather-trajectory. "The Professional" is, therefore, a long, earnest bout, fought to a draw.

Helpful Companion

A HOMERIC DICTIONARY FOR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES, based upon the German of Georg Autenrieth. Translated and Edited by Robert P. Keep. (University of Oklahoma Press, 297 pgs., $3.95.)

For the greater part of a century Autenrieth's "A Homeric Dictionary" has been the companion of countless individuals in their study of Homer, being by far and away the handiest and most helpful of all the aids to the reading of Homeric Greek. Much credit for the return of it to print is given to Robin McCoy, headmaster of Thomas Jefferson School, St. Louis, who has supplied a preface to the edition.

Excellent Handbook

COMPLETE DUCK SHOOTER'S HANDBOOK, by Robert Scharff. (Putnam, $5.95.)

The dedication of this excellent handbook, "To Tippie (My Golden Retriever), the Best Duck Hunter and Blind Companion I Know," is a tip-off to Scharff's opinion regarding the staggering loss of crippled waterfowl. He backs it up by saying, ". . . the greatest single contribution that the average sportsman can make to the conservation of waterfowl is the use of a retrieving dog."

Perhaps the strongest chapter in the entire 250 pages is "Blinds, Decoys and Calls." It will prove informative to even the most skilled waterfowler. "How to Hit Ducks" reads well, but experience is the best teacher.

The handbook gives all the facts on ducks, equipment, shooting, locations, and even a chapter on cooking the birds. Z. Lee Stokley

TIMOTHY HENNESSY ART EXHIBIT OPENS

Former St. Louisan Has His First One-Man Show Here.

By GEORGE McCUE

Timothy Hennessy, 33-year-old painter who formerly lived in St. Louis and now makes his home on a Greek island, opened his first one-man show in St. Louis yesterday. The only specimens of his work previously shown in St. Louis were a few collages in 1953, so there was much advance interest in the current show at the Martin Schweig gallery, 4657 Maryland avenue.

Visitors at the opening found 30 paintings and a number of color drawings, all representing various stages of exploration of an original and highly personal style.

Its first manifestations are in a group of paintings done in Venice several years ago. These are arrangements of buildings, seen as a row of classic facades beyond which are visible the upper portions of other buildings—pediments, domes and towers, all pulled forward and crowded together as though seen through a camera with a long lens. In the foreground are areas of pavement and piazzas in mosaic designs.

Touches of Color.

The total effect, in these and later paintings, is largely one of black and white outlines of many forms, moving towards one another, converging, criss-crossing and forming patterns that are related to the images in the pictures, and yet have a life of their own. Occasional touches of red, blue and yellow glow among the black outlines, like bits of stained glass.

The early paintings in the series, which have such titles as "The Canal," "The Archway" and "The Palace" are complex compositions, but they seem quite loose by comparison with a later series, also done in Venice.

In this group, the features of classic architecture again provide the settings, but the patterns of criss-crossing lines here take on independent existence as a geometrical lace that covers most of the picture surface with heavy black lines. Within this network, which has been likened to the cracks in a broken windshield and to railroad maps without lettering, structures and human forms take shape, sometimes elusively.

Pushing and Pulling.

In "The Arcade," a large sculpture is seen in an arched niche, on one side of it a bit of paneling that thrusts out at the spectator, on the other a corridor that is given depth by a receding effect of the lacework. This busy pushing and pulling sensation is felt also in "Pieta," in which the figures are given a rather shadowy quality that gradually takes on prominence and strength.

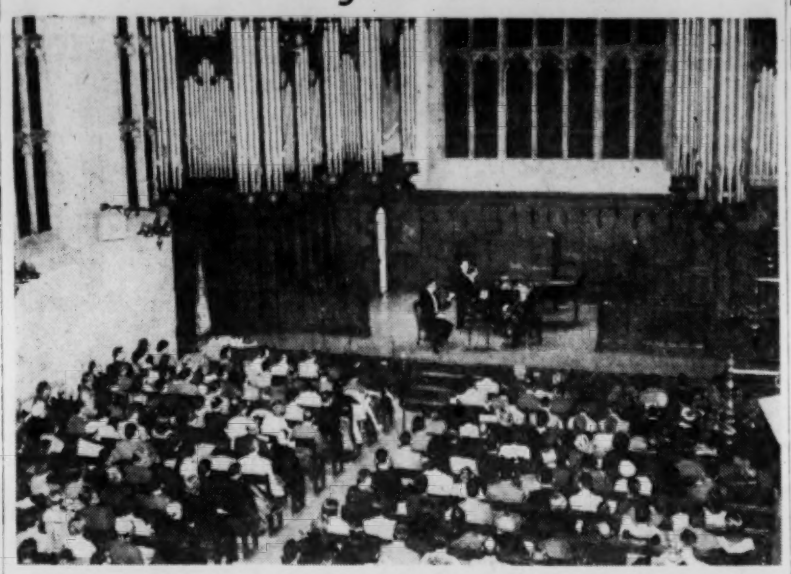

"The Concert" presents a multitude of figures in a large hall, filling the floor area and occupying boxes and loges. In this, as in other paintings, human figures are handled as blocked-in outlines without features or hands; they are given no identity as individuals, but their roles are readily understood.

The most recent works in the show are several painted since Hennessy and his Italian wife settled in Greece. Their networks are very tight and intricate, and tend toward the abstract. "The Crowd" repeats the idea of a deep vista of faces and heads, but these are reduced to rhythmic white spots against a contour line of structures.

In many respects, the later Venice phase seems to represent the high point of this style. In it, the painter exploits the rather fascinating possibilities of his reticulations to define both space and solid objects, as well as to convey a sense of meaning to the spectator.

The newest paintings are expressions of a more private and personal sort, almost meaningless if removed from the context of what has gone before, and they give the impression of works in transition. The show runs through Feb. 26.

McConnaughey's son. Regards."

At the bottom of the wire is a notation that the reply was phoned back, "David C."

Stanton, a busy man, next had two meetings with young Dave, then wrote his father on Dec. 3:

"Dear George:

"You can well be proud of Dave. I had two very interesting meetings with him, and only hope that the discussions were helpful in his efforts to orient himself. I have offered to open some doors, and if there is anything further I can do, I will be only too glad to try my hand at it.

"With all good wishes to you and Mrs. McConnaughey."

Simultaneously, Stanton wrote young Dave as follows:

Dec. 3, 1955

"Dear Dave:

"I meant to offer these reprints to you this morning. The second part of my testimony before the Potter committee was an effort to describe the network business. It may be of interest if you go forward with your plans to get into television.

"I shall look forward to hearing from you if you wish me to get in touch with Hugh Terry at KLZ-TV. And if you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to let me know.

"With all good wishes."

To Head of TV Station.

The CBS chief next wrote a letter to Hugh Terry, president of KLZ-TV, a CBS affiliate in Denver:

"I hope I did not disturb you by calling as late as I did last evening, but yesterday was a long day for me, on top of a hectic Monday night. In fact, the complexities of this job seem to have increased geometrically ever since I took it. And come Jan. 9, it will be 10 years. I think maybe Ed Kobak, Mark Woods, Niles Trammell, Joe McConnell, Frank White and even Pat Weaver had the right idea.

"I will appreciate anything you can do for young McConnaughey. As I indicated in our conversation last night, he is interested in getting started in television. He has had no television experience, but he did get some armed forces radio station management experience during his 4½ years in the Army. He is a graduate of Denison University (Granville, Ohio), age 27, and as far as I can determine, has no personal plans which in any way would interfere with his ambition to do a good job in any community which can offer him an opportunity.

Opening the Door.

"I promised McConnaughey nothing beyond the fact that I would open the door for him so that he could meet you and see what possibilities might exist for employment. I advised him against taking any job with a network because of the pending network inquiries both at the Commission and on the Hill. I further advised I thought it would be unwise for him to seek employment with licensees who had matters pending before the Commission. . . .

"All of these factors, in my opinion, pointed very heavily in the direction of Denver and KLZ-TV, and more specifically, Hugh Terry.

"If you have time after you have seen McConnaughey, I would be more than grateful for a telephone call.

"With all good wishes to you and Betty."

In the end, the son of the chairman of the Commission which regulates the television industry went to work for a TV station in Lansing, Mich. His father is now practicing law in Columbus, Ohio.

MRS. SARAH LAPPIN DIES

Mrs. Sarah Lappin, active in Jewish charitable organizations here for many years, died yesterday at Jewish Hospital after a brief illness. She was 70 years old and lived at 8323 Delmar boulevard, University City.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at 1 p.m. at the Berger undertaking establishment, 4715 McPherson avenue, with burial in Chevra Kadisha Cemetery. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Mollie Rohald, Mrs. Ann Tucker, Mrs. Ruth Kleyman, all of St. Louis, and a son, Morris Lappin of Miami, Fla.

COMPOSER COPLAND IN CHAMBER CONCERT

Plays Own Music With Quartet in Washington U. Series.

By MANUS SASONKIN

Aaron Copland, whose music was featured at a chamber music concert presented by Washington University at Graham Memorial Chapel last evening, is a rather difficult composer to assess.

On the one hand, he has shown himself to be a sincere, forward-looking and serious musician, capable of a genuine eloquence and a distinctive style. On the other hand, he has perpetrated some dismally self-conscious and provincial attempts at a pseudo-American brand of Art-Music (as though culture, beneath the veneer of mannerism, were a national commodity, capable of being tagged and branded).

Happily, last night's concert displayed the cosmopolitan aspects of Copland—the Aaron Jekyll, as it were—thus sparing me the necessity of elaborating the premise that Art is international, and Art which is not international is inferior—if not necessarily feeble—Art. And even though Copland, in a kind of introductory chalk-talk, suggested that the Violin Sonata of 1943 was designed as "American Music," I did not feel, once the opening measures were disposed of, that he took this sort of platitude seriously.

As was suggested, Copland's music is not the easiest music to listen to. None of the works on the program were ostentatiously melodious; harmonies ranged from a frankly conservative idiom (in the Violin Sonata) to experiments in quarter tones and other forms of dissonance.

At no time did Copland attempt to conciliate his audience with mere prettiness, for which steadfast integrity he is to be congratulated without restraint.

For me, the most impressive work on the program was the Quartet for Piano and Strings (1950). Somber in character, it consists of two slow movements inclosing a scherzo-like Allegro. The entire Quartet displayed Copland to best advantage, for the outer movements were brief, while the Allegro, which was far more expansive, served as an effective offset. The striking contrast was intensified by the long, rather contrapuntal lines of the opening Adagio and the concluding Lento, working in apposition with the terse, motivic concept of the central movement.

My one complaint—a recurring one—is that Copland's music often seems discursive and lacking in concentration. A bit of tightening up, of compression, would, I believe, have heightened the effectiveness of al the music heard last night.

The performances seemed fine. Harry Farbman was the violinist; Herbert van den Burg, the violist; and Leslie Parnas, the violoncellist. William Schatzkamer realized the piano parts of the Trio and Sonata, and Copland himself officiated during the Quartet. A large and enthusiastic audience applauded the composer and performers.

WILLIAM LEHDE TO RETIRE, VETERAN SCHOOL CUSTODIAN

William H. Lehde, who has served as custodian of Scullin School, 4160 North Kingshighway, for 30 years and holds the record for employment in that capacity at one school, will retire March 21, the Board of Education announced today.

Lehde, 64 years old, of 7 Green Acres road, Bellefontaine Neighbors, and his wife will be honored by the Scullin School faculty Saturday at a luncheon. The school's patrons' association held a special program in his honor Friday.

The Board of Education said Lehde joined its employ in April 1924 and was custodian at the Madison School before Scullin School opened in December 1927. He has had charge of the Scullin School plant since it was activated.

ANASTASIOS PAPPAS FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Retired Theater Man Was Leader of Greek Community.

Funeral service for Anastasios D. Pappas, a former theater owner, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church, 4957 Forest Park avenue, with burial in St. Matthew Cemetery.

Mr. Pappas, 78 years old, died of a heart ailment yesterday at Barnes Hospital. He was associated in the theater business with Spyros, Charles and George Skouras from 1926 until his retirement shortly after World War II. From 1914 to 1925, he also was co-owner of the old Majestic Theater at 1024 Franklin avenue, one of the first vaudeville houses in this area.

A native of Greece, Mr. Pappas was forced by the Truks to flee to this country in 1903 because he fought against them in resistance movements. He served with the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service for about five years after his arrival here.

He was a leader in the Greek community here, serving as chairman of Greek War Relief in World War II and helping establish St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church. He lived at 5435 Maple avenue.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Efemia Pappas, two sons, Theodore Pappas and Leon Pappas, and four daughters, Miss Helen Pappas, Miss Gloria Pappas, Mrs. Mary Boudoures and Mrs. Irene Stovall.

F. E. HOWELER FUNERAL

Funeral services for Frederick E. Howeler, a retired St. Louis policeman, will be held Wednesday, 10 a.m. at St. Edward's Catholic Church, Clara and Maffitt avenues, with burial in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Mr. Howeler, who was 75 years old, collapsed and died yesterday when walking to church with his wife. He joined the Police Department in 1908 and retired in 1943, as a patrolman. He lived at 5645 Cote Brilliante avenue. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lulu Howeler, and a daughter, Mrs. Grace Handing.

CLUB FOR DEAF PICKS QUEEN

Miss Claire Pudlowski, a comptometer operator, was named queen at a dance held by a deaf and hard-of-hearing club Saturday night at St. Alphonsus (Rock) Church at 1118 North Grand boulevard. The queen, 21 years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Pudlowski, 4231 South Thirty-Seventh street.

The dance, attended by 300 persons, was held to raise funds to build a center for the deaf on the church grounds.

CONCERT CANCELED BY RUSSIAN PIANIST

Tomorrow's Symphony Program Called Off—Gilels Is Ill.

Emil Gilels, Russian pianist, has canceled his scheduled appearance tomorrow with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra because of illness, causing the special concert to be called off, it was announced today.

Ticket holders may obtain cash refunds at the symphony box office in Kiel Auditorium or at the Aeolian box office, 1004 Olive street, a spokesman said. The tickets also may be exchanged for those to the concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 2, featuring Russian violinist, Leonid Kogan.

Gilels has influenza and cannot travel for three or four days, the pianist's New York management said. The artist also was reported to be exhausted because of the numerous concerts and recording engagements undertaken since he began his tour Jan. 4. Gilels made his first concert tour of the country in 1955.

As a result of the cancellation, Kogan will be the first artist from the Soviet Union to appear in St. Louis in the postwar era. Kogan, praised by critics since making his American debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra last month, will play the Brahms violin concerto and give the first St. Louis performance in many years of the Vivaldi Violin Concerto in G Minor. Vladimir Golschmann will conduct.

The orchestra will resume its regular subscription series with concerts Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, with pianist Geza Anda as guest soloist.

WILLIAM DOANE FUNERAL

Funeral services for William W. Doane, former president of the old Doane Carton Co., will be tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City, with entombment in Winfield, Kan. He was 86 years old and died Saturday at DePaul Hospital.

Mr. Doane retired from business in 1938 and his firm was bought by the Gaylord Container Corporation. He lived at 9722 Lookout drive. Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Adele Lamport Doane.

Viscount Lambert Dies.

SPREYTON, England, Feb. 17 (AP)—Viscount Lambert, a Liberal party leader and long a member of Parliament, died today. He was 91 years old. As George Lambert, he was first elected to Parliament in 1891, when William Gladstone was the Liberal Prime Minister. Except for a four-year period, he remained in the House of Commons until 1945, when he was created a viscount and moved up to the House of Lords.

Dead

MRS. CHARLES LUKE

JOHN MOODY DIES, FINANCIAL ANALYST

Founded Investors Service and Edited Business Publications.

LA JOLLA, Calif., Feb. 17 (AP)—John Moody, founder of Moody's Investors Service, died yesterday in Scripps Memorial Hospital after a brief illness. He was 89 years old.

A former newspaper man who turned to banking in 1890, Mr. Moody gained world-wide fame as a financial analyst. The service he founded in 1900 now supplies a vast storehouse of information to the nation's banks, investment houses and business executives.

Mr. Moody moved to La Jolla from New York last October. He entered the hospital two weeks ago.

Before founding Moody's Manual of Railroad and Corporate Securities in 1900, he was with the banking house of Spencer, Trask & Co. In 1905, he founded and was editor of Moody's Magazine, a monthly publication for investors, and in 1909 he founded Moody's Analyses of Investments, an annual analytical reference publication.

He was board chairman of Moody's Investors Service, which furnished financial and investment service to banks, insurance companies, investment trusts, and investors.

Mr. Moody also was director of Moody's-Economist Services, Ltd., London, and Board chairman of Moody's Investors Service, Ltd., London. He wrote numerous books on investment and financial matters.

Surgery on Martha Raye.

MANHASSET, N.Y., Feb. 17 (AP)—Actress Martha Raye was resting comfortably in a hospital here today after an emergency appendectomy last night.

MRS. CHARLES LUKE, PHOTOGRAPHER, DIES

Used Professional Name Ruth Cunliff Russell; Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles F. Luke, who as a professional photographer used the name Ruth Cunliff Russell, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Luke, 58 years old, died yesterday at St. John's Hospital of cancer. She had been ill since last fall.

She was official photographer of the Municipal Opera for 22 years and formerly was local representative of International Newsphoto Service.

Mrs. Luke was a member of First Congregational Church, the Wednesday Club, the St. Louis Woman's Club and a member of the board of the Epworth School for Girls. She attended Washington University and lived at 2 Brookside, Ladue.

Surviving are her husband, an attorney; a daughter, Carol; a sister, Mrs. Stuart C. Mahanay of St. Louis, and four brothers, Nelson and William H. Cunliff, partners in an engineering firm bearing their name; Albert E. Cunliff, St. Louis attorney, and Ben Cunliff of Nashville, Tenn.

COMEDIAN JOE FRISCO DIES OF CANCER IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 17 (AP)—Stuttering comedian Joe Frisco died of cancer last night in the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital. He was 68 years old.

He had been ill several months but appeared on a radio program four weeks ago and a week later was honored at a Hollywood Masquers Club testimonial dinner attended by 1200 persons.

He began his theatrical career at 15. He became a star of vaudeville and night clubs and appeared in movies. His most recent film role was in "Sweet Smell of Success." He was probably most noted for his hilarious tales of betting on the horses. He was a favorite of other comedians who sought him out for help in developing gags. He is survived by a brother, William, of East Moline, Ill.

Burda, Sadowski Pound Ball in Young Cards' First Squad Game

St. Louis Boys Get Losers' 5 Safeties

By J. Roy Stockton
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 17—There's nothing like competitive baseball, even an unimportant squad game, to bring out the strength and weaknesses of young ball players. Cardinal rookies, outstanding players from Class B, C and D league clubs, played a six-inning game at Al Lang Field yesterday and when it was over, with the Redbirds defeating the Cardinals, 4 to 1, there was more to find fault with than there was to rave about.

Players who had swung potent bats in the practice cage struck out or found themselves bouncing or popping up awkwardly. Pitchers with strong arms had difficulty finding the strike zone. Catchers held their gloves wrong on low pitches and outfielders didn't judge fly balls very well.

That's what the manager, Fred Hutchinson, and his coaches were looking for, however. They knew the collection of athletes represented a lot of talent, many major leaguers of the future, but they knew the players still were some distance away from their ultimate goal and needed coaching to smooth out the rough spots.

St. Louisans Do Well.

Two young men from St. Louis, one with no professional experience, distinguished themselves by getting all of the safeties made by the losing team, dubbed the Cardinals. Bob Burda, 19-year-old outfielder from Ritenour High School, contributed two singles and a triple and Bob Sadowski, from Webster Groves, with three years of minor league ball behind him, singled and tripled.

The Cardinals aren't sure what they're going to do with Burda, a bonus youngster. He has a lot of ability, swings a bat sharply, does a good fly-chasing job and has a good arm. Tentatively he's assigned to the York club of the Eastern League. That's Class A baseball, however, and that's starting a high school graduate in rather fast company.

"Maybe he can make it," Cardinal officials said in discussing the Ritenour athlete, "but one of the dangers is starting a boy in too fast company. It's much better if he can go somewhere where he'll do as well as he did in high school. On the other hand we'd like to advance the boys as rapidly as possible. We'll have to wait, before deciding on Burda, until he's had more chance to show his ability in squad games."

Hutchinson believes you can learn more about young players in one squad game than you can in two weeks of mere practice and plans to have similar contests tomorrow and Wednesday. Then the Cards journey to Lakeland Thursday and Friday for games with rookies in the Detroit Tiger camp, and to Clearwater next Sunday and Monday for games with young Phillies.

Hutchinson and his coaches met with General Manager Bing Devine, Walter Shannon, George Silvey and Joe Mathes after the squad game and discussed this week's program, including special instruction and drilling for individuals.

A Look at 4 Pitchers.

Four pitchers worked in the squad game and did a lot of hard throwing. Bob Greer, a left-hander with seemingly unusual speed, pitched as young southpaws so frequently do. He was wild, walking four men and making two wild pitches to give the Redbirds their four runs in the fourth inning. But, despite that wildness, the pitching coaches agreed he is a fine prospect.

"I believe we can help him," Coach Al Hollingsworth said. "He was a little scared, and he was throwing instead of pitching. I believe, with a little more concentration and work, he'll improve quickly. The trouble with a young pitcher is that, instead of using his stuff, he just tries to throw harder and harder when he's in trouble; and of course that ruins anybody's control."

Cal Browning, left-hander, and Carlos Thorne, the bow-legged right-hander, each pitched three scoreless innings as starters. They had pitched winter ball. The fourth pitcher of the day, Peter Shultis, was plainly nervous. Thorne struck out five in his three innings.

Duke Carmel, who had been impressive in batting practice, didn't look good in the squad game. The high fast ball seemed to bother him.

"Don't ever quit on anybody like that," Hutch advised wisely. "Those kind have a lot to learn. But they have a lot of talent."

Roberto Herrera, big 18-year-old Cuban catcher, showed an unusually fine throwing arm and courage to use it. With the bases filled he rifled a pick-off throw to second base.

He will be sent to some club that has a teammate who can teach Roberto English. It helps if a pitcher knows what his catcher is saying to him, and vice versa.

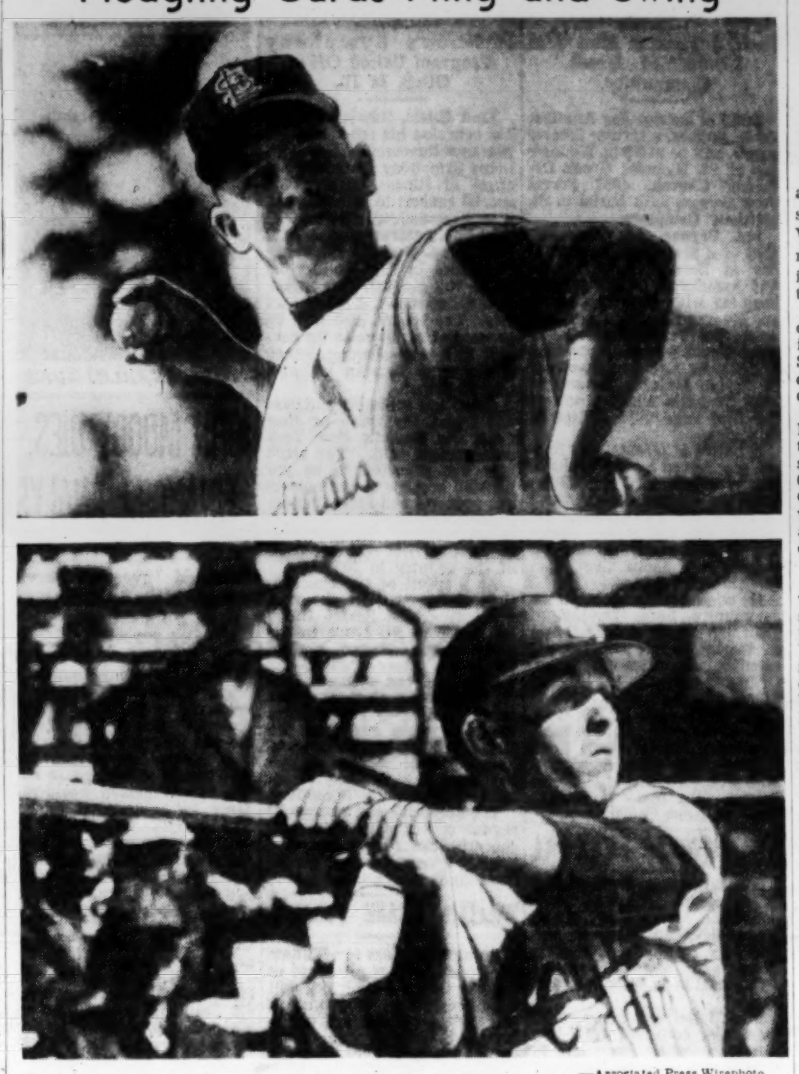

Boushka Scores 28 Points; Wichita Wins

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Feb. 17 (AP)—Wichita increased its National Industrial Basketball League lead, defeating Kansas City, 131-97, here.

Dick Boushka scored 28 points and Dan Swartz tallied 25 for Wichita. Dick Brott paced Kansas City with 26.

The victory put Wichita a full game ahead of second place Bartlesville.

Prominent in the early training camp of the Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla., have been these two St. Louis area youngsters. At top, Pitcher BOB MILLER is poised to fire a right-hand pitch. Bob is a Beaumont High product. Below, BOB BURDA, $30,000 bonus boy from Illinois U., takes a cut with the bat in a camp game. Burda, of Overland, got three hits in the practice match. Miller is on the Cardinals' roster, Burda belongs to the York (Pa.) farm club.

Bowdry's Foe Tonight Has Won 13 of 17 Bouts

By W. J. McGoogan

Jesse Bowdry, who has hopes of moving into the big time, will try to make Pedro Bradley of New Orleans his ninth successive victim when they tangle at St. Louis House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, tonight in the main event of Lou Wallach's second boxing program of the year.

The contest, scheduled for 8 rounds, will top a card of five events which include another 8-rounder and three at four rounds.

Bowdry has an impressive record of 18 triumphs in 20 bouts, 17 by knockouts, and is angling for important contests in New York and Chicago.

Bradley, too, has a good past performance chart with 13 victories in 17 bouts. He lost three and drew in one.

Eddie Sims, one man who stayed the distance with Bowdry, other than Sonny Ray who knocked out Jesse, was kayoed by Bradley in five rounds. Ray also holds a 6-round verdict over Bowdry.

Al Jones, local middleweight, who dropped a decision to Wally Johnson, Chicago, at St. Louis House, will attempt to avenge that setback in an 8-round semifinal. Johnson, boxing his first pro bout, made a good impression in his victory over Jones.

St. Louis House Card

Jack McCracken, St. Louis vs. Johnny Moore, Chicago, Middleweights, 4 rounds.
Gene Dale, St. Louis, vs. "Flattop" Miller, Berwyn, Ill. Lightweights, 4 rounds.
King Farouk, Detroit, vs. Elmer Shippe, Peoria, Ill. Welterweights, 4 rounds.
Al Jones, St. Louis, vs. Wally Johnson, Chicago, Welterweights, 8 rounds.
Jesse Bowdry, St. Louis, vs. Pero Bradley, New Orleans, Light-heavyweights, 8 rounds.

The first contest is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock.

Trip to Russia By U.S. Basket Teams Planned

LONDON, Feb. 17 (UP)—The Soviet News said today United States men's and women's basketball teams would play "friendly games" in Russia in April.

"The American players, winners of several Olympic championships, are considered to be the strongest exponents of the game in the world," the paper, published in London by the Soviet Embassy, said.

The United States-Russian basketball series is part of the recently concluded cultural agreement between the two countries. The first dual track and field meet between the two countries will take place in Moscow's new Lenin Stadium, July 27-28.

The American men's basketball team for the trip will be selected at the National A.A.U. championships in Denver, Colo., March 24-29. The women's team will be picked at the National A.A.U. women's tournament at St. Joseph, Mo., March 16-21.

Dan Ferris of the A.A.U. said, "The only thing lagging is the financing but we are making some progress in collecting money for the trip to Russia," Ferris said.

Sandy Amoros To Montreal

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17 (UP)—Sandy Amoros, speedy 26-year-old outfielder holdout, has been sold by the Los Angeles Dodgers to their Montreal farm of the International League.

Amoros in his five years in the majors had become known as the chronic holdout member of the Dodgers and currently is one of three unsigned members of the club. The others are Infielder Jim Gentile and Pitcher Jackie Collum.

Remember? 5...15...25 YEARS AGO

1953—Four National League clubs hoped for the better after a deal in which Cincinnati gave up First Baseman-Outfielder Joe Adcock and obtained Rocky Bridges, Brooklyn shortstop; the Dodgers acquired Russ Meyer, Philadelphia right-hander, while the Phillies acquired Earl Torgeson, Milwaukee first baseman, and the Braves came up with Adcock and Infielder-Outfielder Jim Pendleton off the Dodgers' Montreal farm team.

1943 — The Great Lakes topped Washington University, 51-33, but St. Louis U. defeated Loyola of Chicago, 44-39, in a college basketball doubleheader before 6523 at The Arena . . . Joe DiMaggio was inducted into the Army as a private.

1953 — Charley Bachman, Florida coach, was named to succeed Jim Crowley at Michigan State. Crowley became Fordham football mentor.

Bob Feller Signs As Mutual Network Baseball Broadcaster

CLEVELAND, Feb. 17 (AP)—Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians pitching great for 19 years before retiring two seasons ago, has been signed as a play-by-play baseball broadcaster for the Mutual Broadcasting System, the Cleveland News reported today.

The newspaper quoted Mutual sports director Norman Baer in New York as saying Feller has signed to broadcast the radio network's "Game of the Day" program, starting with an exhibition game March 29. The first regular season assignment will be the April 14 opener in Washington.

Valley Leaders Keep Billikens On Thin Edge

By Robert Morrison

The odds continue to mount against the St. Louis University Billikens in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball race. It certainly seems that if the Braves don't get 'em, the Bearcats must.

The Bills gained their fourth consecutive victory by defeating North Texas State here Saturday night, 89-60. But no encouragement developed on other fronts.

Drake U., which had been looking like an improved team, had a five-game winning streak stopped at Bradley, 77-62, and tough, high-ranked Oklahoma State couldn't prevail in a nonconference game against the Bearcats at Cincinnati, losing by 71-59.

Pressure Relief.

For the moment the Billikens won't be subjected to the pressure of the title race. They'll take off tomorrow for New York, where they will try to improve their 12-7 season record against St. John's of New York (12-5) Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

But on their way back from that game, they'll stop in Peoria for a Saturday night struggle with the Bradley Braves (14-5). Bradley currently is running second in the Valley race with an 8-2 record, behind Cincinnati's 9-1 and ahead of St. Louis's 7-2.

A victory at Bradley would send St. Louis to its next key game the following Wednesday at Cincinnati still a contender. But the St. Louis chances are growing slimmer.

Things to Come.

Cincinnati should add a tenth Valley victory tonight when it entertains Drake. The Bearcats should get their eleventh league victory Saturday when Tulsa calls on them. After the St. Louis date, Cincinnati has its only away-from-home Valley game left, at Wichita March 1.

The remaining league schedule for the other contenders:

Bradley—St. Louis U. at Peoria, Saturday; Tulsa at Peoria, Feb. 24; at Tulsa, March 1; at Wichita, March 3.

St. Louis—at Bradley, Saturday; at Cincinnati, Feb. 26; Houston here March 1; at Tulsa, March 6; at Houston, March 8.

N.I.T. Bids to St. Bonaventure And Dayton

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—Dayton (20-2) and St. Bonaventure (15-3) today became the first teams selected for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden, March 13-22.

Dayton, which has won 13 straight games, will be appearing in the N.I.T. for the seventh time and the fifth in a row. St. Bonaventure, which has won 11 straight games, will be playing in the tournament for the fourth time, the second year in a row.

Announcement of the selection was made by Walter T. McLaughlin of St. John's, chairman of the tourney selection committee.

Ten other teams still must be picked to complete the field.

Meyer's 715 Wins in Printcraft Pin Event

Ray Meyer opened with a 289 game and followed with 209 and 211, which with a six-pin handicap, gave him 715 and first place in the St. Louis Printcraft Bowling Association's handicap tourney at the St. Louis House. Alex Frigo finished second with 691, followed by Ralph Fink 669.

The tourney drew an entry of 376 tenpinners.

Skimpy Soccer Concentrates On Surprises

Two surprise developments came out of the little soccer played here yesterday.

The defeat of Kutis, 2-1, by the South Side team in a league match was equaled in its upset nature by the 2-1 triumph of the Plazas over Compton-Shenandoah in a County League playoff. These games formed a doubleheader program at Fairground Park.

On an adjacent field, three United States Junior Cup games were played but one resulted in a tie and must be replayed. Advancing to the second round in the national Junior tournament are Carondelet Sunday Morning Club, which eliminated Our Lady of Sorrows, 4-0, and St. Engelbert No. 1 team which knocked out Immaculate, 6-1. The tie, 1-1, came in the meeting of St. Engelbert No. 2 team and St. Pius.

The postponement yesterday of the Khoury League match between Pattersons and Carondelet has forced league commissioner Syl Raftery to designate Carondelet as the group representative in the Federation tournament starting next Sunday. Carondelet has an 8-point lead in the league race. Only league champion teams were to have made up the Federation tournament field.

A playoff also is necessary now in the County League because the Plaza victory gave it the second half-season title. Now it must oppose Compton-Shenandoah, first half-season winner, Wednesday night at Grounds One, Fairground.

Big Guenther Reinholdt, inside right, scored two fine goals as South Side handed Kutis its first local defeat of the season. Tom Murphy scored for Kutis. The national champions were playing without three regulars, Tom Julius, Russ Murphy and Bill Looby.

A missed penalty kick, taken by Don Gauvain of Compton-Shenandoah, cost that team a tie score in its game with Plaza. Jerry Jablonski, in the first half, and Don Markezich scored for Plaza, a team that comes from Fairmont City, Ill.

Opening-round games in the Federation tourney for the Johnny Marre trophy, will be: St. Engelbert of C.Y.C. vs. the County League champion; Kutis vs. Carondelet.

Pop's Hawkeye Spoils Hunch Bet in St. Louis Shooting Dog Stake

It was the kind of frigid day for a dog with a name like Miss Blizzard Tradewinds to win. But she didn't.

Pop's Hawkeye, a pointer male, owned and handled by Ken Donzelot of Rock Hill had two covey finds as he won the St. Louis Pointer and Setter Club's shooting dog stake yesterday at Weldon Spring.

Miss Blizzard Tradewinds, setter owned and handled by Walter Johnson, St. Louis, was second, and Cyanide Jane, pointer female, owned by Dave Hughes, Farmington, Mo., was third.

Judges were J. Earl Root, Louisiana, Mo., and Tom Bryant, Farmington.

Canada 7-0 Victor.

SOEDERTAELJE, Sweden, Feb. 17 (UP) — The Whitby Dunlops, Canada's representative in the world ice hockey championships, scored five goals in the third period Sunday to whip Soedertaelje, 7-0. Soedertaelpe, one of Sweden's best teams, was reinforced by five international players.

Joan Kristof And Van Mill Skates Victors

St. Louisans Jerry Van Mill and Joan Kristof won the junior division trophies in the Land O' Lincoln indoor speed skating meet which was concluded yesterday at Champaign, Ill. Each scored a first and a second for eight points.

Van Mill took first in the half-mile in 1:23.5 and finished second to Gil Wilson of Champaign, who set a tournament record of 2:08 in the ¾-mile. Jerry was disqualified in the 440 because of a shoulder block.

Miss Kristof won the 880 in 1:34.4 and was runner-up in the 440.

Others who contributed to the St. Louis team's 23-point total were: Jon Mars, second in the intermediate 880; Dan O'Connor, fourth in the same race; Mary Ann Smith, third in the midget 1-6 mile, and Jim Chapin, fourth in the senior 440.

Keith Meter of Glen Ellyn, Ill., beat teammate Jim Campbell for the senior men's title and Jeanne Omelenchuk of Detroit won the senior women's trophy.

Ritenour Y.M.C.A. To Defend Title in Ozark Wrestling

The Ritenour Y.M.C.A. will defend its title in the Ozark A.A.U. wrestling meet Friday and Saturday at the Arthur Hoech Junior High School, 3312 Ashby road, in Overland.

Other senior division entries include Fort Leonard Wood, Southern Illinois University, Great Lakes and area clubs and Y.M.C.A. teams. Eighty entries are expected for the novice division for high school boys under 18 who have never finished higher than third in state or A.A.U. meets.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in the open division and to the champion in the novice class. Trophies also will go to the outstanding wrestler in each division.

Information on the meet may be obtained from Jack Grubbs, Ozark A.A.U. wrestling chairmain, 10505 Maddox place, Overland.

Missouri Plays Top Teams in Big Eight Race

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 17 (AP) — The Missouri Tigers take a shot at the Kansas State Wildcats, rated No. 1 nationally, and the potent Kansas Jayhawks in Big Eight basketball this week.

The Missourians, 3-4 in the league standings, will meet Kansas here tonight and Kansas State in Columbia Saturday.

Kansas State, which won its seventh Big Eight game without a loss in beating Colorado, 68-62, last Saturday, and Kansas, 90-61 victor over Iowa State and hanging in the race at 5-2, each figure to handle the Missouri team.

Kansas also has a conference game Saturday, meeting the Nebraska Cornhuskers, 2-6 in the league, at Lincoln. Nebraska lost, 102-46, to Kansas two weeks ago at Lawrence.

Missouri's 74-53 victory over Oklahoma at Columbia last Saturday was a crippling blow to Sooner hopes of winning or sharing in the title. It left Oklahoma (5-3) half a game behind Kansas and 2½ lengths away from front-running Kansas State.

Pearson Beats Gray In Baseball Players Golf Tourney Final

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Albie Pearson, Washington rookie outfielder, battled John Gray of Philadelphia to the nineteenth hole yesterday before winning the major league division of the annual baseball players' golf tournament.

Pearson, 5 feet 6 inches tall, won on the par 4 nineteenth when Gray took a 5 after missing a two foot putt. Gray stands 6 feet, 4 inches.

Pearson reached the final by eliminating defending champion Alvin Dark of St. Louis, 4 and 2. Gray beat Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, 3 and 2.

The consolation flight was distinguished by a hole in one, the first ever made in the 27 years the event has been held. It was fired by Don Bessent of Los Angeles, who beat Del Rice of Milwaukee, 2 up.

Hawks, Coasting Toward Pennant, Are Sideswiped by Detroit

Lose in Closing Second, 100 to 98

By Harold Flachsbart

This could be pennant-clinching week for the Hawk basketball team, now within four St. Louis victories or Cincinnati defeats of winning another Western Division flag in the National Basketball Association.

Alex Hannum's men will spend the next five days at home, with games scheduled tomorrow night at Kiel Auditorium against the Minneapolis Lakers and Friday with the champion Boston Celtics. After that come contests Saturday night at Detroit and Sunday afternoon at Syracuse. Meanwhile, Cincinnati has a chance to lose to Boston, Detroit and Minneapolis.

Even after a last-second defeat yesterday by the Detroit Pistons, the Hawks are coasting toward the close of the regular N.B.A. schedule with a lead of 8½ games over second-place Cincinnati, which lost its Sunday outing at snowy Syracuse.

If there is a trace of overconfidence in the play of the talented St. Louis team, which had won three straight last week and four out of five, the Pistons knocked some of it out of the Hawks by streaking away to a couple of 25-point leads.

Cold All Over.

It was six degrees outside and the Hawks seemed just about as frigid to the 6628 Kiel spectators as they fell behind, 33-20, after one quarter and 65-40 just before the half ended. It was 67-42 in the third period after the home team missed an easy lay-up chance and also an easy follow-up shot. That's when the Hawks decided to play basketball.

A driving surge that produced 26 points to the Pistons' 12 made it 77-68 at the quarter and the dazzling comeback by a good St. Louis club continued until the score finally was tied, 88-88, on a looping long shot by Jack Coleman.

It was tied again at 90 on a hand-off from Coleman to Ed Macauley and again by Med Park at 96-96. Classy Bob Pettit, the game's No. 1 performer and high scorer with 27 points, put the Hawks ahead, 98-96, with 1:24 to go. Two free shots by Joe Holup gave the Pistons a draw with 53 seconds remaining. In the tense maneuvering that followed, the Hawks missed one shot because of Detroit's pressing tactics and Gene Shue also missed with a desperation bid for the visitors just before the finish.

That's when big Walter Dukes, gangling 7-foot former Harlem Globetrotter, became the man of the hour for the Pistons by tipping in Shue's shot. The ball went in the air just as the buzzer sounded the finish. It made the final score Detroit: 100, Hawks 98.

It Evens Up.

The Hawks have won a couple such thrillers in the past and it was not too alarming to lose one, especially with the second-place Royals bowing at the same time.

"I'd say we were lax at the start, no doubt about it," said Coach Hannum, "and when we finally settled down, it was too much to make up. We made some costly mistakes in those last few seconds when we could have won, but let's not talk about them."

Pettit, who received an award from Sport Magazine for being named the outstanding pro basketball player of 1957 (a second straight year), shot seven field goals and made 13 of 14 from the free-throw line.

The 6-foot-9 former league scoring champion, now running third to Detroit's George Yardley and Syracuse's Dolph Schayes, also grabbed 24 rebounds, a total which helped the Hawks out-do the Pistons on the boards, 78 to 64. Thirty-three rebounds in the sizzling third period, in which Detroit was held to 12 points, was a St. Louis team record.

Dukes wound up with 19 points but the driving force for the Pistons in the late going was Shue, who topped Red Rocha's unpredictable team with 21. Yardley had 20 points in a performance in which he didn't look like the league's coming scoring champion. He made only seven of 25 field goal tries. The Hawks had held him to six points a few days before in Detroit.

Hawk Notes.

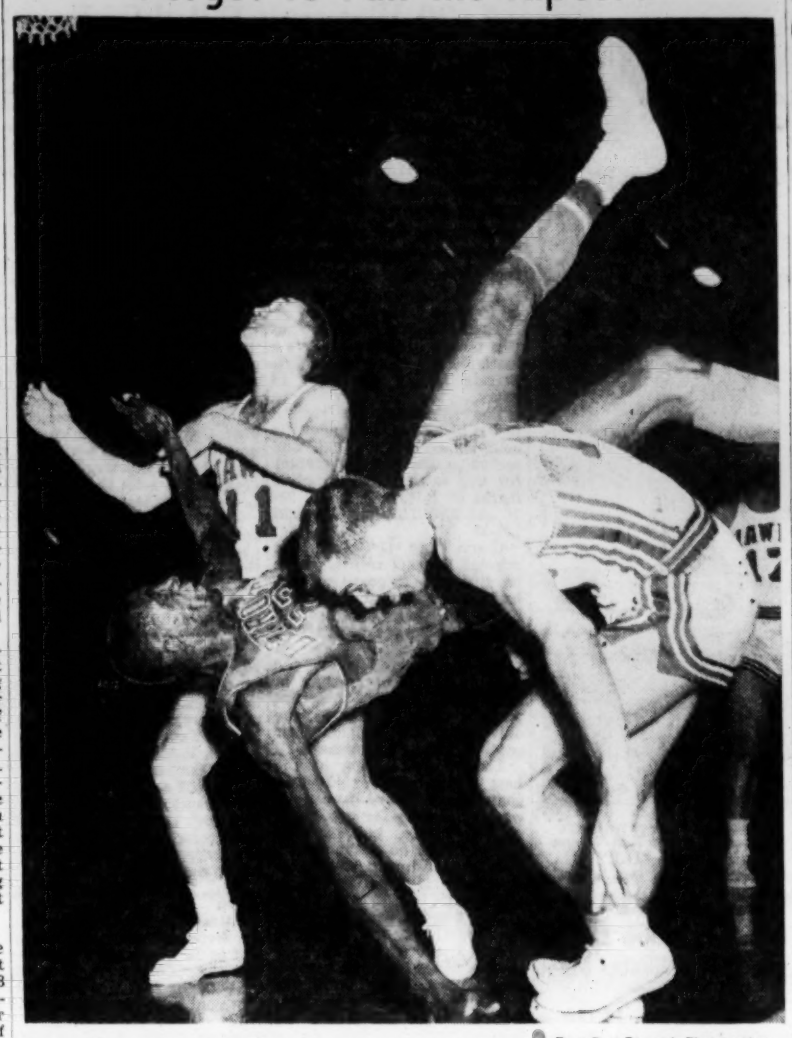

Slater Martin, injured Hawk backline leader, was in uniform for the first time since Feb. 1, but Coach Hannum hopes to hold him out of competition "as long as possible" for the thigh muscle to heal completely. "We want him ready for the playoffs," Hannum said.

A meeting of the N.B.A. was scheduled today in New York to map playoff plans. Ben Kerner, owner of the Hawks, planned to attend.

Frank Selvy, traded by the Hawks before the Saturday midnight deadline to Minneapolis for the rights to Dick Boushka or Terry Rand, watched the game from the sidelines. He will be in the uniform of the Lakers tomorrow night.

Kerner said no effort would be made to sign Boushka, former St. Louis U. star, or Rand, formerly of Marquette, until the end of this playing season. Both are now playing in the National Industrial League (A.A.U.).

Forgot to Pull the Ripcord

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

When WALTER DUKES (23) of the Detroit Pistons falls, it's a long trip down. Seven-footer Dukes is shown in the process of a crash landing against the Hawks at Kiel Auditorium. The damage was a charging foul against Dukes, and a shaking-up that put him on the bench awhile. The Hawk looking up is JACK COLEMAN (11) and the Hawk looking down, and biting his tongue, is WIN WILFONG, a man built to bear up under falling objects. At extreme right is MED PARK (17) of the Hawks.

Papa Bear Halas Develops 'New Ideas' for Old Routine, To Return Again as Coach

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (AP) — Owner George Halas of the Chicago Bears is going to make a coaching comeback at the age of 63 with some "new ideas" he's itching to put into practice.

The National Football League pioneer yesterday announced he will succeed Paddy Driscoll as head coach of the team Halas organized as the Decatur, Ill., Staleys in 1920 and moved to Chicago in 1921.

It will be Halas's third return to coaching. He celebrated his other two comebacks with championships, in 1933 and 1946.

Two years ago, Halas handed the coaching reins to Driscoll, saying administrative and coaching duties were getting to be too much for him.

Driscoll piloted the Bears to the Western Division title in 1956 only to lose the playoff championship to New York. The Bears were pre-season favorites last year but finished in the second division with 5-7 record.

No Other Changes.

Halas said Driscoll would become administrative vice president in charge of team organization and added there would be no other staff changes. That means retention of assistant coaches Phil Handler, Luke Johnsos, Clark Shaughnessy, George Connor and Sid Luckman.

"When I quit coaching," said Halas, "I couldn't think of any reason to induce me to come back. But sitting back and looking over the situation the last two years, I felt coaching methods in pro football were changing and I developed some new ideas. Now I want to try out those ideas."

Shortly after the announcement, Halas entrained for an Arizona vacation and a few rounds of golf.

"I'm taking some football material with me," said Halas. "So I doubt if I'll get to play too much golf."

The Comeback Touch.

He organized the Decatur Staleys in 1920 and in 1921 moved them to Chicago as the Bears. He played with and coached the Bears, retiring as a player in 1928. In 1930 he named Ralph Jones, one-time University of Illinois athletic official, head coach. Halas returned in 1933 to lead the Bears to one of seven world championships.

In 1942 he entered the United States Navy but came back in 1946 and again the Bears responded with a title. In his 29 years of professional coaching, Halas piled up a record of 365 victories, 115 losses and 27 ties. The figures include exhibition games as well as playoffs and league contests.

Papa Bear, who keeps tabs on his former players and takes pride in the Chicago Bear Alumni Club, wouldn't divulge his "new ideas" but said he'll be working on them until the Bears open the 1958 season.

Miss Rawls' 291 Wins Open Meet

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 17 (UP)—Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., who specializes in 72-hole tournaments, came from behind yesterday to win the $7500 St. Petersburg Women's Open by four strokes.

Miss Rawls sank a five-foot birdie putt on the final hole for her third 72 in four rounds and 291 total. It cinched the victory over Jackie Pung, leader through the first three rounds, and Beverly Hanson.

Mrs. Pung of San Francisco, finished with 78, while Miss Hanson of Indio, Calif., matched her 295 total with a closing round 75.

Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., took fourth money with a 297 total, followed by Louise Suggs, Sea Island, Ga., 298.

Tied at 300 were Marilynn Smith, Wichita, Kan., and Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga.

It was Miss Rawls's first victory in this five-year-old event, but earlier in the winter she won the 72-hole Tampa Open. Other tournaments for the professionals on the Florida tour have been 54-hole events.

A hole-in-one enabled Miss Hanson to gain a second-place tie with Mrs. Pung. She used a six-iron on the 152-yard eighth hole to drive the ball into the cup. But she lost a stroke on the eleventh by hitting out of bounds.

Hoeft Signs Contract.

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 17 signed his 1958 contract with isgned his 1958 contract with the Detroit Tigers. He is the lone soutpaw among Detroit's list of starting pitchers.

New Haven Five Opens Drive for 3d State Title

By Harold Tuthill

New Haven, the only Class S (Small School) basketball champion Missouri has known since the three class plan went into effect three winters ago, starts on the road to its third title this week.

Once more the Shamrocks are under the tutelage of Gordon D. Sulltrop, who coached them to victory a year ago after they had won their first title under Ellsworth Hartzell.

New Haven drew a bye in tonight's first round at New Bloomfield and will oppose the winner of the Tuscumbia-Augusta game in the second round. The Shamrocks were seeded first with Bourbon second, Bland third and Lincoln of Jefferson City fourth.

First round pairings at New Bloomfield are Tuscumbia vs. Augusta, New Haven vs. bye; St. Elizabeth vs. Crocker, Lincoln vs. St. George, Mokane vs. Wright City, Bourbon vs. Missouri School for Deaf, New Bloomfield vs. Auxvasse and Bland vs. Chamois.

The New Bloomfield winner advances to the sub-state tournament at Bourbon, Feb. 28, meeting the Centerville regional winner. In the second game that night the Smithton regional winner opposes the Bragg City winner.

The sub-state winners advance to Columbia for the semifinals and finals March 7 and 8, the same time the Class M (Medium Schools) wind up their tournament at the University of Missouri. The Class L (Large School) tournament will be held at Washington University, March 11-15.

Pairings in the Centerville regional: Ellsinore vs. Patterson, Centerville vs. Koskonong, Bunker vs. Marquand, Des Arc vs. Grandin, Doe Run vs. Oak Ridge, Annapolis vs. Williamsville, Thomasville vs. Birch Tree, Lesterville vs. Cherryville.

Pairings in the Bragg City regional: Marston vs. Arbyrd, Vanduser vs. Essex, Zalma vs. Catron, Canalou vs. Caruth, Lincoln of Sikeston vs. Kewanee, Bragg City vs. St. Henry, Holland vs. Wheatley adn Morley vs. Braggadocio.

Smithton regional pairings; Green Ridge vs. Pilot Grove, Deepwater vs. Calhoun, Smithton vs. Hughesville, Lowry City vs. Prairie Home, Otterville vs. Jamestown, Hubbard vs. Houstonia, Bunceton vs. Leeton and Lincoln vs. Lamonte.

The enrollment division between Class L and Class M is 387 and between Class M and Class S is 130.

Nats Win, Cut Celtic Lead to 6½ Contests

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—Everyone has conceded the Boston Celtics will win the Eastern Division title of the National Basketball Association except the stubborn Syracuse Nationals.

The second-place Nationals still can overtake the Celtics although it would take a near-perfect brand of basketball. The Nats whittled the Celtics' lead to 6½ games by whipping the Cincinnati Royals, 113-105, yesterday.

Bob Hopkins scored nine points during a three-minute span in the fourth period to assure Syracuse its victory. Dolph Schayes paced the Nats with 25 points, while Clyde Lovellette was high man for the Royals with 30.

The score was 90-90 when Hopkins went on his spree that put Syracuse in front by 10 points. After Cincinnati drew within four points in the last minute, Larry Costello's four free throws iced the decision.

The Cincinnati team and Referee Norm Drucker arrived one hour late for the game in Syracuse, N. Y., due to a heavy snowstorm. That same storm caused postponement of the game between the Celtics and New York Knickerbockers in Boston.

Veteran Vern Mikkelsen registered 31 points to lead Minneapolis to a 106-99 victory over Philadelphia. The Warriors, who missed a chance to solidify their hold on third place in the Eastern Division, were led by Paul Arizin, with 26 points, and Woody Saulsberry, with 25.

St. Louisan Jim Krebs, rookie from Southern Methodist, enjoyed his best day as a pro with nine field goals, 19 points and 17 rebounds for the Lakers. Teammate Dick Garmaker hit three baskets and two free throws late in the contest to hold off the last Warrior threat.

Nielsen Wins in Paris.

PARIS, Feb. 17 (UP)—Kurt Nielsen of Denmark won the men's singles title in the French International indoor tennis championships yesterday by beating Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

Tour Novice Johnston Is Surprise Winner of Texas Open

His First Pro Golf Victory in Two Years

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 17 (AP)—Club professional Bill Johnston, who plays only the winter tour—and not too much of that—was showing the big names of golf a thing or two today. He was the only player winning money in all tournaments this year.

The Provo (Utah) municipal course pro, a deadly swinger off the tee and as imperturbable as a marble statue, won his first tournament in two winters of trying yesterday as he galloped in with a three-under-par 68 for a total of 274 on 72 holes and $2000 first money in the Texas Open.

It vaulted the slender Johnston from twenty-fourth place to eighth in the official money winning list. He has banked $3518.33, winning from $100 up to the $2000 he got by overtaking Dave Marr of Cedarhurst, Long Island, on the final round of the Texas Open and finishing three strokes ahead with his 10-under-par 274.

Johnston heads for Houston and the Houston $30,000 Invitation today with a stroke average of 71 for 24 rounds of golf.

Most of the field that pounded along behind him in this storied tournament also is on the way to Houston. Among them is Bob Rosburg of Napa, Calif., the great stretch runner who almost won the Texas Open with a great six-under-par 65 on the final 18 holes. He wound up in second place at 277 and got $1500.

Marr, who led the tournament by six strokes after the first two rounds but by only one going into the final 18 holes yesterday, could manage only a 2-over-par 73 and finished in a tie for third at 278 with Jimmy Demaret of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y.; Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., and Bill Maxwell, also of Odessa.

The 33-year-old professional at Mount Timpanogos course in Provo won his first tournament with two great closing rounds. He had a 5-under-par 66 over the 6490-yard Brackenridge Park course in the third round, and then he played conservatively but effectively in the final. "I only tried to get on the greens so I could 2-putt," he explained.

He hit all the greens except the last one and he made the round in 32 putts.

The best rounds of the day were shot by two fellows who didn't place high. Bill Parker of Tulsa had a 5-under-par 66 while Leo Biagetti of St. Paul duplicated this score. Parker tied for seventh place with 280. Biagetti tied for eleventh with 281.

Granite City Youth Loses in Tennis Final

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (UP)—Top-seeded David Strauss of Iowa City, Ia., scored a 6-1, 6-4, victory over David Moss, Granite City, Ill., to capture the boys' singles title in the second annual University of Chicago indoor tennis tournament.

Strauss then teamed with Dwight Shelton, Chicago, to win the boys' doubles crown and complete a sweep of the 15 years old and under division. The Strauss-Shelton duo beat brothers Robert and Jack Cooper, Louisville, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

In the junior singles, Jack Lasser of Chicago defeated Wayne Hirst, Oklahoma City, 6-3, 4-6, 9-7, to win the crown.

Hoad Beats Gonzales, Now Leads, 13 to 7

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 17 (UP)—Lew Hoad whipped Pancho Gonzales in straight sets yesterday, 6-4, 6-4, to increase his match lead to 13-7 in their international series for the world pro tennis title.

The 23-year-old Aussie, who turned pro last year, kept Gonzales on the defensive with a booming service and sharp, backhand slices. Gonzales showed only flashes of his power and accuracy in the match before 4228 fans at Northwestern University's McGraw Hall.

Held to Draw in Fight, Red Wings Win Hockey Match

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

One player from each team drew a five-minute penalty for starting this free-for-all fight between the Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs. But the Red Wings won the National Hockey League match, 4-1. Penalized were BILLY McNEILL (21) of Red Wings, and BRIAN CULLEN, Maple Leafs, who are grappling at extreme right. Despite two-below-zero weather, 11,106 fans turned out for the Sunday night match at Detroit.

The Fighting Fisherman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

WITH pardonable pride, Yvon Durelle says he can whip any four fishermen in New Brunswick and then lift five hockey players simultaneously over his head. His reasons for specifying hockey players are obscure; perhaps in Baie Ste. Anne it is impossible to assemble five large, lumpy males who are not hockey players.

"The Fighting Fisherman" gave Clarence Hinnant a good licking the other night, winning on a seventh-round T.K.O. Now he was sitting in Lew Burston's cell in the Garden with Mr. Burston and his managers, Lew Meyers and Chris Shaban.

Durelle is a full-grown light-heavyweight who looks bigger. Everything about him is big, his hands, his forearms, his long, heavily-boned facial features under a shaggy poodle haircut. He talks in a big voice that seems to excite him, for the French-accented words come gushing out of a wide smile and he bobs and weaves in his chair, gesticulating enthusiastically.

"My father in Baie Ste. Anne," he said, "was blacksmith in the daytime, fisherman in night. I worked for him as blacksmith and on the boat I don't know how young because when I was 8 I was regular hand. When I was 12 and my father got sick, I was captain of boat.

All Sorts of Hooks.

"AFTER a while I bought a boat, twenty-eight hundred, three thousand dollars. I did not do good with that and I lost the boat. Now I have a fleet, four boats, all kinds of fishing — nets, lines, lobster traps. Fighting and fishing I do all right, but it don't pay to fight in the summer because if I am not there the men on the boats don't work so hard. In the winter it is ice-fishing, just for smelt, and that is not much."

"What swung you over from fish hooks to left hooks, Yvon?"

"It was a very poor family, 12 in total, and we fight all the time, my brothers. Quarrel starts in the house, my father would say, 'All right, get off the table and go fight outside.' If you lost you didn't get nothing to eat.

"You know, they would not let me go in school with the others, I was too bad. School's out, I had to stay 15 minutes while everybody got home so I wouldn't beat 'em up. So I was about 16—I did not talk English then—I went downtown. There was fighting in the street, first boxing gloves I have seen."

The Kid's First Fight.

"BOXING in the street with gloves, Yvon, in Baie Ste. Anne?"

"In the street with gloves, but not Baie Ste. Anne. Downtown in Chatham, 35 miles. First time somebody dropped a glove I grabbed —" In pantomime he snatched a glove from the floor, thrust a fist into it and banged it into the other palm.

"They said, 'hey, here's a guy wants to fight.' I said, 'Gimme that other glove,' and bang, bang, I knocked a guy oot. They brought two others, bang, bang, I knocked 'em oot. After a while the promoter came. How would I like to fight in the ring? How much money do I want? Holy gee almighty! I don't want money, just let me fight. 'I pay $8,' the promoter said. Holy gee almighty, eight dollars!

"I was going to fight and I had no money. The bus to Chatham cost a dollar so I went with the boat, up the river, winding and around reefs, about a two-hour trip. I could charge the gas for fishing. I was downtown and there was trunks in a store —not trunks, a swimming suit. Along came the priest to ask me and I told him, 'I am fighting here next week and I got no trunks.' He said, 'do not go away,' and he went and came out with the trunks and a pair of sneakers. Eleven dollars the trunks cost! Holy gee almighty! And too small. I could not bend over.

The Pacifist.

"NEXT week I rode on back end of a truck, a three-ton truck. I remember so clear. The fight? Holy gee, lemme in that ring! Bang, bang, one minute, 11 seconds, it was all over. I got the $8. Expenses was $13."

"Do you remember the name of your opponent?"

"Sure, Goose Ramsey, a nice guy. He had 17 fights. I see him sometimes. He's an electrical worker. I had a few four-rounders, then semi's. I had 33 fights and 29 knockouts. I did not lose until my sixty-eighth fight. Fastest knockout, 11 seconds."

"There's fights don't show in the record book," Lew Meyers said.

"The best record we can get," Chris Shaban said, "This is the ninety-sixth fight."

Durelle protested. "There was a record in Canada, more than a hundred." Shaban nodded. "That's the record. This would be the ninety-sixth."

"All right," Durelle shrugged. He hates quarrels.

Russians Finish 1, 2 In World Skates Meet

HELSINKI, Feb. 17 (AP)—Russia finished 1-2 in the world speed skating championships yesterday with Oleg Goncharenko, the 1953 winner, overhauling Vladimir Shilikovsky in the last two events of the two-day competition for the title.

Floyd Bedbury of St. Paul, Minn., the only United States entry, was eliminated in the first three events.

Goncharenko, who was second to Shilikovsky after the opening events, won the 1500-meter in 2 minutes, 17.7 seconds and then coasted in with a third in the 10,000-meter finale for a total of 193.905 penalty points.

Shilikovsky, a one-armed electrical engineer from Moscow, was fourth in both of yesterday's events and wound up with 194.105 points.

Knights Gain A 20-Victory Season Again

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Mo., Feb. 17—When the St. Francis Borgia Knights defeated Pacific last week they brought their record to 20-3. This marked the tenth successive season that the team from Washington, Mo., has won 20 or more games.

Their twentieth victory of this season gave the Knights a mark of 234 victories and 64 defeats during the past 10 years.

The successful era started in the 1948-49 season under the coaching of Seb Nowicki, who served as the Knights mentor for five seasons and compiled marks of 25-4, 30-3, 21-10, 21-10 and 20-8. This gave Nowicki 121-35.

Coach Ray DeGreeff, the present Knights mentor, is in his fifth year as coach and has had seasons of 21-8, 30-3, 21-7, 21-8, and their present 20-3 mark. This is a record of 113-29 for DeGreeff.

As the records show, the Knights had two seasons of 30-3, one in the 1949-50 season and the other in 1954-55, the only time the Knights ever reached a state tournament.

The record is one of the best in the state over a 10-year span. Many teams have good winning records for two, three or four years, but for one team to have no worse than a 20-8 record during 10 successive years is a major accomplishment.

The Knights play many of the teams of the Franklin County Conference and a large number of the St. Louis schools each season. Their three defeats this season were by Troy, DuBourg and St. Louis U. High.

One of the Knights' top graduates, who held the school scoring record until Ken Schuler broke it during the 1954-55 season, is Gordon Sulltrop, coach of the nearby New Haven Shamrocks.

Ulf Schmidt Captures Philippine Net Title

MANILA FIELD, Feb. 17 (AP)—Ulf Schmidt became the third Swedish player to win the Philippine national men's singles tennis title in the 43-year history of the tournament by overpowering Philippine Champion Raymundo Deyro, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1.

Sven Davidson and Lennart Bergelin previously won the Philippine crown in 1951 and 1954, respectively.

Only 3 NCAA Tourney Berths Filled So Far; Races Unsettled In at Least Six Conferences

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—With time running out—only three weeks remain in the regular season—the basketball races in at least six major conferences remained in a state of confusion today.

Only three teams are definitely in the post-season tournament of the National Collegiate Athletic Association thus far. Connecticut, as the champion of the Yankee Conference, is all set, as is Idaho State University, winner of the Rocky Mountain Conference, and Oklahoma State, selected as an at-large team.

The tournament is composed of 16 conference champions, plus eight at-large clubs. The preliminary rounds are scheduled to get under way the week of March 9, with the finale in Louisville, March 22.

There are some heavy favorites, of course. For example, Cincinnati (9-1) is the choice in the Missouri Valley. Yet, with all their power, they'd better not slip, because Bradley is right behind with an 8-2 mark. St. Louis U. is 7-2.

Then there is the Big Eight, where Kansas State, top team in the Associated Press poll last week, remains undefeated in conference competition (7-0). Kansas State pulled away when Kansas lost two games during Wilt Chamberlain's illness.

But look around elsewhere—the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Big Ten, the Southwest Conference, the Pacific Coast and some others—and there is uncertainty.

Here is a brief rundown on them:

Atlantic Coast—This one has a conference tournament at the end of the season in which the last-place finisher could wind up with the N.C.A.A. bid. But that's unlikely. At the moment, Duke, North Carolina, North Carolina State and Maryland are in a dogfight. Duke (9-2) appears to have the best chance.

Big Ten—Michigan State, the pre-season choice, is in first place with a 6-3 record. Indiana (5-3) is second. The Spartans play Michigan tonight, and Indiana goes against Ohio State, so there could be a new leader by the end of the night's operations.

Southwest—Only Baylor is mathematically out of the running. All the others are very much in the fight. Arkansas is a half-game ahead of Rice and Texas Tech in the wild scramble.

Skyline—Defending champion Bringham Young also is in a position where even a slight stumble could mean disaster. Wyoming and Colorado are just a half-game back.

Pacific Coast—A jumble. If any team looks good in the pack, it's California, which won last year. The Bruins have been a good defensive club all season and appear to have learned how to score, as evidenced by their 80-62 decision over Southern California last Saturday.

Mid-American—Miami of Ohio hasn't been beaten in league play yet and has won eight games. But that's no comfort. The Redskins still must play Ohio U., which has been beaten on its home floor just once this year. The game will be at Ohio U. Wednesday.

Southern—This conference, perhaps the most formful in the country (West Virginia always wins), has a tournament to decide its N.C.A.A. representative.

Southeastern—Kentucky (9-7) is going after its eighteenth title. But Adolph Rupp's outfit still must play Alabama and Auburn, each boasting a seven-game winning streak.

Ivy—This conference usually sends an at-large team, and that should be Dartmouth, even though the Hanover Indians suffered their first league defeat after winning eight in a row last Saturday. Yale beat them, 70-67.

Bud Werner Victor in 'Inferno' Ski Event

MUERREN, Switzerland, Feb. 17 (AP)—Wallace (Bud) Werner of Steamboat Springs, Colo., was an easy winner in the classic "Inferno" ski race. His time was more than a full minute faster than that of runnerup Michel Arpin of France.

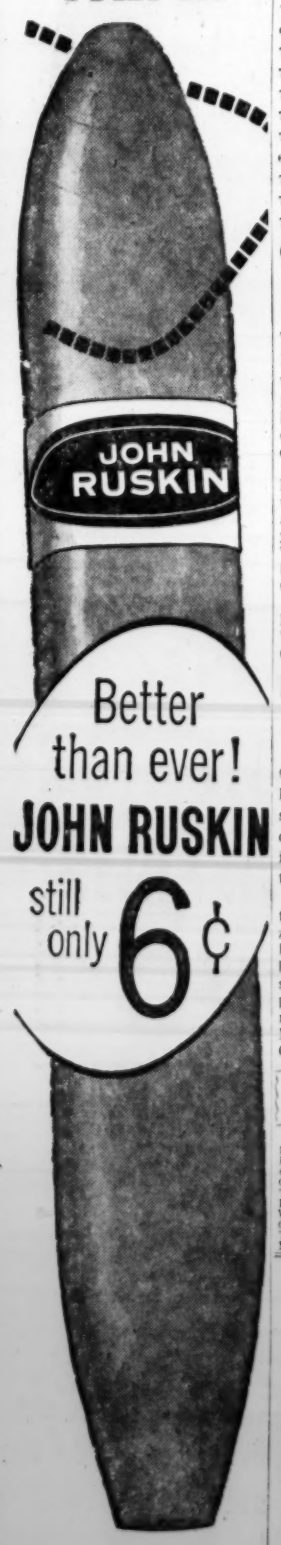

Werner covered the 4-mile course down the Schilthorn mountain in 14 minutes, 23.4 seconds despite an unseasonal rain storm.

Forty-four entries from France, Switzerland, Italy, England and the United States took part in the race. The only other American among the first 10 finishers was Ronald Funk. He was tenth in 17:14.3.

U.S. Military Soccer Team Routed, 13-1

LISBON, Feb. 17 (UP)—Portugal scored a 13-1 triumph over the United States Sunday in a European military soccer match. Portugal, completely outclassing the Americans, piled up a 7-0 halftime margin.

YEAR'S LIGHT TRADE; STOCK AVERAGE OFF

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—The stock market declined today after an early attempt to rally played out.

Trading was quiet. Attendance in Wall Street was held down by the severe snow storm which blanketed the northeast.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 2.17 points lower at 442.27 at the close. The 20 railcs lost .69 of a point at 107.01, while the 15 utilities rose .07 to 72.12.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock average was .22 of a point lower at 41.11 at the close. The 425 industrials lost .27 at 43.83 and the 25 rails declined .06 to 23.04, while the 50 utilities rose .07 to 34.11.

Steels, oils, motors, and specialties favored the downside, with many issues closing below their best levels of the day. Lukens lost more than 1 in the steels, National Lead more than 2 in the metals, Lorillard more than 1 in the tobaccos, Gulf more than 2 in the oils and Marchant Calculator around 3 in the specialties on a dividend cut.

Demand that did develop centered on the so-called defensive groups—foods, tobaccos, store issues, drugs and utilities. Even these receded from their best following a rise that added a point or better to several.

During the course of the session, new highs appeared in Kroger, Magic Chef, Sunshine Biscuit, Coca Cola, General Finance, Lorillard, Philip Morris, Parke Davis, Rexall, and Schering.

Brokers said the market lacked incentive to carry Friday's rise forward. Standard Oil (Ind.) cut gasoline prices on the adverse side.

Steel operations scheduled for this week showed a small gain on the favorable side.

The Associated Press reported the market as narrowest of year. Airlines remained on the upside.

Of 1076 issues traded, declines outnumbered advances by 481 to 353. New highs for 1957-58 totaled 38 and new lows 8.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 60 cents to $160.40 with the industrials down $1, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities down 20 cents.

Volume totaled 1,700,000 shares compared with 2,070,000 Friday and was the lightest since Nov. 11.

LONG-RANGE U.S. BONDS SHOW GAINS, TRADE LIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—Long range United States Government Bonds continued to improve late today on light demand. Corporates were moderately higher with rails and utilities up fractionally, investment quality issues and industrials firm. Trading was slow.

Over-the-counter dealers reported the Treasury's new "Gay 90" 3½s up 14-32 to a new high of 103 8-32 bid at one time. Other long range issues were ahead 6-32 to 10-32. Intermediates improved 2-32 to 4-32.

Italian and German industrial dollar bonds gained fractions in an inactive foreign department.

DUN & BRADSTREET REported today that its quartely survey of businessmen's opinions showed somewhat less optimism than existed in other surveys the past two years. But the majority still expected business in their own companies in the second quarter to equal or exceed that of the previous year. The majority (72 per cent) also expected no change in their selling prices in the second quarter. Asked about employment, 79 per cent foresaw no change and 11 per cent anticipated a drop in the payrolls of their firms, among manufacturers of durables, one of every five, anticipated lower employment. (INS).

COLD WAVE, EXPORTS LIFT GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (AP)—Good export business and continued cold weather combined today to bring out a good demand for grain futures and prices on the Board of Trade held good gains during most of the session.

Traders said the cold weather has slowed down offerings, particularly of corn, on the cash market, and was expected to require considerably heavier feeding of grain to livestock. Moreover, it was viewed as helpful in drying some of the large stocks of corn which have a high moisture content, making them suitable for longer storage.

The export business with Poland, Turkey, Korea and Yugoslavia was the largest single day's amounts in some time.

Business Outlook

SUBSCRIBES TO VIEW, WORST IS NEAR

By J. A. Livingston

THE NEWS ISN'T GOOD. Production slipped another three points in January. The Federal Reserve Board index, at 133, is down 12 points since August (8 per cent), and 14 points (10 per cent) since December 1956.

Business failures in the week ended February 6 were the highest for any week since April, 1940. For the first six weeks this year, failures came to 1788, or 10 per cent higher than the same period last year. And the 1,120,000 rise in unemployment in January was so sharp, it jarred loose a statement of reassurance from President Eisenhower. The number of persons out of work rose from 3,374,000 in December to 4,494,000. An increase was to be expected. In January, persons who have temporary Christmas jobs are let go; and industrial production usually sags seasonally. But this rise was about double what might be considered "normal." And more bad news. Another increase is possible in February, bringing unemployment close to 5,000,000. I'd expect that to be the 1958 peak, despite scare talk of 6,000,000 and 7,000,000.

The good news is President Eisenhower's statement of Wednesday, though it, like the unemployment statistics, must be "adjusted." The President has to weigh not only what he says but how what he says will affect others. He can't be pessimistic; he would only accelerate what he's trying to stop—the decline in business. But Mr. Eisenhower is alert to the problems. That's a real plus. He's not going to bask in inactivity.

True, the President put his best statistics forward. In promising a drop in unemployment in March, he has a nine to one bet. Since 1941, unemployment has increased between February and March in only two years—1946, the reconversion year, and 1954, a recession year. And in 1954, unemployment dropped rapidly after the March increase.

Still the Same Lull.

The ingredients going into the business pot have not changed since last fall. Business men are less spendy; they're putting less into new plant and machinery. Consumers, well bought after 12 years of postwar prosperity, are not clawing their way to new cars, new furniture, new houses, new TV sets.

This is a capital goods lull and a consumer goods lull, aggravated by a decline in inventories. People who are out of jobs are buying less. People who are on shorter work time are buying less, too. And relatives and friends of those on "uneasy street" are less willing to spend freely or go into debt.

Now this will slowly change. The Department of Defense has been pushing out orders much faster than expected. These are for missiles, planes, and other equipment already in production. It won't take long—at the most three months—for these demands to exert pressure on prime contractors and suppliers. They'll provide jobs and increase consumption of basic materials — aluminum, steel, copper, fabrics. Inventories, now being reduced, will have to be replenished.

Upturn Later in the Year.

And state and local government outlays on schools, highways, hospitals are rising. The Federal Reserve Board continues to make credit easy. Member banks are borrowing less at Federal Reserve Banks and their commercial loans are declining. This makes them anxious to lend. Soon, they'll be shopping for borrowers. Credit is easier and cheaper.

A conservative economist—looking at the statistics, seeing reports of continued layoffs which outnumber reports of rehirings—can only make one comment on the future: The trend continues down; there are no signals yet of an upturn. As Heinz E. Luedicke, editor of the Journal of Commerce, said recently in his column, "The turnaround is still largely guess work."

As I figure it, the production index will drop another two or three points to 130, but the forces for reversal of the downtrend are already at work. The downtrend should be arrested by May or June, and be followed by a modest upturn later in the year. That's my guess, I hope it's educated.

Baruch Story

was he who told it to President Calvin Coolidge, who spread the story through Washington. If Cary had not related the story, it might never have got out, since it was a Hobcaw rule that a guest's hunting score was never revealed.

Cary's reaction to our joke supports a conviction of mine that there is no sport like hunting which will reveal a man's character so well. I know of no other sport which will bring out the latent barbarian in a man so quickly, nor any that imposes such a strain on a man's truthfulness.

Another Hobcaw "institution" which often proved a revealing test of human nature was snipe hunting with bag and lantern. Most of the regular visitors to Hobcaw had been initiated as members in good standing into the Hobcaw Snipe Club, but there was one gentleman who failed to pass the membership test. He was one of a party of New York business men and financiers going down to my South Carolina place in Mortimer Schiff's private car.

This gentleman had never been to Hobcaw before, and we decided we had a new candidate for our Snipe Club.

One evening, with a countenance as solemn as a bishop's, Oakleigh Thorne pulled his mustache reflectively and said, "Bernie, why don't you let us have some snipe hunting?"

I protested that it was a stupid sport to see a man go out and hold a bag and lantern in one hand and whistle to attract the snipe to come into the light and dive into the bag. Finally I consented to just one evening of snipe hunting, but no more.

Then the guests began wagering who would catch the most snipe. Soon our candidate was hooked. It sounded so easy that he offered to make a bet.

The next day we were a bit uneasy. Snipe, of course, will not fly into a bag at a whistle or at the sight of a lantern any more than any other bird, and we feared our candidate for the snipe hunt would discover this. But no one gave the joke away.

It fell to Bob Cains to take out the candidate, place him in a good stand, and show him exactly how to wield his bag and lantern, and how to whistle to attract the snipe. When Bob came back he said, "Mr. Bernie, I don't want to have to go out and git that man. He is goin' to take this mighty bad."

Already the beaters were at work making the noises which were supposed to start up the snipe. We could hear our candidate, the eminent banker, whistle as he had been instructed to do, to attract the birds toward his lantern. The louder he whistled, the harder we laughed. Soon some of us were rolling on the ground or stuffing our fists into our mouths to keep from laughing too loudly.

No one had to go and fetch the candidate. Before long he came in by himself. One glance at his face and we stopped laughing.

"That was a hell of a thing to do!" he exclaimed. "How much does So-and-So know about this?" he demanded, naming an almost equally conspicuous banker who was the president of a rival trust company. Nor was that all he said.

The roster of the Hobcaw Snipe Club numbered figures distinguished in finance, industry, law, letters, and statecraft, but our candidate of that evening lacked the qualifications to be one of the company.

One reason I established a second home in the South was that my mother had asked me not to lose touch with the land of my forebears. She also had urged me to try to contribute to its regeneration and, in particular, to "do something for the Negro."

When the town of Camden asked me to contribute to the erection of a local hospital, I laid down one condition for my support—that a specific number of beds be reserved for colored patients.

The people of Camden were talking of building this hospital with $20,000. I told them that this was not enough and that I would foot the entire cost of construction if they undertook to support it. They agreed. When this hospital burned down, I financed another and better building and a nurses' home.

When I contributed money to colleges in South Carolina, the Negro institutions got their share. Similarly, the scholarships that I provided went to both Negroes and whites.

In all my dealings with both Negroes and whites, I have tried to treat people somewhat more generously than was the prevailing custom, hoping that others might follow my example. But I have learned that to serve as an effective example — and this applies to all human affairs—one cannot be too far ahead of the people one wants to influence.

This view may not satisfy those who would remake the world overnight. It may not satisfy those who want things kept as they are. I believe that change is part of living. But I like a pace of change that does not create more trouble than good.

When I think back to how the Negro in South Carolina lived at the turn of the century I am struck by the remarkable progress he has made. The Negroes I first knew were sons or daughters of slaves, simple, lovable, but seemingly irresponsible.

As late as the 1920s, most Negroes in South Carolina were sharecroppers. Today many who live near me are in business or the professions. They own their own farms and are considered among the most reliable farmers in the region.

When I bought Hobcaw, few of the Negroes went far in their schooling, but here again the new generation is different from the old. One man on my place has had practically no schooling, but he managed to send both his children through college to become teachers.

Looking back over the years, it seems to me that education and economic improvement have been the keys to the progress that the Negro has made not only in the South but in the North as well. Today a sizable part of our Negro population has climbed both the educational and economic ladder.

The Negro, like all of us, is caught up in the flooding river of change. The river's currents are so strong that there can be no return to the past. The passage ahead looms as a perilous one. But when I think how far we already have traveled, I feel confident the difficulties ahead will be overcome.

TOMORROW — In conclusion, Baruch analyzes the social, economic and political problems that beset our country and offers remedies that, he believes, must be put into effect if we are to survive as a nation.

Text of Note

that government shall be responsive to the peaceful will of the people; our "built-in" guarantees against the possibility of any United States Government suddenly initiating war; our national dedication to the international reunciation of force as an instrument of national policy; the decisive influence for peace of American religious, labor, intellectual and political leaders and of their organizations.

It is, of course, quite true that our people are flatly opposed to regimes which hold people against their will and which deny the principle on which our nation was founded, taht governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed and can never rightly deprive the governed of their inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Our people's rejection of many foreign and domestic aspects of Soviet methods and policies is, however, demonstrably not a moving cause to war. Otherwise we would have struck when we had atomic weapons and the Soviet Union had none; or when we had thermonuclear bombs and the Soviet Union had none.

VI.

When I contrast the actual facts of American life with such portrayals as those of Mr. Khrushchev at Minsk, and indeed of your latest communication to me, I am impressed more than ever before with the enormous difficulties besetting us in attempting to move toward better relations and with the greater necessity than ever before of doing so.

It is possible that Soviet leadership feels it necessary deliberately to misrepresent the American viewpoint. If so, one effect would be to confuse their own people and the people of those eastern European countries under their domination, who are denied access to world information except as to the Soviet leaders permit. Another effect would be to make true co-operation more difficult. Possibly also these misrepresentations constitute blind adherence to what was one of the early tenets of orthodox Communism, namely, that capitalistic societies are by their very nature warlike.

I prefer, however, to assume that these misrepresentations are not willful but result from genuine misconceptions which could be done away with.

VII.

Our two nations are both now exploring and seeking to learn the truth about outer space. But is it not more important to learn the truth about each other? The ambassadoral agreement concluded between our governments on Jan. 27, 1958, points in this direction. It contemplates exchanges that, it is said, "will contribute significantly to the betterment of relations between the two countries, thereby contributing to a lessening of international tension." I hope that we shall make full use of that agreement. But, for the most part, it deals with exchanges of technicians and specialists in various fields.

Would not be well if, in addition, leaders of thought and influential citizens within the Soviet Union should come to visit the United States, not to acquire technical knowledge but rather to learn at first hand the feeling of our people toward peace and the working of our popular institutions as they affect our conduct of foreign relations. Most of the Soviet citizens who exert an influence are strangers to this country with, I fear, totally false conceptions. These misconceptions I should like to see corrected in the interests of better relations. I can assure you that groups of qualified citizens of the U.S.S.R. coming here for the purpose I describe would receive every facility to learn about our country and our people and the working of our political institutions.

Favors Broader Exchange.

I feel also that we need particularly to be thinking not only of the present but also of the future and of those, now young, who in a few years will be carrying heavy responsibilities that our generation will pass on to them. I think our young people should get to know more about each other. I strongly feel that the recent agreement for the exchange of 20 to 30 students a year is a small step in the right direction, but woefully inadequate. I may write you further on this topic.

VIII.

In the meantime, I reaffirm what has been so often said by Secretary Dulles and by myself. The American nation wants nothing more than to co-operate wholeheartedly with any Soviet government which is genuinely dedicated to advancing, by peaceful means, the welfare of the people of the Soviet Union.

It should, however, be appreciated how difficult it is to generate here the good will which the Soviet leaders claim they want, so long as there remains between our two countries the vast gulf of misunderstanding and misrepresentation thatis again revealed by both speeches and written communications of Soviet leaders.

If the Soviet leaders sincerely desire better relations with us, can they truly think it helpful for the Soviet Union to continue to pursue the objectives of international communism, which include the overthrow of other governments? The Moscow manifesto made last November by the representatives of Communist parties from 64 nations, and the Soviet government's official indorsement of the results of the recent Afro-Asian conference in Cairo could not fail to raise in the minds of our people the question of the real purposes of the Soviet leaders.

We shall nevertheless go on seeking such good relations. And I hope that, if there is a positive response to the concrete suggestion here made, we may perhaps do something toward ushering in a new and better era.

The moderates would like to draft John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, who has done various jobs for the Eisenhower Administration in Washington. Hopeful talk has also been heard about Congressman Gerald R. Ford Jr., of Grand Rapids, who has a good record and is an able vote getter. But the skeptics on the right point out that after all he had been supported twice by A.F.L. and once the Auto Workers failed to oppose him.

Goldwater Speech..

The Wayne County Republican Finance Committee, the citadel of the old Republicanism in Detroit, brought Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona into the state last month for a fund raising dinner. Goldwater, the chief proponent of a right-to-work-law, fed raw meat to the Republican lions, calling down every kind of wrath on Reuther as the arch fiend of a socialist conspiracy, with Soapy a helpless prisoner. They netted $46,000 at the dinner but there were doubts as to the appeal this might have to the voters.

Williams has just sent a comprehensive economic message to the Republican legislature calling for a broad attack on the recession. He and Hart, who has seven children and an attractive wife, will make a highly effective team this fall. And there are some Republicans who understand that the old hell and brimstone denunciation may not be enough to win.

DOCTORS AND HOSPITAL MEN TO DISCUSS DISASTER PLANS

Doctors and hospital representatives of the St. Louis metropolitan area will discuss the role of the medical profession in disaster plans for the city and county at the St. Louis Medical Society auditorium, 3839 Lindell boulevard, Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, superintendent of St. Louis County Hospital and chairman of the medical society's committee on disaster plans, said physicians needed to make several important decisions relative to hospital care following a disaster of major proportions.

It's your money. Why settle for a small car that costs no less? Why put out hundreds of extra dollars and get no more?

Get all the car you're paying for!

You want all you can get for your new-car dollar. So here's how to size 'em up on value.

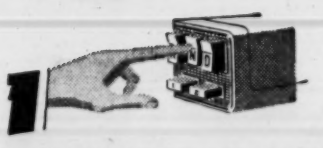

When you stack this big Swept-Wing 58 Coronet up against small cars in the "low priced" group, there's just no comparison. Dodge looks like a lot more car. Feels like more car. Rides like more car. Is more car.

YET HERE'S THE SHOCKER. 59 models in the "low priced 3" actually cost you more. That's based on published industry list prices.

NOW FOR THE SECOND SHOCKER. Let's match this Dodge Coronet against others in its own big car field—costing hundreds and even a thousand dollars more. Dodge is the longest, lowest, roomiest and most advanced in styling and features.

The decision is yours. We'll just remind you once more: Get ALL the car you're paying for.

All the bigness and roominess—the solid feel on the road that no small car can match—are yours for the same money others pay for most models in the low priced 3. And Swept-Wing styling is years ahead.

All the engineering advances that leave other big cars far behind can be yours at rock-bottom cost. Dodge Push-Button Driving obsoletes shift selectors. Total-Contact Brakes give top stopping power.

All the great riding and handling qualities of the most costly cars are built into the big Dodge Coronet. Torsion-Aire Ride is yours at no extra cost. Full-time power steering at the same price as part time systems.

All the big-car power that put Dodge head and shoulders above the field in California State Police tests can be yours in Coronet models . . . right up to the tremendous 333 h.p. Super D-500.

SWEPT-WING 58 by Dodge . . . NOTHING LIKE IT NEAR THE PRICE!

Winter Woe in the East

Stretch of highway near Washington is jammed with stalled automobiles and trucks after heaviest snowfall in many years made Shirley highway in northern Virginia a driver's nightmare yesterday. Snow fell in near-record amounts from Virginia to Maine as the storm moved northward Saturday and yesterday, leaving hardship and monumental transportation snarls in its wake. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Rough Arrival

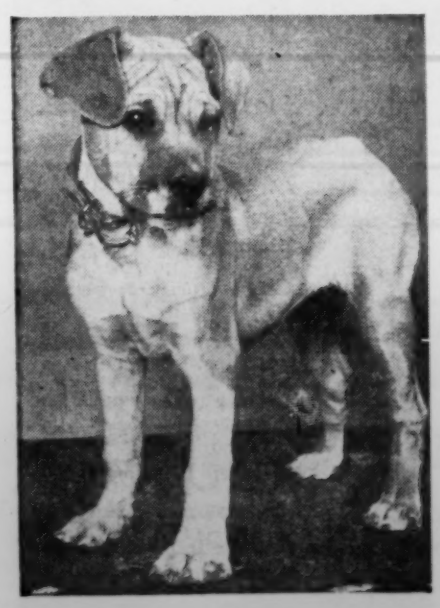

Woman passenger is assisted by airline employe as she hustles to shelter on arrival at Idlewild Airport in New York after trip from Chicago yesterday. Snow was so deep on the field that regular landing ramp could not be maneuvered into position and passengers were forced to step down from the airliner on ladder in background. Other air travelers bound for New York found themselves being landed at points as far away as Pittsburgh, Pa. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Show on the Way To Real Terrible

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

"KITTY FOYLE" by Christopher Morley was published in 1939 and was just about everybody's favorite book of its era. It was not a great book but it was a darned good one and darned good ones are in short supply, possibly even shorter supply than great ones. Later "Kitty Foyle" was made into a deeply moving movie which won a richly deserved Academy Award for its star, Ginger Rogers, who had almost the precisely right mixture of gamin charm and toughness of spirit and with it all a luminous femininity.

KATHLEEN MURRAY . . . FUDGE SUNDAE SWEET.

I bring it all up here because "Kitty Foyle" has now become a soap opera or, as NBC's publicists call it, a daytime serial. Perhaps daytime serial is a more accurate designation in this case because "Kitty Foyle" has not got a soap sponsor or any other kind of sponsor. However, if you think for a moment that this allows you to watch "Kitty Foyle" without interruption, you are dead wrong. There are a half a dozen interruptions, plugging NBC shows and sometimes simple good works.

Whether the interruptions are more irritating than the show, though, is a moot point. It is just possible that a half hour of uninterrupted "Kitty Foyle" soap opera might be more than the human mind could bear.

It is not that "Kitty Foyle" is a terrible show exactly. Actually, it hasn't been on long enough to be terrible but it's shaping up nicely to be real terrible. Its first show was just saccharine to the point of nausea. Kitty Foyle was a hell of a lot of girl, just about my favorite literary heroine. She had spunk and spirit and a bawdy and wonderful wit.

THE KITTY FOYLE of the soap opera as played by Kathleen Murray is a thoroughly sweet and wholesome and candy fudge sundae kind of girl. Miss Murray was, I'm told, picked in a talent hunt over 190 other contestants and she is, I must admit, a mighty pretty blonde. Whether she can act or not is information not yet available to the general public because so far she has had nothing much meatier to say then: "I may be 900 miles from home at college but I still think about the family all the time." If it's one thing I like, it's good honest exposition. You can't get much more straightforward narration than that short of having the actors read straight from the book.

I recall the book dimly but radiantly and, unless my memory is playing me tricks, Kitty's father was a salty old character of strong opinions and a sort of biting manner of expression. Pop Foyle (Ralph Dunn) of the soap opera, on the other hand, is a querulous old codger given to complaining in an Irish brogue as thick as Third avenue that his son "had stolen the bread out of my mouth. He's brought me nothing but pain and grief."

The way things look, son Ed is going to bring old Pop even more pain and grief before many weeks have elapsed. When last seen Ed had drawn a gun and was pointing it in the general direction of a hotel clerk. I don't know what his intentions are—robbery, probably—but it may be some weeks before we find out. Soap opera characters take a long, long time between pulling a gun and using it. (I don't recall there being any bad eggs in the Foyle family in the book, but maybe there were.

Oh, yes, there's a good son, too, who cooks for his invalid father and plays cards with him afterwards and, I guess, is putting Kitty through college and is—well—so disgustingly virtuous that I keep wanting to stick a pin in him to see whether the blood came out red or white.

CHRISTOPHER MORLEY died mercifully last March before he could see what they had done to his endearing Kitty. Heaven only knows what torments are in store for the poor girl on television. In the book, she just didn't get the guy she loved because they came from a different social strata. But on TV soaps there will probably be a dozen guys she doesn't get. Carlton E. Morse, who spun out "One Man's Family" into a couple of generations, is handling the adaptation and he knows all the tricks.

Monument of Gloom

GLOOMY? DEPRESSED? Worried? Discouraged? If any woman answers "yes," I have three things to say to her.

(1) You have plenty of company. (2) You are certainly damaging your marriage. (3) You can do something about it.

Naturally, you'll say, people who are unhappy in marriage are depressed. For many reasons, the story seems to be the opposite. It is their depression which promotes much of their unhappiness in marriage. What's more, the depression is quite likely to be contagious. Ask any man whose wife is a monument of gloom. He'll tell you that it's not easy for him to remain cheerful.

WHATEVER THE CAUSE (and it sometimes seems to be constitutional), depression can at least be improved in most instances and no one with a tendency toward it should fail to go to work on it. Consult your physician first. If you have any deep-seated handicap, he should know where to get help for you; but in the ordinary emotional depression that interferes with happy marriage you can do a good deal for yourself.

In the first place, remember that depression ordinarily comes and goes. If you are scraping the bottom of the emotional barrel today, you can be pretty sure that you'll be on the way out next week in the normal course of events. Tell yourself that "this, too, shall pass" and that you won't let it influence you too much during its temporary stay with you.

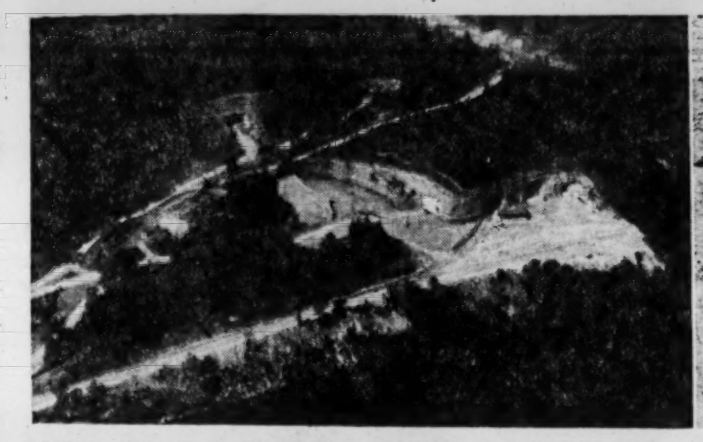

It may help you to talk the matter out fully with someone. Ask yourself whether it's possible that you are actually cultivating a martyr complex because you enjoy it and because it lets you escape from responsibility that you ought to assume. Be on the lookout particularly for what is called "free-floating anxiety." This is a feeling of anxiety that doesn't attach to anything in particular. It just floats around loose and comes to rest on any convenient object in your life.

DIFFERENT PEOPLE profit by different methods of handling depression. Some people are better off alone while most are helped by being in pleasant company. Find your cue and follow it. In general, you will profit by routine activities.

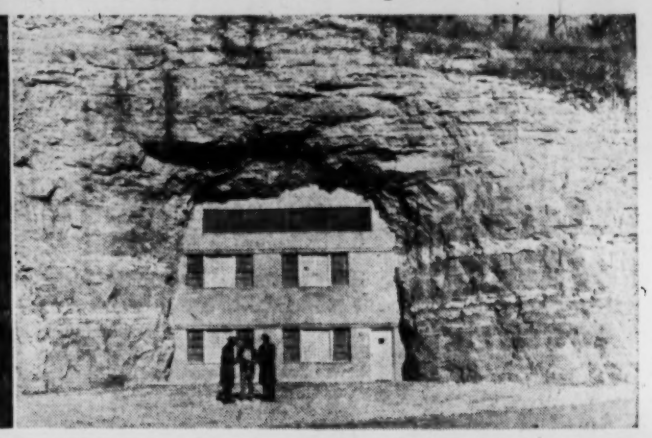

Above all, keep in mind that depression is a real threat to your marriage and you can't afford to ignore this. Make up your mind that you will fight it in every way possible, then go to work and fight.

Vast Warehouse in Missouri Cave

Ex-St. Louisan Converted Space From Limestone Excavation Into Storage Near Neosho

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF OZARK TERMINAL, UNDERGROUND WAREHOUSE NEAR NEOSHO, MO. AT RIGHT ARE TRUCK, RAILROAD AND OFFICE ENTRANCES; AT FAR LEFT IS ENTRANCE WHERE LIMESTONE EXCAVATION, FURTHER ENLARGING THE MAN-MADE CAVE, STILL IS GOING ON.

THE TWO-STORY OFFICES OF THE CAVE WAREHOUSE ARE BUILT INTO THE FACE OF THE ROCK BLUFF. THE WAREHOUSE USES THE GROUND FLOOR OFFICES; THE CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION, WHICH STORES DISASTER SUPPLIES IN THE CAVE, USES THE SECOND FLOOR.

By Dickson Terry

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEOSHO, Mo., Feb. 17.

IN A CAVE in Newton county in southwest Missouri—said to be the only one of its kind in the country if not in the world—there is stored enough ether to put half the population of Missouri to sleep.

Also in this unusual cave in the Ozarks hills are wood pulp from British Columbia, newsprint from Canada, crude rubber from Singapore and Malaya, synthetic rubber from this country and abroad and classified materials used by the nearby Rocketdyne plant, which manufactures and tests engines for the Thor IRBM.

This underground warehouse, situated in such an unlikely spot, is not only an important link in the Civil Defense program for the Middle West, but is becoming, because of its unique qualities, a crossroads of international commerce.

There are a number of factors which contribute to the singularity of the cave, called Terminal Warehouse, Inc. Not the least is the fact that it is man-made and came about as the by-product of a mining operation.

The man behind it is Russell Hunt, a former St. Louis construction engineer who retired in 1937 and went to Neosho, Mo., to live. But instead of retiring as he had planned, he developed a limestone mining business, Southwestern Limestone Co. The company was not quarrying limestone for the stone itself. The layers of limestone in the area contain a high concentration of calcium carbonate, a type of limestone which, after being burned in a kiln, is used in the making of steel.

VIEW OF THE CAVE'S STORAGE AREA. PILLARS OF LIMESTONE LEFT DURING MINING OPERATIONS VARY FROM 25 TO 40 FEET IN DIAMETER. ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND A SPRINKLER SYSTEM ARE OVERHEAD.

CAVE HAS DEPRESSED TRACKS FOR 16 RAILROAD CARS, WHICH CAN BE UNLOADED AT FLOOR LEVEL.

Unlike most limestone excavations, which go down, this one was at ground level. The company started in 1942 digging into the side of a mountain whose face was a 40-foot stone bluff. In the process of removing the calcium carbonate type of limestone, the excavation extended farther and farther back into the mountain, extending in breadth as well as depth.

After some 15 years of digging, it dawned on Russell Hunt that he had created quite a hole in the ground. The excavation covered an area of some 14 acres, half as big as the area covered by the Pentagon, all underground.

It was in the spring of 1956 that Hunt began to wonder if a man couldn't put such a hole in the ground to some practical use. In the excavating process the company had left standing huge columns of solid limestone, measuring 25 to 40 feet in diameter, to support the limestone ceiling.

The ceiling itself is almost uniform in height, measuring an average of 20 feet from the floor. It varies in thickness from 40 feet at the bluff-side entrance to 160 feet at the top of the hill into which it extends.

This ceiling of solid stone gives the cave one of the primary qualities which sets it apart from other caves, natural or man-made. Whereas most caves are damp, or even wet, from seepage through the earth above, this cave remains completely dry the year around. Furthermore the temperature never varies more than five degrees above or below 60.

Such was the nature of Hunt's hole in the ground, when it occurred to him it had possibilities as a storage area.

Hunt went to work to turn the cave into a warehouse. The floors were leveled off and covered with a layer of finely ground limestone and highway asphalt which makes them almost as smooth and flat as a blacktop highway.

Walls, ceilings and pillars were painted white, to intensify light reflection, and the interior was wired for electricity. Several miles of pipe provided a complete water sprinkling system in case of fire.

The cave was divided into huge storage areas, each with about 50,000 square feet of floor space. The areas are divided by foot-thick concrete walls and connected by heavy metal sliding doors.

Ventilation experts were called in. They worked out a ventilating system, with the use of mammoth dehumidifying machines and blowers, which keeps the air dry, keeps it circulating at all times, but at the same time makes it possible to temper the humidity and vary the heat in different areas to suit the needs of the products being stored.

Two large openings in the face of the bluff were enlarged, one for trucks, the other for trains. Kansas City Southern Railroad built a spur line which runs directly into the cave, and freight trains disappear into the mountainside like something out of a tale of magic.

The roadbed for the train extends 600 feet into the side of the mountain, far enough for a train of 16 cars to go into the cave. Inside, the tracks are sunk several feet below floor level so that the floor of the cave is level with the freight car beds, and 16 cars can be loaded or unloaded simultaneously, from either side.

At the other entrance huge transport trucks carry merchandise in and out. At still a third entrance, at the far end of the excavation, company trucks are still removing limestone as the mining operation proceeds. Consequently the warehouse grows in size every day. At present it has a capacity of some 600,000 square feet, and in time, according to Hunt, it will reach a capacity of 6,000,000 square feet, or approximately 135 acres.

Among the big users of the warehouse at present is the Federal Civil Defense Administration, which now has stored there hospital and surgical supplies, including the ether mentioned above, to meet any disaster which may befall the Middle West, whether by nature or at the hands of the enemy.

The Federal Civil Defense Administration has roughly 2500 tons of supplies in the cave, including such items as 40,000 Army hospital cots, the same number of wool blankets and pillows and 37,000 stretchers.

Dextrose, dextron, cylinders of oxygen and nitrous oxide are there by the ton, as well as operating gowns, drapes, surgical instruments, X-ray machines, operating tables and bandages; enough to set up, if the need arises, 200 complete emergency hospitals of 200 beds each.

In charge of the underground medical supply house is Samuel Maycock, with a staff of eight assistants. The defense warehouse, he said, was set up by the headquarters of Region 6 of the FCDA, and in time there will be about $15,000,000 worth of supplies in the cave. Such are the cave's storage qualities, the supplies will be as good 50 years from now as they are today, Maycock said.

The 2500 tons of medical supplies are lost in the vastness of one section of the warehouse. Another of the cave's big customers is Pet Milk Co. of St. Louis, whose Neosho plant makes milk cans. The cans, which require special storage facilities, are placed there against future use.

Inquiries about the cave, Hunt said, are being received from a number of foreign countries, and representatives of firms in several countries have looked at it.

But Hunt is convinced that all caves are going to play their most important and vital role in the future in national defense.

In case of nuclear warfare, he has said, there is no product that won't need to go underground, especially medical supplies and foodstuffs. There will also be a great need for such places to store records of Government and strategic defense plants.

Toward this end, Hunt has been conferring with the Federal Civil Defense Agency in Washington, which has asked him to head a committee of limestone producers to make a survey of caves, natural and man-made, which can be developed as his has been for storage areas. The day may come, Hunt believes, when people as well as things will be looking for such a hole in the ground.

Medical Questions

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: How dangerous are lung operations? It seems to me that the patient who needs to have his lung removed, whatever the cause, has the cards stacked against him. Mr. K. G.

ANSWER: Perhaps the following report by Thomas J. Kinsella, M.D., of the University of Minnesota, will give you a lift. In the surgical treatment of lung tuberculosis (which necessitates removal of parts of lung as well as entire lung) he had the following statistics: during 311 such operations—performed over a two-year period, there was only one death. Only 15 per cent of these patients had complications, many of which were not severe.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: What is meant by drug addiction? Would you say that a person who takes phenobarbital every day is an addict? Mrs. V. N.

ANSWER: I have known patients who were as addicted to drugs like phenobarbital and the bromides as others are to alcohol. In the same way some people are "addicted to" sleeping pills every night or benzedrine every morning. You might even say that there are "caffeine addicts"—the people who must have their dozen cups of coffee every day. I hope you see, therefore, that the term "addict" can be used quite loosely.

Usually, when we think of a drug addict, we consider those who have become habituated to taking any of the following drugs: heroin, morphine, laudanum, codeine, metopon, pantopon, Dilaudid, Demarol, cocaine, marijuana.

STAUFFER'S HOME REDUCING PLAN

A Lifetime Answer to a Lifetime Problem

1. WEIGHT REDUCTION. Yes, there is actual pound-loss for the gentle, passive exercise of STAUFFER'S "MAGIC COUCH" helps your body burn up, rather than store-up food. At the same time it removes inches from the wrong places, molding your body along graceful, pleasing lines.

2. BODY POSTURE. Having a figure that's everything you want it to be is more than just a matter of weight. Of course you TRY to stand up straight but just plain will power will not get you back into proper realignment. Use of STAUFFER'S "MAGIC COUCH" will do the exercising for you . . . turning you out minus the sway-back, the protruding abdomen, or any of the other figure faults you'd gladly live without.

3. MUSCLE RELAXATION. Effortless exercise, unlike voluntary exercise, is not strenuous . . . thus while you relax as you would in your own bed, you gently exercise your body. Tight and tense muscles, those arch-enemies of beauty, are relieved!

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

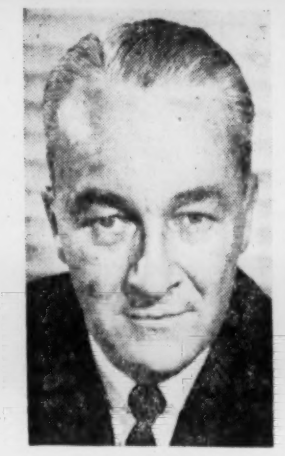

Jim Bishop

The Delinquent Lacks Discipline

THE MARK OF THE DELINQUENT is lack of discipline . . .

He may be tall or short, fat or thin, handsome or ugly, intelligent or stupid, but he cannot abide discipline. This entails obedience: the act of doing the unpleasant. He works well when he is engaged in tasks that please him, but his spirit is in torment when he is ordered to do something routine.

JIM BISHOP

Wherever discipline is rigidly enforced, the incidence of delinquency declines. There is less delinquency in the United States Army than there is in civilian America. There is less in the United States Navy than in the Army — because discipline is more intense. And there is less in the United States Marine Corps than in the Navy because discipline there is carried to an extreme.

This also accounts for thousands of defeated fathers who say: "Let him join the Marines. They'll make a man of him."

I do not know why the delinquent—male or female—has a low tolerance factor for the unpleasant. Why is the business of the psychiatrist. I have a suspicion, though. When I was a police reporter, I saw at least 200 delinquents in court, and I saw five of them—the oldest was 19—die in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

I never looked at one in apathy. What, I asked myself dozens of times, makes him different? The one difference I detected in all of them was lack of discipline. Almost all of them had soft-hearted mothers; some had soft-hearted fathers. They were seldom punished; the parents made excuses for the failures of the children. They were shielded, protected from the unpleasant. "I vowed," one father said, "that my boy was not going to have it as tough as I did."

The boy's doom was sealed at this point. Life has many more miserable moments than happy ones. If we do not prepare the children for the tough, mean side of life, we plant the time bomb of delinquency. In the adolescent years, bad company will light the fuse.

I WAS IN A PLACE, a few years ago, where there is no delinquency. It sits on a hill outside of Pittsburgh and its name is St. Paul's Monastery. There, young men study for the priesthood in cloistered surroundings. I remained as a guest for a few days, observing and making notes.

The new boys wear dark skull caps. They scrub the floors in dark halls; they study; they are in bed at 9:30 p.m. and up at 2:30 a.m. for an hour of prayer in chapel. Then back to bed and up before dawn. In the first year, they must not speak unless spoken to. They must obey all orders without question.

When a superior speaks to them, the seminarians raise their caps by a little tassle to indicate that they have heard, and understand. They are permitted to look at 15 faces per day—no more. One boy, singing in choir at mass, absent-mindedly looked out into the church and his eyes fell on 250 parishioners. When he realized the enormity of his crime, the kid almost fainted.

He told a priest. The priest hid a smile and said: "For penance, say an extra prayer for peace." This is an example of discipline carried out as far is it can go. It is necessary in the monastery in the first year of study so that those who have a real zeal to become priests can be quickly separated from those who have nothing behind them except a shove from mother.

When I went to school, the teachers were permitted to discipline the students. This took several forms: One was extra homework; one was a ruler across the hands; one was to remain in school after hours; one was a letter to father; one was to subtract marks from the monthly average.

I survived it. So did millions of others. Today, the teachers have no means of enforcing their orders. If, in a class of 30, one boy refuses to obey, the teacher has no redress. If he raises his voice in anger, the children giggle at his predicament.

THERE IS LITTLE DISCIPLINE at home. I know an Italian mother with two grown boys and a daughter who must work in a factory because the children cannot keep a job. They want fine clothes, and cars, but they claim that they cannot keep a job because the boss is always "against me."

Please mark me down as favoring more latitude for teachers in the matter of discipline. And while you're about it, put me among the parents who believe in hauling off now and then and slugging the little darlings.

National Scope of Syndicate Is Pointed Up by Ruthless Coast-to-Coast Slayings

By Burton B. Turkus and Sid Feder

Burton B. Turkus, as an assistant United States Attorney, prosecuted leading members of Murder, Inc. Sid Feder, now a free-lance writer, was an Associated Press war correspondent in World War II.

Second Installment.

BY MERGERS, trade agreements and intensive salesmanship — backed by its artistry at carrying out contract murder — the Brooklyn combination was able to grow from a position as just another gang across the East river (and not the most powerful at that) to one of pre-eminence in its field in the national crime industry.

With all its throat-cutting, though, the troop never overlooked the fact that, to the syndicate, murder was secondary to the rackets which were the source of income. And the bandits of Brooklyn, Inc., were deep in those. Early in our investigation, any number of ties that bound them to cross-country crime came to light.

Louis Capone, for instance, had excellent connections with the Purple Mob in Detroit in the loan-shark operation, which covered a wide portion of the nation. Louis was no relation to Scarface Al, except that both were murderers and thugs. Suave and well groomed, with iron-gray hair, Louis had the appearance of a diplomat. You could almost picture him in striped trousers and a tail coat.

LOUIS CAPONE . . . SAUCE AND CAKES AS A FRONT.

Capone ran a pasticceria—the old-world trade name for a shop dealing in thick black coffee, rich pastry and assorted delicacies. The place was a success. It is feared, however, that the excellent spaghetti sauce and the creamy cakes so popular in the sidewalk cafes of Rome and Naples were only a front for Louis in Brooklyn.

One of the regular patrons was Albert Anastasia, overlord of the water front. Back in the early days before syndication, when the Brownsville thugs of Kid Twist Reles and the Ocean Hill hooligans of Happy Maione were just wild punks, Louis used to feed them. And, from filling their stomachs, it was no trick at all for him and Anastasia to advance to filling their heads with ideas on lawlessness, especially since they were already well along the road to self-education in this field.

Capone held considerable power in the syndicate through his Detroit contacts. When Dukey Maffetore, just a punk in the Mob, turned informer in the spring of 1940, he mentioned the matter.

"The Purple Gang and the Brooklyn combination," Dukey explained, "controlled the loan-shark racket all over. They had a real close deal. Every week they exchanged money for the shylocking."

The partnership must have been obvious, indeed, if Dukey, who was only on the fringe, was cognizant of it.

Our informers said both Capone and Anastasia were allied with Joseph Doto, who is far better known by his underworld label of Joey Adonis—or Joey A., for short. In those days, Adonis lived in his bombproof home in Brooklyn, and for years had been especially close to Lucky Luciano and Frank Costello. And before Adonis deported himself to Italy in 1956, he resided in a mansion in Fort Lee, N.J., high on the Palisades towering above the Hudson, but close enough so that his influence could still be felt in Brooklyn—politically, socially and industrially. And one of his neighbors was Albert Anastasia, who also built himself a palatial home on the Palisades.

UNTIL 1951, Adonis had been arrested time and again on charges up to and including assault and grand larceny. He had good friends, though, and his total penalty had been a fine of $100. In May 1951, he was hauled in on gambling charges in Bergen county, N.J., and pleaded non-vult—meaning no defense. It appeared that at last the law had overhauled "Mr. A.," for he was eligible to a sentence of 18 years. Instead, he drew a term of two to three years from Judge J. Wallace Leyden, and his attorney said he would be eligible for parole in 10 months. The New York World-Telegram referred to Mr. A., at his sentencing, as "the laughing boy of the underworld."

Adonis' connections with Costello, and certain Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and western mobsters, in gambling in Florida, Saratoga and Nevada have been most remunerative. For years, he also has enjoyed — until the summer of 1951, at least—an exclusive government-protected monopoly for hauling automobiles from the Ford Motor Company's largest eastern plant, at Edgewater, N.J.

That Joey A. outranked Anastasia in Murder, Inc., is a virtual certainty. Adonis stood high on the national board of governors of the syndicate. No one, in fact, stood higher than this hard-faced hoodlum who looks like a movie version of a gangster. Reles placed him in the picture as the co-ordinator and mediator of intergang disputes anywhere in the ring. Some idea of Adonis' eminence can be gleaned from the marked tone of profond reverence that comes into the voice of any hoodlum, anywhere, whenever he mentions "Mr. A."

In Florida, besides gambling, the Brooklyn combination was associated with other mobs in the jewelry robbery racket. When Reles began his remarkable recounting of the varied virtues of the syndicate, the jewel "heists" were prominently referred to.

"A lot of people think this Brooklyn troop is just a small-time outfit," he said, putting the proper perspective on matters. "Well, we got good connections. You know how the New York gangs case dames with a lot of jewelry in night clubs, and then take them. We been working with the Chicago and New York guys in Florida for a couple years now, and it's even better."

The Florida race tracks, the gambling traps, the luxury hotels evidently were excellent bases for carrying on such mid-winter work. The victims themselves co-operated to some extent, for it is no secret that many feminine visitors to the Miami area look on the trip as an excursion in exhibitionism.

There were any number of other connections the troop acquired. The bookmaking operations reached across New Jersey and into Pennsylvania. Through Lucky Luciano, there were narcotics over a wide area. Florida gambling was so closely linked that many underlings were given jobs as "spotters" or strong-arm men in the clubs there.

HOWEVER, neither the hideout system nor the jewel thefts nor the shylock and gambling and narcotics rackets brings out the completely national outline of Murder, Inc., as sharply as the death dealt out from the Atlantic to the Pacific and way stations. As a matter of fact, in addition to convicting seven of the slayers in Brooklyn, we furnished our witnesses — and in some cases, the killers, as well—to outside prosecutors to clear up many contracts the troop handled for the syndicate far from its home base—as far away as Hollywood, Calif.

As soon as word of our sensational findings became known, law-enforcement agencies in Pennsylvania and Minnesota, Massachusetts and California and various other points dusted off long untouched files on unsolved homicides and asked if our aviary of songbirds had mentioned them. The Pennsylvania State Police reopened the eight-year-old killings, in the Scranton area, of Lew Marcowitz (a ride job), Jack Steinberg (shotgun) and Sam Wichner (stuffed in an automobile luggage compartment). Massachusetts prosecutors were reminded of the much-headlined Dave Green killing, among the bodies that had been left around.

From these and other operations, it would appear that Murder, Inc., and its insidious manner of moving around the national scene must have been fully uncovered to public view more than a decade ago. It wasn't.

In fact, it has always been a major surprise to me how little of its gigantic cross-country outline was actually presented for public understanding, since it was all there to see—for those who looked. Not too many grasped the coast-to-coast architecture of assassination and rackets. One of those who did quickly spot something considerably larger than a purely old-home-week production was the late Harry Feeney of the New York World-Telegram.

Harry was a round little Irishman who could smell a story a mile off. On the very first day of the investigation, he pointed up the nation-wide connections. On the second day, he came up with the inspiration for the name that has stayed with the cartel to this day—Murder, Inc. I remember his animated conversation with his assistant City Editor (now City Editor) Bert MacDonald, as he and the other reporters phoned in their stories from the D. A.'s office.

"It's just like Bethlehem Steel," he emphasized excitedly. "It has a board of directors, a treasurer—that's the bagman — and runs like a big syndicate."

However, the full impact of a national government-within-government that made its own laws and carried on its own brand of justice never did strike the public with any considerable force at the time. And the chief cause lay in as unrelated a subject as the build-up to World War II, just then under way. Each time our probe came up with a development that might display the reach of this octopus of lawlessness, the war came up with a greater sensation.

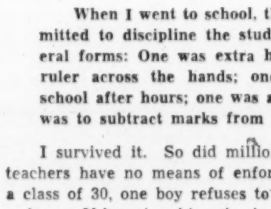

Late in 1941, we finally tried Lepke. The testimony involved people in high places—even as high as the late Sidney Hillman, who was president of the giant Amalgamated Clothing Workers and, just then, Director of the Office of Production Management in the federal government and very close to the White House. The war, however, was getting closer daily. Less than 100 hours after Lepke was sentenced to die, the Japanese touched off the powder magazine at Pearl Harbor.

Pigeon-Toed Pumps

THERE IS ONE THING the fashion designers, who lately seem to have been outdoing each other in trying to make us women look as awkward and clumsy as possible, aren't going to do to me, and that is get me into a pair of pigeon-toed pumps.

RUTH MILLETT

They call 'em asymmetrical. But in case that word isn't in Madame's vocabulary, one of the country's leading fashion stores has come right out and admitted in print that the asymmetrical pump is "wonderful, daring, and ever so slightly pigeon-toed."

If I want to walk pigeon-toed I can do it all by myself — without any special high-fashion equipment—just by turning in my toes. But I don't want to walk pigeon-toed. And come to think of it there's one other thing the designers aren't going to do to me. Put me in a sack dress.

The belt was invented to keep women's dresses from looking like sacks.

I saw a woman the other day who obviously had spent a good bit of money getting the "new look." When she entered the elevator I happened to catch the amazed and flabbergasted look that passed between two men who were courteous enough not to laugh out loud.

She had on a sack dress—in which she seemed to be lost. Her asymmetrical shoes made her look as though she might any minute fall over her own feet, and her hat looked for all the world like a basket down over her head.

She was in high fashion. But she was certainly a sight.

We women have to draw the line somewhere. I've just drawn mine. No sacks for me. And no pigeon-toed pumps!

HERE ARE THREE bidding problems presented in the Bridge World. How would you handle them? The answers are given below along with the play of today's hand.

1. You are South, vulnerable, and hold these cards:

♦Q743
♣AQJ107532

The bidding has gone:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Dble.	?

What call do you make?

2. You are South, with both sides vulnerable, and hold these cards:

The bidding has gone:

What call do you make?

3. You are South at duplicate, with both sides vulnerable, and hold these cards:

♣K5

The bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♦	Pass

What call do you make?

4. You are declarer of today's doubled five-heart hand and West opens the seven of spades, East playing the king. Study only the North-South cards; then plan your play.

Neither side vulnerable.

Answers to Quiz.

1. South jumps to five clubs, hoping to shut out the opponents. He does not adopt the subtle plan of making several bids so that he will perhaps be doubled at the five or six-level. This will permit the opponents to exchange information and reach their best contract.

2. South bids two-no-trump. If North has a little high-card strength, there should be a good play for game.

3. South bids two no-trump. If he instead bids one spade to see if partner has four-card support, North may become declarer at no-trump and then the opening lead will come through South's two doubleton kings rather than up to them.

4. South makes his five-heart contract, doubled, by avoiding a diamond ruff. He hopes to find West, who doubled, with only two trumps. He trumps the opening lead, leads a club to the ace and leads a spade, trumping East's ace. Next he ruffs a club in dummy, discards a club on the ace of diamonds and leads a good spade, discarding his last club and letting West ruff.

Now declarer ruffs West's return and leads a trump, losing only two trump tricks.

Declarer will go down if he trumps the opening lead, plays a club to the ace and discards two clubs on the ace-king of diamonds. Now he can trump a spade and ruff his last club in dummy, but if he tries to reach his hand by leading a diamond, East will ruff with the heart king. If South instead leads a spade, West will ruff and give East a diamond ruff. Either way, declarer loses three trump tricks.

Symphony Benefit Scheduled April 1

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

THE ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA will benefit from the proceeds of a concert to be co-sponsored by the Junior League and the Junior Division of the Symphony Society, Tuesday night, April 1, at Kiel Auditorium.

The orchestra will be conducted in a program called "Music for Springtime" by Vladimir Golschmann. Guest soloist is to be Eloise Polk, outstanding St. Louis pianist who is the wife of Dr. Dixon F. Spivy and a Junior League member. Tickets will be offered at popular symphony prices.

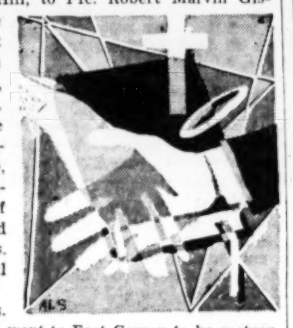

The idea for participation in a Symphony Orchestra concert originated in the ways and means committee of the league which was formed for the purpose of seeking projects to serve community needs and for ways to help train and educate its volunteers. The Symphony's Junior Division is intended to promote pride in the city's orchestra.

Those heading the joint effort are Mrs. Howard T. Bland, league president, and Mrs. William P. Williams, president of the Junior Division. Committee chairmen for "Music for Springtime" includes Miss Julia Terry, Junior League Ways and Means; Mrs. Arthur F. Kerckhoff Jr., tickets; Mrs. Charles W. Detjen, program advertising; Mrs. George E. Mallinckrodt, patrons; Mrs. Shelton C. Voges and Mrs. William Wenzel, treasurers, and Mrs. Alphonso H. Voorhees, publicity.

Prizes will be awarded for ticket and advertising sales. A mink stole given by Scruggs Vandervoort Barney will go to the person selling the most tickets; a one-week expense-paid vacation at the Swiss Village in Estes Park, Colo., will go to the one leading in advertising sales. The trip has been contributed by Donald, Paul and Robert Fischer of St. Louis, brothers, who own and operate the resort.

Lucy Hill Married in Colorado.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Lucy Parriott Hill, daughter of Donald W. Hill of the Greystone apartment, 410 North Newstead avenue, and the late Elizabeth Parriott Hill, to Pfc. Robert Marvin Gisburne Jr., Jan. 25 in the Army Chapel at Fort Carson, Colo. Maj. John C. Handy, post chaplain, performed the ceremony.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marvin Gisburne, 9715 Conway road, Ladue, and the grandson of Mrs. Gladys Jones and the late Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Gisburne, all St. Louisans.

The bride's sister, Mrs. George Ferguson Eberle, went to Fort Carson to be matron of honor and Walter Hoefer, also of St. Louis, was best man. Capt. Ward Morrow, the bride's uncle, gave her in marriage. Mrs. Morrow went from her home in Denver, and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Hugh J. Hill, from Canon City, Colo.

Mr. Gisburne and his bride spent their honeymoon at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs. They will live in that city until he is released from the Army. The former Miss Hill, sister of Donald Watson Hill Jr., attended Horton Watkins High School and was graduated from Garland Junior College, Boston. Her husband, an alumnus of the same high school, attended Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

St. Louisans at Smith College Council.

TWO ST. LOUISANS, Mrs. Thomas H. Eliot, 7129 Washington avenue, University City, and Mrs. Guy S. Forcier, 11 Lenox place, will be in Northampton, Mass., tomorrow through Thursday to attend the annual meeting of the Smith College Alumnae Council.

The council is made up of alumnae who are on the board of trustees, members of the board of the Alumnae Association, of which Mrs. Eliot is vice president, and representatives of Smith College throughout the country.

On Feb. 27 the St. Louis Smith College Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Howard F. Baer, 45 Portland place. Mrs. Forcier, an officer of the local club, will report on the council session. Mrs. Forcier preceded Mrs. Eliot East and is in Hartford, Conn., visiting members of her family.

Mrs. Robert W. Wilson of Washington, president of the Alumnae Association, will preside. Smith College President Benjamin F. Wright will speak at a luncheon Tuesday and other speakers are scheduled in the rest of the session. Visitors will attend classes and will work with the fund-raising committee endeavoring to improve faculty salaries.

Webster College Father-Daughter Banquet

MORE THAN 800 guests are expected at the twentieth annual Father-Daughter banquet to be given by the Men's Club of Webster College and Nerinx Hall this evening in the Khorassan Room of the Chase Hotel beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

The dinner invocation will be delivered by The Rev. Robert Coerver, chaplain of Webster College. Special toasts honoring the fathers will be given by Miss Barbara Westhoff, president of the Student Government Association, and by Miss Helen Micotto, Student Government President at Nerinx Hall. Fred C. Westhoff, of Elmhurst, Ill., and Vincent Micotto will respond in turn to his daughter's toast.

An after dinner program will feature entertainment by students of Nerinx Hall, a skit presented by members of the Men's Club and numbers from the annual Webster College student musical which will have its closing performance Sunday night in the campus gymnasium.

Raymond E. Krings is serving as general chairman of this year's banquet. Men's Club officers who are assisting with arrangements include Ben Lindenbusch, president; Raymond Karst, vice president; Elmer Krings, secretary, and Vincent Winkeler, treasurer.

The mothers of out-of-town students will be entertained this evening at a dinner to be given by the Webster College Women's Club in the college Pink room. Arrangements for the event are under the direction of Mrs. Julian F. Eckles, president of the club, and Mrs. Herbert Winterer, general chairman of the dinner.

Serving as hostesses will be the following board members: Mrs. Edward Linnemann, Mrs. Edmund Smith, Mrs. Paul de Coster, Mrs. G. L. McGinty, Mrs. Ted Beyert, Mrs. Robert Bearden, Mrs. Victor Witte and Mrs. H. B. Tinker.

RUMBA—TANGO—SAMBA—CHA CHA

A nation-wide personality test given by 80 psychologists showed that social dancing is the best of all social games for improving personality. It teaches you how to meet people, how to behave in a graceful, socially acceptable manner, improves your conversational ability, develops self-confidence and does it in a most delightful and inspiring way.

Martha Carr's ® OPINION

Dear Martha:

ABOUT THREE MONTHS AGO, two very nice fellows came here from another town and they got acquainted with our crowd and started running around with us. I started to date one of the boys and we go together quite a bit. The other one told us as soon as he came that he was engaged to a girl in his home town, so he didn't want to single date. However, he was handsome and everyone likes him a lot. A girl I had known back in high school then joined the group and she met this engaged boy and liked him. We had a party soon after that and I suggested that maybe this boy could take this girl and they could go with us. I didn't think anything about it until a week later when my boy friend told me these two had really fallen for each other and now the boy is having trouble with his girl back home. I guess I made a mistake, but what can I do about it now? I feel really bad.

DUMB DORA.

I suppose if he is so disloyal to his fiance that he could fall for a blind date, and if she thinks nothing of coming between them, you really can't hold yourself responsible. However, I don't think you were very smart to encourage them to go together. What to do now? It's out of your hands. I somehow though don't think you would be very comfortable doubling with them under the circumstances and since your own boy friend agrees with you, why keep going out with them?

Dear Martha:

BEFORE I WAS MARRIED, my husband went to church with me occasionally and he promised he would join my church when we married and become an active member. I have always been active in the work of the church but he doesn't belong to any. After we married, two years ago, he wanted to stay at home on Sunday mornings and although he didn't object to my going, he refused to go with me. We have argued a lot about it because I feel he broke his promise. Can you help me?

WIFE.

Yes, he did break a promise, but I don't think you will ever get him into the church by nagging. In fact, if he went simply out of a sense of obligation to you or because he felt he had to go to avoid a quarrel, he would have such a sense of resentment that he couldn't gain much from it and in the long run probably would withdraw even further. My suggestion is that you say nothing more for the time being, but perhaps, later, you can invite another couple from church to your home and hope that your husband will enjoy knowing them. If he has a chance to meet some of the church people, he gradually may be drawn into the activities.

A Surprise Meeting

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 17.

TO OUR SURPRISE as we boarded the plane Thursday morning, my son James and George Jessel suddenly appeared. They were getting off a plane coming in from Sacramento. When they spotted us getting on, they dashed across to say "Hello." A traveling family such as ours will sometimes meet unexpectedly, and it was a great pleasure. I think James takes his trips as easily as I do, for he looked very well.

In northern California the rain has fallen steadily for a good many days. The result, as you look down from the air, is to see all the rivers swollen and flood conditions apparently everywhere. They have suffered so much from floods in northern California that one wonders why comprehensive plans for storing this water and controlling these unruly rivers have not been worked out long ago. The Government always seems to be so loath to spend money to prevent destruction.

Once the destruction occurs it is forced to spend money to remedy it, but the imagination necessary to prevent it seems totally lacking both in the localities themselves and in Washington.

IT WAS INTERESTING to have the lecture Thursday night sponsored by the Democratic County Committee and to have them choose the subject, "Russia and Its People Today." This was quite evidently no campaign speech, though Representative Clare Engle presided at the meeting and will be the nominee for Senator this fall. I feel so strongly that Republicans and Democrats alike as Americans need to know about the Soviet Union that I was glad to find our Democratic party forward-looking enough to seek information about it. Neither did they want their information restricted on a party basis. It should not be for the challenge of the Soviet Union is to the American people and both parties should be equally concerned in meeting it.

Regardless of whether we are Republicans or Democrats, we want freedom. To have freedom we must attract the uncommitted nations of the world to our forms of government and our ways of life, and whichever party is in power will have this responsibility.

I WONDER how many of my readers listened to Mike Wallace's interview with the Nobel Prize winners. I would like to remind you of what Lord Boyd Orr said. He wanted the United States and Russia to cut their military budgets by 10 per cent, and he thought the other nations of the world should be asked to do the same. Five per cent, he suggested, could be retained within a country to reduce taxation. The other 5 per cent should go into a U.N. international fund to be administered by business men and applied to develop the enormous potential resources of the world. This, he felt, would help relieve poverty in Algeria and the tension between that country and France. It would also reduce hunger, poverty and disease in many areas of the world. He suggests this might be a way to begin disarmament. I wonder if we would be willing.

Social Problems

DEAR MRS. POST: I received a very pretty horseshoe pin for my birthday and there has been some controversy as to the correct way of wearing it. I have been wearing it with the open end facing upward, but I have been told that it should be worn with the open end down. Will you please tell me which is correct?

Answer: Most people wear the open end up, probably because of the old superstition that all the good luck in a horseshoe will run out of it if the ends are down.

Pamela Mason's Dim View of Hollywood

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 17.

THE MASON FAMILY, JAMES AND PAMELA AND THEIR CHILDREN, THAT'S PORTLAND, 9, AT LEFT, AND ALEXANDER, 2.

"IT'S AWFUL to be the wife of a movie star," said Mrs. James Mason, adding, "especially if you're the jealous type. Every woman is available to a movie star. Luckily in my case, I'm married to a homebody. James hates to go to parties and premieres as much as I do."

Soon after she arrived in Hollywood with her movie-star mate, the very candid Pamela Mason startled the film colony with her outspoken comments, for publication, on the snobbery of Hollywood hostesses and the rigid caste system slavishly enforced at filmland parties.

"It's even worse now," Pamela told me. "The parties are drearier with people leaving town when not required for pictures or television. At least there was a bigger selection of bores in the old days. They can shoot me now and—unless I absolutely have to, for a friend or a business reason—I won't go to a Hollywood party. It's different when you're single, and hunting, but all the parties in Hollywood nowadays are for married people. Hostesses don't want single women around. They're a threat—especially if the host is a movie star.

"It's different in New York. There are other things to do. But Hollywood society is so surfeited with big parties that everyone yawns when invited and thinks fast for an excuse not to go. Because, let's face it, why go? You'll see the same women you saw at lunch. They've had me sitting next to the same people for years and years. You know exactly what everyone is going to say—the conversation is always about taxes or sex. And once you've said your say on both topics, you've said it.

"The premieres are no better. I hate them; so does James. I hate the tremendous to-do, the false excitement, and the fear. If your friends are in the picture, you can't relax. It's better if you like the picture but, if you don't, what can you say to your friends when they look at you so hopefully? It just doesn't add up to entertainment."

With so much forthrightness, I wondered who were the interesting people here in Pamela's book.

"Zsa Zsa Gabor," Pamela replied. "She is extremely weird, delightful and unreliable. I like Faith Domergue very much—got to know her when James made a picture for her husband. I have a hectic understanding with Frances (Mrs. Van) Heflin—we're very compatible. The most interesting men? Joe Mankiewicz, Greg Bautzer and Nunnally Johnson. Joe (writer-producer-director) is a most fabulously amusing man, a wonderful talker. Bautzer (lawyer husband of Dana Wynter) in his strange way fits into no category, but he has immense charm and has much more intellect that he's been given credit for. Nunnally is very relaxed with a great sense of humor.

"Marlon Brando? I rather like him in a way. He's strange, outside of his extraordinary talent. But actually I think he's very dull. He's not at ease with people. I find Clark Gable delightful. Whenever we meet, we discuss Siamese cats. He's the most beautiful man in the world, next to the man I married.

For a woman who talks so easily, Mrs. Mason isn't as free a personality as she sounds. "I'm half a hermit, half an extrovert," she confessed. "I lock myself in my room sometimes for hours, getting ready to face people. Before Portland (their 9-year-old daughter) was born, I could never cross a road by myself, I could never drive a car. I got more aggressive afterward."

Daughter Porty is currently filming a series, "Alice," for Desilu. The youngster is already one of the characters of Hollywood. "This week," her mother told me, "she did a portrait sitting as an adult. She looks like Zsa Zsa, Tallulah and Buffie Cobb in their early pictures. She loves her career, unlike her father and I —we're not a bit career-conscious. So, when Porty wanted to be an actress, we decided to let her find out about it. We want her to know it's hard work learning lines and taking orders, getting up very early in the morning. We don't want her to think it's the most glamorous thing in the world."

TV Notes and Gossip

THE "ALFRED HITCHCOCK PRESENTS" play, "Guest for Breakfast," to be presented on KWK-TV next Sunday night, is based on a story written by Dr. C. B. Guilford, associate professor in the St. Louis University department of speech and director of plays for the University Theater. Dr. Guilford has had two other stories dramatized on the Hitchcock program — "The Equalizer," which was presented Feb. 9, and "Heaven Can Wait"— and has had two other stories accepted for television. He writes his stories for mystery and detective magazines from which they are selected for television. He also has sold a story, "Joy Ride," to Allied Artists for a motion picture.

When Jack Paar appeared as a guest on a recent Polly Bergen show, he was paid $5000. He gets $1750 a week for his own show.

Dave Garroway will originate his "Today" show in Tampa, St. Petersburg and Sarasota, Fla., three days in mid-March.

Baritone Brian Davies, winner of Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" program last Monday night, who will return to the program tonight as a continuing contestant under Godfrey's new plan of giving cash prizes to winners monthly, formerly appeared in productions of the St. Louis Municipal Opera. His sponsor on the Godfrey program was Miss Nancy Van Rhein, former St. Louisan who was a dancer at the Muny Opera and since has appeared in an Ethel Merman show on Broadway.

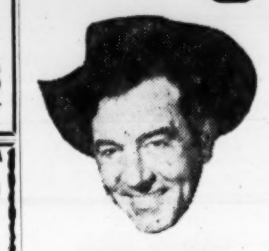

TAMMY MARIHUGH . . . Five-year-old Los Angeles girl who was winner of the "Howdy Doody" smile contest. There were more than 209,000 entries. She will be in St. Louis Thursday with Clarabell, the "Howdy Doody" clown, and will appear on the Charlotte Peters TV show at noon and the Mickey Else KSD radio show in the afternoon.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE FIRST MAN to study heavenly bodies with a telescope was Galileo. He discovered the mountains on the moon and the rings of Saturn. He also saw, and described, the spots on the sun.

Galileo's work with the telescope was started almost three and a half centuries ago. He gave the study of the sky the greatest help it had had up to his time.

To guard his eyes from harm, it was necessary for Galileo to use a piece of dark glass when he studied the sun. Without dark glass, or a dark film, blindness will follow a short time of gazing at the sun—unless the gazing is done at sunrise or sunset.

Q. What important fact about the sun was proved soon after the discovery of sunspots?

A. That the sun rotates on its axis. The spots are of different shapes, and one of them may be identified day after day. Some sunspots exist for several months before fading away.

Sunspots move from one side of the sun to the other. Starting at the eastern edge of the disk, a spot moves to the other side in about 13 days, then goes out of sight. The same spot may appear again on the eastern side of the sun in less than two weeks.

Q. How far does a sunspot move in one rotation of the sun?

A. If it is located near the sun's equator it moves more than 2,500,000 miles. It travels at a speed of more than 4000 miles an hour.

Q. On what parts of the sun are sunspots common?

A. Most of them are seen between five and 40 degrees north of the sun's equator, and between five and 40 degrees south of that imaginary line. A few sunspots, but only a few, appear on or near the sun's equator.
